bowe, and prayse hym that made it: very bewtyfull is it in hys shyne. He compaseth the heauen aboute w̃ hys clearnes & glory, the hãdes of the Hyest haue bended it. Thorow hys commaundement he maketh the snowe to fall, and the thonder of hys iudgemẽt to smyte hastly. Thorow hys cõmaundement ý treasures are opened, and the cloudes fle as the foules. In hys power hath he strengthened the cloudes, and broken the hayle stones.

The mountaynes melt at ý syght of him, ý wynde bloweth accordynge to hys wyll. The sounde of hys thonder beateth ý earth, & so doth ý storme of the north: the whyrle wynde also lyghteth downe as a fethered foule, casteth oute and spredeth the snowe abrode: and as ý grashoppers that destroye all, so falleth it downe. The eye marueleth at the bewtye of the whytenesse therof, and the herte is afrayed at the rayne of it. He poureth out the frost vpon earth, lyke salt, and when it is frosen, it is as sharpe as the prycke of a thystle.

CWhen the colde Northwynde bloweth, harde Chrystall commeth of the water. He lyghteth downe vpon all the gatherynges together of water, & putteth on the waters as a brest plate. He deuoureth ý mountaynes, and burneth the wyldernesses: and loke what is grene, he putteth it out lyke fyre. The medicyne of all these is, when a cloude cõmeth hastely: and when a dewe commeth vpon ý heate, it shalbe refreshed agayne.

In hys worde he stylleth the wynde: In hys councell he setteth ý depe, & (the Lord) Jesus planted it. They that sayle ouer the see, tell of ý perels and harmes therof, and when we heare it with our eares, we maruell therat. For there be straunge wonderous workes, diuerse maner of nyce beastes and whalfysches. Thorow hym are all thynges sett in good ordre and perfourmed and in his worde all thynges endure.
D
I speake moch, but I can not sufficiently attayne vnto it, for he him selfe onely is the perfeccyon of all wordes. We shulde prayse ý Lorde after al oure power, for he is great in all hys worckes. The Lorde is to be feared, yee very greate is he, * and marueleous *Psa.xcv.

¶ The prayse of certen holy men, Henoch, Noe, Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob.

LEt vs commẽde the noble famous N men, and the generacyon of oure fore elders and fathers. Many more glorious actes hath the Lorde done, and shewed his great power euer sens the begynnynge. The noble famous men raygned in theyr kyngdomes, and bare excellent rule. In theyr wysdome & vnderstãdyng, they folowed ý councell shewed in the prophetes. * They led ý folcke thorow the *Exo.xxiii.

When he put on the garment of honoure, B and was clothed wyth all bewtye: when he went to the holy aulter, to garnish the coueryng of the Sanctuary: when he toke ỹ porci-ons out of the Prestes hande, he hym selfe stode by the herth of the aulter, and his brethren rounde about in ordre. As the braunches of Cedre tree vpon ỹ mount Libanus, so stode they rounde about him. And as the braunches of the Olyue tree, so stode all the sonnes of Aaron in theyr glorye. And ỹ he myght sufficyently perfourme hys seruyce vpon ỹ aulter, and garnysh the offrynge of the hyest God, he stretched out hys hande, and toke of ỹ drynckofferyng, and powred in of the wyne: so he powred vpon the bottome of the aulter a good smell vnto the hyest Prynce.

Then beganne the sonnes of Aaron to syng, and to blowe with trompettes, and to make a great noyse, for a remẽbraunce and prayse vnto the Lorde. Then were the people afrayed, and fell downe to the earth vpõ their faces, to worshyp the Lord their God.
ãd to geue thankes to the almyghty God.
They longe goodly also with their voyces, so ỹ there was a pleasaunt noyse in ỹ great house of the Lorde. And the people in theyr prayer besought the Lord the hyest, that he wolde be mercyfull, tyll ỹ honour of ỹ Lord were perfourmed, thus ended they theyr minystracion & seruyce. Then went he downe C and stretched out his handes ouer the whole multitude of the people of Israel, that they shulde geue prayse and thankes out of their lyppes vnto the Lord, & to reioyse in his name. He beganne yet once also to prayse, that he myght openly shewe the thankesgeuyng before ꝑ hyest,namely thus: O geue prayse and thākes(ye all)vnto the Lord our God, which hath euer done noble and great thyn-ges: which hath increased oure dayes from our mothers wombe,and dealt wyth vs ac-cordyng to his mercy: that he wyll geue vs the ioyfulnes of hert, and peace for oure tyme in Israell. Which faythfully kepeth his mercy for vs euermore,and alwaye delyue-reth vs in due season.

D There be two maner of people that I abhorre from my hert: as for the thirde,whom I hate,it is no people. They that syt vpon the mountayne of Samaria, the Philystynes, and the foolysh people that dwell in Sichimis.

I Iesus the sonne of Syrach Eleazarus of Ierusalem, haue tokened vp these informacyons and doctrynes of wysdome and vnderstādyng in thys boke,and poured out the wysdome of my herte. Blessed is he that exercyseth hym selfe therin:and who so taketh soch to hert,shalbe wyse for euer. Yf he do these thinges,he shal be strōge in all. For the lyght of the Lorde ledeth hym.

¶The prayer of Iesus the sonne of Syrach.

A I Wyll thanke the, O Lorde ād kyng, and prayse the, O God my sauyoure.
I wyll yelde prayse vnto thy name:
for thou art my defender and helper, ād hast preserued my body from destruccyō, from ꝑ snare of traytorous tonges,and frō the lyp-pes that are occupyed with lyes. Thou hast bene my helper,frō soch as stode vp against me, and hast delyuered me after the multy-tude of thy mercy, & for thy holy names sake. Thou hast delyuered me from the roa-ryng of thē that prepared them selues to deuoure me,out of the hādes of soch as sought after my lyfe:from the multytude of them ꝑ troubled me, and went about to sett fyre vpon me on euery syde, so ꝑ I am not brent in the myddest of the fyre: from the depe of hell,from an vncleane tonge, from lyenge wordes,from the wycked kynge,and frō an vnrighteous tonge. My soule shall prayse the Lord vnto death,for my lyfe drewe nye vnto hell downewarde.

B They cōpassed me rounde about on euer-ry syde,and there was no man to helpe me.
I loked about me,yf there were eny man ꝑ wold socoure me:but there was none. Then thought I vpon thy mercy, O Lorde, and vpon thy actes that thou hast done euer of olde:namely, that thou delyuerest soche as put theyr trust in the, and ryddest them out of the handes of the Heathē. Thus lyft I vp my prayer from the earth,ād prayed for delyueraunce frō death. I called vpō the Lord my father that he wolde not leaue me without helpe,in the daye of my trouble and in ꝑ tyme of the proude: I praysed thy name con tynually,yeldyng honoure & thankes vnto it:and so my prayer was herde. Thou sauedest me from destruccyon, and delyueredst me from the vnryghteous tyme. Therfore, wyll I a knowledge and prayse ꝑ, and ma-gnyfye the name of the Lorde.

C Whan I was yet but yonge, or euer I went astraye, I desyred wysdome openly in my prayer. I came therfore before the tēple, ād sought her vnto the last. Then flo⁊yshed
she vnto me,as a grape that is soone rype.
My hert reioysed in her, then went my fote the ryght waye,yee frō youth vp, sought I after her. I bowed downe myne eare and re-ceaued her. I founde me moch wysdome: ād prospered greatly in her. Therfore wyll I ascribe the glory vnto him,that geueth me wisdome:for I am adysed to do therafter.
I wyll be gelous to cleue vnto the thynge ꝑ is good, so shall I not be confounded. My soule hath wrestled with her, & I haue bene diligēt to be occupyed in her. I lyft vp myne handes an hye,then was my soule lightened thorow wisdome,that I knowleged my fo-lyshnes. I ordred my soule after her,she and I were one heart from the begynnynge and I founde her in clennesse. And therfore shall I not be forsaken.

D My herte longed after her, and I gatt a good treasure. Thorow her the Lorde hath geuē me a new tōge, wherwith I will pray-se hym. * O come vnto me ye vnlerned, and *Esa.lv.a dwell in the house of wysdome: withdrawe not your selues from her, but talke and co-men of these thinges,for your soules are ve ry thyrstye. I opened my mouth,and spake.
O come ād bye wysdome without money, bowe downe your neck vnder her yock, and youre soule shall receaue wysdome. She is harde at hande and is content to be founde.
Behold,with your eyes, *how that I haue *Eccle.vi.f
had but lytle laboure, and yet haue founde moch reast. O receaue wysdome,ād ye shall haue plenteousnes of syluer ād golde in possession. Let your mynde reioyse in his mercy,& be not ashamed of hys prayse. Worcke hys worcke by tymes,and he shall geue you your rewarde in due tyme.

¶Baruch wrote a boke, durynge the captyuyte of Babylon,whych he readde before Iechoniah and all the people. The Iewes sent the boke with money, vnto Ierusalem,to theyr other brethren: to thyntent that they shulde praye for them.

A Nō these are the wordes of the boke,whyche were wrytten by Baruch the sonne of Nerias, the sonne of Maasias, the sonne of Sedechias, the sonne of Sedeias, the sonne of Helchias, at Babylon in the fyfth yeare, and in the seuenth daye of the moneth,what time as the Caldees toke Ierusalem,and brent it vp with fyre.

And Baruch dyd reade ꝑ wordes of thys boke, that Iechoniah the sonne of Ioacin kynge of Iuda myght heare:and in the pre-ple,frō the lowest vnto the hyest: before all them that dwelt at Babylon, by the water of Sody. Which whā they herde it,wepte, fasted,and prayed before the Lorde.

B They made a collectiō also of money,accordynge to euery mans power, and sent it to Ierusalē vnto Ioachim the sonne of Hel-chia,the sonne of Salō preste, wyth ꝑ other

D Wyth mourning and weppynge dyd I let you go fro me, but with ioye and perpetuall gladnes, shall the Lorde bryng you agayne vnto me. Lyke as þ neyghbours of Syon sawe your captiuite from God. Euē so shal they also se shortly youre health in God, which shal come on you with great honoure and euerlastynge worshyppe.

*Esa.xl.b.d O my chyldrē, *suffre pacyently þ wrath that shall come vpon you. For the enemye hath persecuted the, but shortly thou shalt se hys destruccyon, and shalt treade vpon hys necke. My derlynges haue gone rough harde wayes, for they are led awaye as a flocke that is scatred abrode wyth the enemyes. But be of good comforte (O my childrē) and crye vnto þ Lord: For he that led you awaye, hath you yet in remēbraunce: and lyke as ye haue bene mynded to swarue from your God, *so shall ye now endeuour your selues .x. tymes more, to turne agayne and to seke hym. For he that hath brought these plages vpō you, shall bryng you euerlastyng ioye agayne with your health. Take a good herte vnto the, O Jerusalem: for he which gaue the that name, exhorteth the so to do. *Esa.lxiii.b

*The wycked doers that now put the to trouble, shal perysh: and soch as haue reioyced at thy fall, shalbe punysched. The cytyes whom thy chyldren serue, and that haue caryed awaye thy sonnes, shalbe correct. For lyke as they be now glad of thy decaye (and reioyse at thy fall) so shall they mourne in theyr awne destruccion. The ioye of theyr multytude shalbe taken awaye, and theyr cheare shalbe turned to sorowe. For a fyre shal fal vpon thē from the euerlastyng God longe to endure: and it shalbe inhabited of deuels for a great season. *Jer.l.a.b.d

C The.v. Chapter.

C Jerusalem is moued vnto gladnes for the retourne of her people, and vnder the figure therof, the churche.

A O Jerusalē, loke aboute the towarde the east, and beholde the ioye that commeth vnto the from God. For lo, thy sonnes (whō thou hast forsaken; and that were scatred abrode) come gathered together, from the east and west, reioysynge in the worde of the holy one, vnto the honoure of God.

Put of thy mournynge clothes (O Jerusalem) and thy sorow, and decke the wyth the worshyppe and honoure, that commeth vnto the from God, with euerlastynge glory. God shall put the garment of righteousnesse vpon the, and sett a crowne of euerlastynge worshyppe vpon thine head: for vpō the wyll God declare hys bryghtnesse, that is vnder the heauen. Yee an euerlastyng name shalbe geuen the of God, wyth peace of ryghteousnesse, and the honoure of Goddes feare.

Aryse, O Jerusalē, stande vp on hye: loke aboute the towarde the east, and beholde thy chyldren gathered from the east, vnto the west: whyche reioyce in the holy worde, haupnge God in remembraunce. They departed frō the on fote, and were led awaye of theyr enemyes: but now shall the Lorde bryng them caryed wyth honoure, as chyldren of the kyngdom. For God is purposed to bryng downe all stoute mountaynes, yee and all hye rockes, to fyll the valleys, and so to make them euen wyth the grounde: that Israell maye be diligēt to lyue vnto þ honoure of God. The woddes and all pleasaunt trees shall ouershadow Israel, at the B commaundement of God. For hyther shall God bryng Israel with ioyful myrth, and in the lyght of hys magestye: with the mercy and ryghteousnes, that commeth of him selfe.

C The.vi. Chapter.

C A copye of the epystle that Jerempe sent vnto the Jewes, whyche were led awaye prysonners by the kyng of Babylon: wherin he certyfyeth them of the thynge, that was commaunded hym of God.

A Because of the synnes that ye haue done agaynst God, ye shall be *led awaye captyue vnto Babylō, euē of Nabuchodonosor the Kynge of Babylon. So whan ye become into Babylon, ye shall remayne there many yeares, ād for a lōge season: namely seuen generacyōs: and after that wil I bryng you awaye peaceably from thence. Now shall ye se in Babylon, goddes of golde, of syluer, of wod and of stone, borne vpon mens shoulders, to cast out a fearfulnesse before the heathen. But loke that ye do not as the other: be not ye afrayed, and let not the feare of them ouercome you. *Jer.xxvii.a b

B Therfore, whan ye se the multytude of people worshyppynge them behynde ād before, saye ye in youre hertes: O Lord, *it is thou, that oughtest only to be worshypped: Myne Aungell also shall be with you, and I my selfe wyll care for your soules. As for the tymbre of those goddes, þ carpēter hath polysshed them: yee gylted be they, ād layed ouer with syluer, yet are they but vayne thinges, and cānot speake. Lyke as a wēch that loueth peramours is trymly decked, euē so are these made & hanged with golde. Crownes of golde verely haue theyr goddes vpō their heades: so the prestes them selues take golde and syluer from them: and put it to theyr awne vses: yee they geue of the same vnto harlottes, and trymme theyr whores withall: agayne, they take it from the whores, and decke theyr goddes therwith. *Yet cannot these goddes delyuer thē selues frō rust and mothes. When they haue couered them wyth clothynge of purple, they wype their faces for the dust of the temple, wherof theyr is moch among thē. One hath a sceptre in hys hande, as though he were iudge of the cōtre: yet can he not slaye soch as offende him. Another hath a sweard or an axe in his hande, for all that is he nether able to defende hym selfe from battaylle, ner from murtherers. *Psal.cxiii.a

C By this ye maye vnderstande, that they be no goddes: therfore se that ye nether worshyppe them, ner feare them. For lyke as a vessell that a man vseth, is nothyng worth when it is broken, euen so is it wyth theyr goddes. When they be set vp in the temple, theyr eyes be full of dust, thorowe the fete of those that come in. And lyke as þ doores are shut in rounde aboute vpon hym that hath offended the kyng. Or as it were a dead body kepte beside the graue. Euen so the prestes kepe the doores with barres and lockes, lest their Goddes be spoyled with robbers. They set vp candels before them (yee verely and that many) wherof they cānot se one but euē as blockes, so stand they in the temple. It is sayde, that the serpentes and wormes, whyche come of the earth, gnawe out their hertes, eatyng them and theyr clothes also, ād yet they fele it not. Theyr faces are black thorow the smoke þ is in the temple. The oules, swalowes, and byrdes sle vpon thē, yee & þ cattes runne ouer theyr heades. D

By this ye maye be sure, that they are not goddes, therfore feare them not. The golde that they haue, is to make them beutyfull: for all that, except some body dyght of their rust, they wyll geue no shyne: and whē they were cast into a fourme, they felt it not. Thei are bought for money & haue no breth of lyfe wythin them. * They must be borne vpon mes shoulders, as those that haue no fete: wherby they declare vnto men, that they be nothyng worth. *Cōfoūded be they then that worshyppe thē. For yf they fal to the grounde, they cannot ryse vp agayne of them selues. Yee though one helpe them vp and set them vpryght, yet are they not able to stande alone: but must haue proppes set vnder thē lyke deed mē. As for the thyng that is offred vnto them, their prestes sell it, and abuse it: yee the prestes wyues take therof, but vnto the sycke and poore they geue nothynge of it, the wemē wyth chylde and the menstruous laye handes of their offrynges: By thys ye maye be sure, that they are no goddes, therfore be not ye afrayde of them. From whence commeth it thē, that they be called goddes? The wemen sytt before the goddes of syluer, golde and wood, and the prestes sytt in theyr temples, haupnge open clothes, whose heades ād beerdes are shaue and haue nothyng vpō their heades: rorynge and cryeng vpon their goddes, as mē do at the feast, when one is deed. *Sap.xiii.c *Psa.cxiii.a

E The prestes also take awaye the garmētes of the ymages, and decke their wyues ād chyldrē wythal. Whether it be good or euel that eny man do vnto, thē they are not able to recompence it: they can nether sett vp a kyng ner put hī downe. In lyke maner they maye nether geue ryches, ner rewarde euel. *Though a man make a vowe vnto them and kepe it not, they wyll not requyre it. They can saue no man from deaty, nether delyuer the weake from the myghty. They cannot restore a blinde man to his sight, ner helpe eny man at hys nede. They can shew no mercy to þ wyddowe, ner do good to the fatherlesse *Eccle.b.c

fatherlesse. Theyr goddes of wodd, stone, golde, and syluer, are but euen as other stones, that be hewen of the mountayne. They that worshyppe them, shall be confounded. How shulde they then be taken for goddes? Yee how darre men call them goddes? And though the caldees worshypped them not, hearyng that they were but domme & could not speake. Yet they them selues offre vnto Bell, and wolde fayne haue hym to speake: as who saye, they coulde fele, that maye not moue. But when these men come to vnderstanding, they shal forsake thē, for their goddes haue no felynge. A greate sorte of wemen gyrde wyth coardes, syt in the stretes, and burne olyue beries. Now yf one of them be cōueyed awaye, and lye wyth eny soch as come by: she casteth her neighbours in ꝑ teth, because she was not so worthelye reputed, ner her coarde broken. Whatsoeuer is done for them, it is but in vayne and lost. How maye it then be thought or sayde, that they are goddes? Carpenters and goldesmythes make them, nether be they eny other thinge but euē what the workemen wyll make of them. Yee the goldesmythes thē selues that make them, are of no longe continuaunce.

How shulde then the thinges that are made of them, be goddes? Vayne therfore are the thynges (yee very shame is it) ꝑ they leaue behynde them for theyr prosperyte. For as soone as there commeth eny warre or plage vpon them, then the prestes ymagin, where they maye hyde them selues with thē. How can men thynke then that they be goddes, which nether maye defende them selues frō warre, ner delyuer them from mysfortune? For seynge they be but of wood, of stone, of syluer and of golde: all people and kynges shall knowe herafter that they be but vayne thinges: yee it shalbe opēly declared, that they be no goddes: but euē the very workes of mēs handes, and that God hath nothing to do with them. (It is manifest then that they are no goddes, but the workes of mēs handes, and no worke of God in thē.) They can set no kyng in the lande, ner geue rayne vnto men. They can geue no sentence of a matter, nether defende the lande frō wrong. For they are not able to do so moche as a crowe, ꝑ flyeth betwixte heauen and earth.

G Whan there happeneth a fyre into the house of those goddes of wodde, and syluer, and of golde, the prestes wyll escape and saue them selues, but the goddes burne as the balkes therin. They cannot withstāde eny kyng or battel: how maye it thē be thought or graunted, ꝑ they be goddes? Moreouer, these goddes of wodd, of stone, of golde and syluer maye nether defende them selues frō theues ner robbers: yee the very wicked are stronger then they. Thei stripe them out of their apparell, that they be clothed withall, these take theyr golde and syluer from thē, and so get thē awaye: yet can they not helpe thē selues. Therfore it is moche better for a man, to be a kyng, & so to shewe his power: or els a profitable vessell in a house, wherin he that oweth it might haue pleasure: yee or to be a dore in a house, to kepe soch thynges safe as be therin, thē to be soch a vayne god. The Sunne, the Moone and al the starres, seynge they geue theyr shyne and lyght, are obediēt, and do men good. Whan the lyghtenynge glystreth, all is cleare. The wynde bloweth in euery countre: and whā God cōmaundeth the cloudes to go rounde aboute the whole world, they do as they are byddē. Whan the fyre is sent downe from aboue ād cōmaunded, it burneth vp hylles & woddes. But as for those goddes, they are not lyke one of these thinges, nether in bewty nether strength. Wherfore men shulde not thynke ner saye that they be goddes, seyng they cā nether geue sentence in iudgment, ner do mē good. For so moch now as ye are sure, that they be no goddes, then feare them not. For they can nether speake euel ner good of kinges. They can shewe no tokens in heauē for the Heythē, nether shyne as the Sunne, ner geue lyght as the Moone: yee the vnreasonable beastes are better then they, for they can get them vnder the rofe, and do thē selues good. So can ye be certifyed by no maner of meanes, that they be goddes: therfore feare them not. For lyke as a scarcrowe in a garden of herbes kepeth nothyng, euen so are theyr goddes of wod, of syluer and gold: and lyke as a whytethorne in an orcharde, that euery byrde sitteth vpon: yee lyke as a deed body that is cast in the darcke. Euē so is it wyth those goddes of wodd, syluer and golde. By the purple ād scarlet whych they haue vpon them, and soone fayleth awaye, ye maye vnderstande, that they be no goddes: yee they them selues shall be consumed at the last, whych shall be a great confusion of the land. Blessed is the godly man, that hath no ymages and worshippeth none, for he shalbe farre from reproue.

¶ The songe of the thre childzen, which were put into the hote brennynge ouen. The commen translacyon readeth thys songe in the .iii. Chap. of Daniel.

AND they walked in ꝑ myddest of ꝑ flāme, prayseynge God & magnifyēge ꝑ Lord. Asarias stode vp, & prayde on this maner. Euen in the myddest of ꝑ fyre opened he his mouth, & sayde: Blessed be ꝑ (O Lorde God of oure fathers) ryght worthy to be praysed & honoured is ꝑ name of thyne for euermore: for ꝑ art ryghteous i all the thinges ꝑ thou hast done to vs: Yee, faythfull are all thy workes, thy wayes are ryght, ād all thy iudgementes true. In all ꝑ thiges ꝑ ꝑ hast brought vpō vs, & vpō ꝑ holy cytie of oure fathers (euen Jerusalē) ꝑ hast excecuted true iudgement: yee according vnto ryght ād equyte hast ꝑ brought all these thiges vpō vs because of oure synnes.

For why? we haue offended, & done wyckedly, departynge frō the: * In all thynges haue we trespaced, ād not obeyed thy cōmaundementes, ner kepte thē, nether done as ꝑ hast byddē vs, ꝑ we might prosper. * Wherfore, all that thou hast brought vpō vs, and euery thige that thou hast done to vs, thou hast done thē in true iudgement: As in delyuerynge vs into ꝑ handes of oure enemyes, amonge vngodly and wycked abhominacions, & to an vnryghtuous kyng, yee ꝑ most frowarde vpon earth. And now we maye not open oure mouthes, we are become a shame & reproue vnto thy seruauntes, ād to thē that worshype ꝑ. Yet for thyne names sake (we beseche the) geue vs not vp for euer, breake not thy couenaunt, and take not away thy mercy from vs, for thy beloued Abrahās sake, for thy seruaūt Isaacs sake and for thy holy Israels sake. To whō thou hast spoken & promised * that thou woldest multiplye theyr sede as ꝑ starres of heauen, and as the sande that lyeth vpon the see shore. For we (O Lorde) are become lesse then eny people, and be kepte vnder thys daye i all the world, because of oure synnes: So ꝑ now we haue nether prynce, duke, prophet, burntofferyng, sacrifyce, oblacion, incense, ner Sanctuary before the.

Neuertheles, in a contrite herte and an hūble spryte let vs be receaued, ꝑ we maye optayne thy mercy. Lyke as in ꝑ burntofferyng of rammes and bullockes, & lyke as in thousandes of fat lambes so lett oure offeryng be in thy syght this daye, that it maye please ꝑ, * for there is no cōfusion vnto thē, ꝑ put there trust i the. And now we folowe the with all oure herte, we feare the, & seke thy face. Put vs not to shame, but deale wt vs after thy louynge kindnesse, & according to ꝑ multytude of thy mercyes. Delyuer vs by thy myracles (O Lorde) and get thy name & honoure: that all they which do thy seruauntes euell, maye be confoūded. Let them be ashamed thorow thy almyghtye power, & let theyr strēgth be brokē: that they maye knowe, how ꝑ thou only art the Lord God, & honoure worthy thorow out all ꝑ worlde.

And the kynges seruauntes that put thē in, ceassed not to make the ouen hote wyth wylde fyre, dyre strawe, pitch and fagottes so that the flāme wēte oute of the ouen vpō a. xlix. cubytes: yee it toke awaye & brēt vp those Caldees, that it gat holde vpō beside the ouen. But the Angell of the Lorde cam downe into the ouen to Asarias and hys felowes, and smote the flamme of the fyre out of ꝑ ouen, and made the myddest of the ouen as it had bene a colde wynde blowynge: so ꝑ the fyre nether touched them, greued them, ner dyd them hurte. Then these thre (as out of one mouth) prayseth honoured, and blessed God in the fornace, sayenge,

* Blessed be thou, O Lord God of oure fathers: for thou art prayse and honoure worthy, yee and to be magnifyed for euermore. i Mac. iiii

* Blessed be ꝑ holy name of thy glory, for it is worthy to be prayseth, and magnifyed in all worldes. Blessed be thou in the holy tēple of thy glory, for aboue all thynges thou art to be prayseth, ye & more thē worthy to be magnifyed for euer. Blessed be ꝑ in ꝑ trone of thy kingdome, for aboue all ꝑ art worthy to be well spokē of, & to be more then magnified for euer. Blessed be thou, that lokest thorow the depe, and sytteste vpon ꝑ Cherubyns: for thou art worthy to be prayseth, ād aboue all to be magnifyed for euer. # The story of Susanna, whych is the .xiii. Chapter of Danyel after the Latyn.

A THere dwelt a man in Babylō, called Joachim, ꝑ toke a wyfe, whose name was Susanna, ꝑ daughter of Helchia, a very faire womā and soch one as feared God. Her father and her mother also were godly people & taught theyr daughter accordynge to the lawe of Moses. Now Joachim (her husbande) was a greate rych mā, and had a fayre orcharde ioynyng vnto hys house. And to him resorted the Jewes comēly, because he was a mā of reputacyon amonge them. The same yeare were there made two iudges, soch as the Lorde speaketh of: All the wyckednesse of Babylō, commeth from the elders (that is) from the iudges, whych seme to rule the people. These came oft to Joachims house, and all soch as had eny thynge to do in the lawe came thyther vnto them.

B Now when the people came agayne at after noone. Susanna went into her husbandes orcharde, to walke. The elders seinge thys, that she went in daylye, and walked: they burned for lust to her, yee they were almost out of theyr wyttes, and cast downe theyr eyes, that they shuld not se heauē, ner remembre, that God is a ryghtuous iudge. For they were both wounded with the loue of her, nether durst one shewe another his grefe, And for shame, they durst not tell her theyr inordynate lust, that they wolde fayne haue had to do wt her. Yet they layed wayte for her earnestly from daye to daye, that they myght (at the leest) haue a syght of her And the one sayde to the other: Up, lett vs goo home, for it is dyner time. So they wēt theyr waye from her.

When they returned agayne, they came together, enquiryng out ꝑ matter betwixte them selues: yee the one tolde ꝑ other of hys wicked lust. Then appoynted they a tyme, when they myght take Susanna alone,

C It happened also ꝑ they spyed oute a conuenient tyme, when she went forth to walke (as her maner was) & no body wyth her, but two maydens, & thought * to wash her selfe in the gardē, for it was an hote season: And there was not one person there, except the two elders, that had hyd them selues to beholde her. So she sayde to her maydēs: go fet me oyle and sope, and shut the orcharde doze, that I maye wash me. And they dyd as she bad them, and shut the orcharde doze, ād went out them selues at a backe doze, to fet the thynge that she had cōmaunded: but Susanna knewe not, that the elders laye there hyd within. Now when the maydens were

were gone forth, the two elders gat thē vp: and ranne vpō her, saying: now the orchard dores are shut, that no man can se vs: we haue a lust vnto the, therfore consent vnto vs. and lye wyth vs.

D If thou wylt not, we shall brynge a testimoniall agaynst the: that there was a yōge felowe with the, and that thou hast sent awaye thy maydens frō the for the same cause. Susanna syghed, & sayde: Alas. I am in trouble on euery syde. Though I folowe your mynde, it wyll be my death, & yf I cōsent not vnto you, I cā not escape youre hādes. Well, it is better for me, to fal into your hāde wythout the dede doynge, then to synne in the syght of the Lorde: and with that, she cryed out with a loude voyce: the elders also cryed out agaynst her.

Then ranne there one to the orcharde dore, and smote it open. Now when the seruauntes of the house herde the crye in the orE charde, they russhed in at the backe doze, to se what the matter was. So when the elders tolde them, ꝑ seruauntes were greatly ashamed, for why? there was neuer soch a reporte made of Susanna. On the morow after came the people to Joachim her husbande, & ꝑ two elders came also, full of myscheuous imagynacyō agaynst Susanna, to bryngе her vnto death, & spake thus before the people: Sende for Susanna ꝑ daughter of Helchias, Joachims wyfe. And imediatly they sent for her. So she came wyth her father & mother, her chyldren & all her kynred. Now Susanna was a tender person, and meruelous fayre of face. Therfore the wycked mē commaunded to take of the clothes frō her face (for she was couered) that at the leest, they myght so be satisfied i her beutie. Thē her frendes, yee and al they that knewe her, began to wepe.

*Ecc.xlviii.c. These two elders stode vp in the myddest of the people, * & layed theyr handes vpon the heade of Susanna: which wepte, and loked vp towarde heauen, for her herte had a sure trust in the Lord, And the elders sayde: As we were walkynge in the orcharde alone, thys woman came in with her two maydens: whom she sent awaye from her, & sparred ꝑ orcharde dores: with ꝑ a yonge felowe (which there was hyd) came vnto her, and laye with her. As for vs, we stode in a corF ner of the orcharde. And when we sawe this wyckednes, we ranne to her: and perceaued, ꝑ they had medled together. But we could not holde hym, for he was stronger then we: thus he opened the doze ād gat hym awaye.

Now when we had taken thys woman, we asked her, what yonge felowe this was: but she wolde not tell vs. This is the matter, and we be wytnesses of the same.

The comē sorte beleued them, as those that were the elders and iudges of the people, ād so they cōdēned her to death. Susāna cryed out with a loude voyce, and sayd: O euerlastige God, * thou sercher of secretes, ꝑ that knowest all thinges afore they come to passe: thou wotest, ꝑ they haue borne false witnes against me: & beholde, I must dye, where as I neuer dyd eny soch thynges, as these men haue malycyously inuēted agaynst me. And the Lord herde her voyce. For whē she was led forth to death, the Lorde raysed vp the spyrete of a yōge child, whose name was G Daniel, whych cryed with a loude voyce: * I am cleane from this bloude. Thē all ꝑ people turned them towarde hi, & sayd: What meane these wordes, that thou hast spokē? Daniel stode in the myddest of them, & sayd Are ye soch fooles, O ye children of Israel, that ye can not discerne ner knowe the trueth? Ye haue here condēned a daughter of Israel vnto death, and knowe not the trueth wherfore: Goo syt on iudgemēt agayne, for they haue spokē false wytnesse agaynst her.

Wherfore the people turned agayne in all the haste. And the elders (that is, the principall heades) sayd vnto hi: come syt downe here amonge vs, and shewe vs this matter, seyng God hath geuen ꝑ as greate honoure as an elder. And Daniel sayd vnto thē * Put these two a syde one from another, and then shall I heare thē. Whē they were put asunder one from another, he called one of them and sayd vnto hym: O thou olde canckerde carle, that hast vsed thy wickednesse so lōg: thyne vngracyous dedes which thou hast done afore, are now come to lyght. For thou hast geuen false iudgementes, thou hast oppressed the innocent, & letten the gylty go fre where as yet ꝑ Lord sayeth: * The innocēt & ryghtuous shalt thou slaye not. Wel thā, yf thou hast sene her tell me vnder what tre sawest thou them talkyng together? He answered: vnder a Wolbery tree. And Daniel sayde: very well, now thou lyest euen vpon thyne head. Lo the messaunger of the Lord hath receaued the sentence of hym, to cut the in two, Then put he hym a syde, & called for the other, & sayde vnto hym: O thou sede of Canaan, but not of Juda: Fayrenesse hath dysceaued the, ād lust hath subuerted thyne herte. Thus dealte ye afore with the daughters of Israel, and they (for feare) consented vnto you: but the daughter of Juda wolde not abyde youre wyckednesse. Now tell me thā vnder what tree dydest ꝑ take thē, speakynge together? He answered: Under a Pōgranate tree. Then sayde Daniel vnto him: very wel, now thou lyest also euē vpon thyne head. The messaunger of the Lorde standeth wayting wyth the swerde, to cut the in two and to slaye you both.

Wyth that, all the whole multitude gaue

a greate shoute, & prayed God, * which alwaye delyuered them that put theyr trust in hym. And they came vpon the two elders (whom Daniel had conuycte wyth theyr awne mouth: ỳ they had geuen falce wytnesse) & dealte wyth them, euen lyke wyse as they wolde haue done with their neyghbours: yee they dyd * accordyng to the lawe of Moses, and put thẽ to death. Thus ỳ innocent blonde was saued the same daye.

Then Helchiah & his wyfe prayed God, for theyr daughter Sulãna, with Joachim her husbande and all ỳ kynred: ỳ there was no dishonestye founde in her. From ỳ daye forth was Daniel had in greate reputation in the syght of the people. (And kynge Astyages was layed with his fathers, and Cyrus of Persya reigned in his steade.)

The story of Bell / & of the Dragon, which is the .xiiii. Chapter of Daniel after the Latyn.

DAniel dyd eate at ỳ kynges table, & was had in reuerẽce aboue all hys frẽdes. There was at Babylõ an ymage, called Bel: & there were spẽt vpõ hym euery daye .xii. cakes. xl. shepe, ãd syxe greate pottes of wyne. Hym dyd ỳ kynge worshyp hym selfe, & wente daylye to honour hi: but Daniel worshypped hys awne God. And ỳ kyng sayde vnto hym: why dost not ỳ worshyppe Bel? He answered & sayde: * Because I maye not worshyp thynges ỳ be made w̃ handes, † but the lyuynge God, which made heauẽ & earth, & hath power vpõ all flesche. The kyng sayde vnto hym: thinckest ỳ not that Bell is a lyuynge God? Or seyst thou not how moch he eateth and dryncketh euery daye? Danyel smyled, and sayde: O kig, disceaue not thy selfe: for thys is but made of claye within, ãd of metall wythout, * nether eateth he euer any thynge.

Then the kynge was wroth, & called for his prestes, and sayde vnto them: If ye tell me not who is thys, that eateth vp these expenses, ye shall dye: but yf ye cã certifie me that Bel eateth thẽ, then Daniel shall dye, for he hath spokẽ blasphemy agaynst Bel. And Daniel sayd vnto the kinge: let it so be accordinge as thou hast sayde: The Prestes of Bel were .lxx. besyde theyr wyues & children. And the kynge wente with Daniel into the temple of Bel. So Bels prestes sayd Lo, we wyll go out, and set thou the meate there (O kynge) and poure in the wyne: thẽ shutt the doze fast, and seale it wyth thyne awne syguet: and to morow when thou cõmest in, yf thou fyndest not that Bel hath eaten vp all, we wyl suffre death: or els Daniel, that hath lyed vpon vs. The Prestes thought them selues sure ynough, for vnder the altare they had made a preuy intraunce, and there wente they in euer, & dyd eate vp what there was.

So when they were gone forth, the kinge set meates before Bel. Now Daniel had cõmaunded his seruauntes to bringe asshes, & these he syfted thorow out all the temple, that the kynge myght se. Then wente they out, and sparred the doze, sealyng it wyth ỳ kynges syguet, & so departed. In the nyght came the prestes with theyr wyues & chyldren (as they were wõte to do) & dyd eate ãd dryncke vp al. In the mornyng by tymes at the breake of the daye, the kynge arose, and Daniel wyth hym. And the kynge sayd: Daniel, are the seales whole yet? He answered: Yee (O kyng) they be whole. Now as soone as he had opened ỳ doze, the king loked vnto the aultare, and cryed wyth a loude voyce: Greate art thou O Bel, & with the is no disceate. Thẽ laughed Daniel, and helde the kynge that he shulde not go in, and sayd: Beholde the pauement, marcke well, whose fote steppes are these? The kyng sayd: I se the fote steppes of men, wemen and chyldren.

Therfore the kynge was angrye, and toke the prestes, with theyr wyues and chyldren, and they shewed hym the preuy dores, where they came in, & dyd eate vp soch thynges as were vpon ỳ aultare. For the whych cause the kyng slewe thẽ, * & delyuered Bel into Daniels power, which destroyed hym and his temple.

And in that same place there was a great Dragon which they of Babylon worshypped. And the kyng sayd vnto Daniel, sayest thou that this is but a God of metall also? lo, he lyueth, he eateth ãd dryncketh: so that thou canst not saye, ỳ he is no lyuynge God, therfore worshype hym. Daniel sayd vnto the kynge: I wyll worshype the Lorde my God, * he is the true lyuinge God: as for this he is not the God of lyke. But geue me leaue (O kyng) and I shall destroye thys Dragon without swearde or staffe. The kynge sayd. I geue ỳ leaue. Thẽ Daniel toke pitch fatte and hearrye woll, & dyd sethe them together, and made lompes therof: this he put in the Dragons mouth, and so the Dragon burst in sonder: and Daniel sayd: lo there is he whom ye worshypped. When they of Babylon herde ỳ, they toke greate indignacion and gathered them together agaynst ỳ kynge, sayinge: The kynge is become a Jewe and he hath destroyed Bel, he hath slayne the Dragon, and put the prestes to death. So they came to the kyng, and sayd: let vs haue Daniel, or els we will destroye the and thyne house.

Now when the kyng sawe, that they rushed in so sore vpon hym, and that necessite cõstrayned him, * he delyuered Daniel vnto them: which cast hym into the lyons denne, where he was syxe dayes. In the dẽne there were seuen lyons, and they had geuen them euery daye two bodyes & two shepe: whych then were not geuen them, to the intent that they myght deuoure Daniel.

There was in Jewry a Prophete called Abacuc, which had made potage, and brokẽ bred in a depe platter, and was goynge into the felde, for to bringe it to ỳ reapers. But the Angell of the Lorde sayde vnto Abacuc go carry the meate that thou hast to Babylon, vnto Daniel, which is i the lyons dẽne And Abacuc sayde: Lorde, I neuer sawe Babylon: and as for the denne, I know it not. * Then the Angell of the Lord toke hi by the toppe, and bare hym by the hearre of the head, and (thorow a myghtie wynde) set him in Babylon vpon the denne. And Abacuc cried, sayenge: O Daniel * ỳ seruaunt of God, haue, take ỳ break fast, that God hath sent the. And Daniel sayde: O God, hast ỳ thought vpon me? Well, thou neuer fayleste them that loue the. So Daniel arose, & dyd eate: and the Angell of the Lorde sett Abacuc in his awne place agayne immediatly.

Upon the seuenth daye, the kynge wente to be wepe Daniel: and whẽ he came to the denne, he loked in: and beholde, Daniel sat i the myddest of the Lyons. Then cryed the kyng with a loude voyce, sayig: Greate art thou, O Lord God of Daniel: * & he drewe hym out of ỳ lyons dẽne. † As for those that were the cause of hys destruccyon, he dyd cast thẽ into the denne, and they were deuoured in a moment before his face.

After thys, wrote the kynge vnto all people, kynredes and tunges, that dwelt in all countrees, sayenge: peace be multyplied w̃ you. Myn commaundement is, in all the dominiõ of my realme: that men feare & stãde in awe of Daniels God, * for he is ỳ lyuing God, whych endureth euer: hys kyngdome abydeth vncorrupte, and his power is euerlastynge. It is he that can delyuer and saue: he doth wonders and maruelous worckes in heauen and in earth, for he hath saued Daniel from the power of the Lyons.

The prayer of Manasses kynge of Juda, when he was holden captyue in Babylon.

LOrde Almyghtie, God of oure fathers, Abrahã, Isaac and Jacob, and of the ryghteous seade of them: whych hast made heauen and earth, wyth all the ornament therof, whych hast ordened the see by the worde of thy cõmaundement: whych hast shutte vp the depe, and hast sealed it for thy fearfull and laudable name, whych all men feare, ãd tremble before the face of thy vertue, and for the anger of thy threatẽyng, the which is importable to synners. But ỳ mercy of thy promes is greate and vnsearcheable: for thou arte the Lorde God most hyghe, aboue all the earth, longsuffrynge, & exceadynge mercyfull, & repentaunt for the malyce of mẽ. Thou Lord after thy goodnes hast promysed repẽtaunce of ỳ remyssiõ of synnes: and thou that arte the God of ỳ ryghtwes, hast not put repentaunce to the ryghtwes Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob, vnto them that haue synned agaynst the: But because I haue synned aboue the nombre of the sandes of the see, and that myne iniquities are multyplied, I am humbled with many bandes of yron, and ther is in me no breathynge. I haue prouoked thyne anger, and haue done euell before the, in commyttynge abhominacyons and multiplying offences. And now I bowe the knees of my hert, requyrynge goodnes of the O Lorde I haue synned, Lord I haue synned, and knowe myne inyquytie. I desyre the by prayer, O Lorde forgeue me: forgeue me and destroye me not wyth myne inyquytyes, nether do thou alwayes remẽbre myne euelles to punysh them, but saue me (whych am vnworthy) after thy great mercy: and I wyll prayse the euerlastyngly, all the dayes of my lyfe: for all the vertue of heuen prayseth the, and vnto the belongeth glorye, worlde with oute ende. Amen.

¶ The fyrst Chapter.

¶ After the deeth of Alexander the kynge of Macedonia, Antiochus taketh the kyngdom, & many of the chyldren of Israel make couenaunt wyth the Gentiles. Antiochus subdueth Egypte and Ierusalem vnto hys dompnion. Ierusalem beynge burnt maketh lawes of her awne, and forbydeth to kepe Godders lawes. Antiochus setteth vp an Idole ouer the aulter of God.

A

After that Alexãder the sonne of Philyppe, kinge of Macedonia wente forth of the lãde of Cethim, & slewe Dariꝰ kyng of the persyãs and Medes: It happened, that he toke greate warres in hãde, wãne very many stroge cytyes, & slewe many kynges of ꝑ earth: goyng thorow to ꝑ endes of ꝑ worlde, and gettyng many spoyles of ꝑ people: In so moch, ꝑ the worlde stode in greate awe of hym, * & ther fore was he proude in his herte. Now whan he had gathered a myghtye stronge hoost, & subdued ꝑ landes & people wyth theyr pynces, so ꝑ they became tributaryes vnto him: he fel syck. And whẽ he perceaued ꝑ he must nedes dye, he called for hys noble estates (whych had bene brought vp wyth hym of chyldren) * & parted hys kyngdome amõge thẽ, whyle he was yet alyue. So Alexãder raygned .xii. yeare, and then dyed.

* Dani.vii.a and.viii.b.

After hys death fell the kyngdome vnto hys princes, and they optayned it euery one in hys rowme, and cauled them selues to be crowned as kynges: and so dyd theyr chyldrẽ after them many yeares, and moch wyckednesse increased in ꝑ world. Out of these came the vngracyous rote, noble Antiochꝰ the sonne of Antiochus the kyng (* whych had bene a pledge at Rome) and he raygned in the C. xxxvii. yeare of the empyre of the Grekes.

B

In those dayes wẽte there out of Israell wycked men, whych moued moch people wt theyr coũcell, sayẽge: * Lett vs go & make a couenaunt wyth the Heathen, ꝑ are rounde aboute vs: for sence we departed frõ them, we haue had moch sorow. So thys deuyce pleased them well, and certayne of ꝑ people toke vpõ thẽ for to go vnto ꝑ kynge, which gaue thẽ lycence to do after the ordinaũce of ꝑ Heathen. * Then set they vp an opẽ scole (at Ierusalem) of the lawes of the heathen & were nomore cyrcumcysed: but forsoke ꝑ holy Testamente, & ioyned them selues to ꝑ Heathẽ *, & were cleane solde to do myschefe So when Antiochus beganne to be myghtie i hys kyngdome, he wente aboute to optayne ꝑ lãde of Egypte also that he myght haue the dompniõ of two realmes. * Upon this entred he ito Egypte wt a stroge hoost, wyth charrettes, elephantes, horsmẽ and a greate nombre of shyppes, and beganne to warre agaynst Ptolomy the kyng of Egypte. But Ptolomy was afrayed of hym, ãd fled: and many of hys people were wounded to death. Thus Antiochus wãne many strõge cyties, & toke awaye greate good out of the lande of Egypte.

C

* And after that Antiochus had smytten Egypt, he turned agayne in the Cxliii. yeare, & wente towarde Israel, & came vp to Ierusalẽ with a myghtie people: & ẽtred proudly into the Sãctuary, and toke awaye the golden altare, ꝑ candylstycke and all the ornamentes ther of, the table of the shewbred, the pourynge vessel, the chargers, the golden spones, the vayle, ꝑ crownes, and goldẽ apparell of the temple, & brake downe all. He toke also the siluer & golde, the precious Iewels, & the secrete treasures that he founde. And when he had takẽ awaye all together, cauled a greate murthur of men, and so fulfylled his malycious pryde, he departed ito hys awne lande.

* i.mac.i.b

Thus there arose greate heuynesse and misery i all ꝑ lande of Israel. * The princes & the elders of the people mourned, the ponge men and the maydens were defyled, and the fayre beutye of wemen was chaunged: the bryde grome and the bryde toke them to mournynge: the lande and those that dwelt therin, was moued: for all the house of Jacob was brought to confusion.

* After two yeres the kynge sent hys chefe treasurer vnto ꝑ cities of Juda, which came to Ierusalẽ with a great multitude of people, speakinge peaceable wordes vnto thẽ but all was dissceate: for whã they had geuẽ hym credence, he fel sodenly vpon the cytie, & smote it sore, ãd destroyed moch people of Israel. * And when he had spoyled the citie, he set fyre on it, caste downe houses and walles on euery syde. The wemen and their chyldrẽ toke they captiue, & led awaye their catel. Then buylded they ꝑ cytie of Dauid with a great ãd thycke wall, & with myghtie towres, and made it a stronge holde for them. Besyde all this they set wycked people and vngodly mẽ to kepe it, stoared it wt weapens & vytayles: gathered the goodes of Ierusalem, ãd layed them vp there: thus became it a theuysh castell.

And thys was done to laye wayte for the people that went into the Sanctuary, and for the cruell destruccyon of Israell. Thus they shed innocent bloude on euery syde of ꝑ Sanctuary, and defyled it: In so moch that the cytesyns were fayne to departe, and the cytie became an habitacyon of straungers, beyng desolate of her awne sede, for her awne natyues were fayne to leaue her. * Her sãctuary was clene wasted, her holy dayes were were turned into mournynge, her Sabbathes were had in derisyon, and her honoure brought to naught. Loke how greate her glory was afore, so greate was her confusyõ, & her sope turned in to sorowe.

* i.mac.vi.a

* Antiochus also the kynge sent out a cõmission vnto all hys kyngdome, that al the people shuld be one. Thẽ they left euery mã hys lawe, and all the Heathen agreed to ꝑ commaundement of kynge Antiochus: Yee many of the Israelites cõsented there vnto, offerynge vnto Idols, & defylinge the Sabbath. So the kynge Antiochus sẽt his messaungers wyth hys commissyon vnto Ierusalem, & to all the cyties of Juda: that they shulde folow the lawes of the Heathen, and forbad ether burnt offerynge, meatofferige or peaceofferinge to be made i the temple of God, and that there shulde no Sabbath ner hye feall daye be kepte: but commaunded, ꝑ the Sanctuary & the holy people of Israell shulde be defyled.

He commaunded also that there shulde be sett vp other altares, tẽples & Idols: to offre vp swynes flesh & other vnclene beastes: that men shulde leaue theyr chyldren vncircumcised, to defyle theyr soules with al maner of vnclẽnesse and abhominacyõs: ꝑ they myght so forget the lawe, & chaunge all the holy ordinaunces of God: & that whosoeuer wolde not do accordynge to the cõmaundement of kyng Antiochꝰ, shulde suffre death. In lyke maner commaunded he thorow out all hys realme, and sett rulers ouer the people, for to compell them to do these thinges commaundynge the cyties of Juda to do sacrifyce vnto Idols.

Then wente the people vnto the heathẽ by heapes, forsoke the lawe of the Lord, ãd cõmytted moch euell i the lande: pee ãd chaced out ꝑ secrete Israelytes, which had hyd them selues in corners and preuy places.

The .xv. daye of the moneth Casleu, in the

F

Cxlv. yeare, sett kynge Antiochus an abhominable Idol of desolacyon vpõ the altare of God, and they buylded altares thorow out all the cytyes of Juda on euery syde, before the dores of the houses, and in the stretes: where they brent incense, and dyd sacrifyce. * And as for ꝑ bokes of ꝑ lawe of God, they brent them in the fyre, and rẽt them in peces. What soeuer he was that had a boke of the Testament of the Lord found by hi, yee whosoeuer endeuored hymselfe to kepe the lawe of the Lorde, the kynges cõmaundemẽt was, that they shulde put hym to death. And thorow his auctorite they executed these thinges euery moneth, vpõ ꝑ people of Israel that were founde in the cyties.

of the Lorde) accordynge to the commaundement of kynge Antiochus, they put certayne wemen to death, which had cauled theyr chyldrẽ to be circumcised: Not only ꝑ, but they hanged vp the chyldren by the neckes thorow out all theyr houses, and slewe the circumcisers of them.

Yet were there many of the people of Israell, whych determined i them selues, that they wolde not eate vncleane thynges: but chose rather to suffre death, then to be defiled wyth vncleane meates. So because they wolde not breake the blessed lawe of God, they were cruelly slayne. And thys great tyranny increased very sore vpon the people of Israell.

¶ The .ii. Chapter.

¶ The mournyng of Mathathias and hys sonnes for the destruccion of the holy cytie. They refuse to do sacrifyce vnto Idoles. The zele of Mathathias for the lawe of God. They are slayne and will not fyght agayne because of the Sabboth daye. Mathathias dyuyde commaundeth hys sonnes to fyght by the worde of God after the exemple of the fathers.

In those dates there dyd stãde vp one Mathathias the sonne of Symeon the preest (out of ꝑ kynred of Joaris) from Ierusalem, and dwelt vpon ꝑ mount of Modin, & had v. sõnes: Jhon called Goddis Symeõ, called Thasi: Judas, otherwise called Machabeus: Eleazer, other wyse called Abarõ: and Jonathas, whose syrname was Apphus. These sawe the euel, that was done amõge the people of Juda ãd Ierusalem. And Mathathias sayd: woo is me, alas that euer I was borne, to se thys misery of my people, and the pyteous destrucciõ of the holy cyte: and thus to syt so styl, it being delyuered into the handes of the enemyes. * Her Sãctuary is come into the power of straungers: her temple is, as it were a mã that hath lost hys good name: her precyous ornamentes are carped awaye captyue. Her olde men are slayne in the stretes, & her ponge men are fallen thorow ꝑ swearde of the enemyes.

What people is it, that hath not some possessyon in her kyngdome? Or who hath not gotten some of her spoyles? All her glory is taken awaye. She was a free womã, & now she is become an handmayde. Beholde oure Sanctuary, oure bewtye & honoure is wasted awaye, & defyled by ꝑ Gentiles. What helpeth it vs then to lyue? And Mathathias rẽte his clothes, he and hys sonnes, & put sackcloth vpon them, & mourned very sore.

Then came the men thyther whych were sent of kynge Antiochus, to cõpell soch as were fled into the cytie of Modyn, for to do sacrifyce and to burne incense vnto Idols, and to forsake the lawe of God. So, many of the people of Israell cõsented and enclyned vnto thẽ, but Mathathias and his sonnes remayned stedfast. Then spake ꝑ com-mysponers of kynge Antiochus, and sayde vnto Mathathias: Thou art a noble man, of hye reputacyon and greate in thys cytie, hauynge sayre chyldren and brethrē. Come thou therfore fyrst, and fulfyll ỹ kynges cōmaundement, lyke as all the Heathen haue done, yee and the men of Juda, and soch as remayne at Jerusalem: so shalt thou and thy chyldren be in ỹ kynges fauoure & enryched with golde, syluer & greate rewardes.

Mathathias answered, and spake wyth a loude voyce. Though all nacyons obeye ỹ kyng Antiochus, and fal awaye euery man from kepynge the lawe of theyr fathers: though they consente to his cōmaundementes, yet will I and my sonnes & my brethrē, not fall from the lawe of oure fathers. God forbyd we shulde, that were not good for vs
*Actes.b.b *that we shulde forsake the lawe and ordinaunces of God, and to agre vnto the commaundemēt of kinge Antiochus. Therfore we wyl do no soch sacrifice, nether breake ỹ
*Deut.xiii.c statutes of oure lawe, *to go another waie. And when he had spoken these wordes, there came one of the Jewes, whych openly in the syght of al, dyd sacrifice vnto the Idols vpon the aulter in the cytie of Modyn, acordyng to the kynges commaundement.

C When Mathathias sawe thys, it greued hym at the herte, so that hys raynes shoke wythall, & hys wrath kyndled for very zele of the lawe. Wyth that, he start vp, & kylled the Jewe besyde the aulter: Yee & slewe the kynges commyssyoner, that compelled hym to do sacrifyce, ād destroyed the aulter *num.xxv.b at the same tyme: soch a zele had he vnto ỹ lawe of God *lyke as Phinehes dyd vnto zābri ỹ sonne of Salomi. And Mathathias cryed wyth a loude voyce thorow the cytie, sayenge: Whoso is feruent i the lawe, & wil
*ii.mac.b.c kepe the couenaūt, let him folowe me. * So he and his sonnes fled into the moūtaynes, & left all that euer they had i the cytie. Many other godly mē also departed ito ỹ wyldernesse wyth theyr chyldrē, theyr wyues & theyr catel, and remayned there: for ỹ tyrāny increased sore vpon them.

D Now when the kynges seruauntes, and the hoost, whych was at Jerusalem in ỹ cytie of Dauid herde, ỹ certayne men had broken the kynges commaundement, and were gone theyr waye to the wyldernesse into secrete places & that there were many departed after them: they folowed vpon them, to fyght agaynst them i the Sabbath daye, & sayde: wyll ye yet rebell? Get you hence, and do the cōmaundement of kyng Antiochus
*Josue.i.c & ye shall lyue. They answered: * We wyll not go forth, nether wyll we do the kynges cōmaūdemēt, to defyle the Sabbath daye. Then beganne they to fyght agaynst them, neuertheles they gaue thē none other answere, nether cast they one stone at thē, ner made fast theyr preuy places, but sayde: we wyll dye all in oure innocency, heauen and earth shall testyfie with vs, that ye put vs to death wrongeously. Thus they fought agaynst them vpon the Sabboth, ād slewe both men & catell, theyr wyues & their chyldren, to the nombre of a thousande people.

thys, they mourned for them tyght sore and sayde one to another: If so be that we all do as oure brethren haue done, & fyght not for oure lyues & for our lawes agaynst ỹ heathen: then shall they the sonner rote vs out of ỹ earth. So they concluded amonge thē selues at the same tyme, sayenge: what soeuer he be that commeth to make battayll wyth vs vpon the Sabbath daye, we wyll fyght agaynst hym, & not dye al, as oure brethren ỹ were murthured so haynously. Upō thys came the Synagoge of the Jewes vnto thē stronge men of Israel, all soch as were feruent i the lawe. And all they that were fled for persecucyon, came to helpe them, and to stande by them: In so moch that they gathered an hoost of men, and slewe the wycked doers in theyr gelousy, and the vngodly mē i theyr wrath. Some of the wycked fled vnto the heathen, and escaped.

Thus Mathathias & his frendes wente aboute, and destroyed the aulters, and circūcysed the chyldrē, that had not yet receaued circūcisyon: as many as they founde within the coostes of Israel: and folowed myghtely vpon the children of pryde, & this acte prospered i theyr handes: In so moch, that they kepte the law agaynst the power of the Gētiles & the kynges, and gaue not ouer theyr dompnion vnto wycked doers.

After thys when the tyme drewe on fast, F that Mathathias shulde dye, he sayde vnto hys sonnes: Now is pryde and persecucyon increased, now is the tyme of destruccyon & wrathfull displeasure: wherfore (O my sōnes) be ye feruent in the lawe, and ieoparde your lyues for the Testamēt of the fathers call to remēbraunce what actes our fathers dyd in theyr tyme, so shal ye receaue greate honoure and an euerlastynge name.

C The. lii. Chapter.

C Judas is made ruler ouer the Jewes. He kylleth Apollonius & Seron ỹ prince of Syria. The confidence of Judas towarde God. Judas determineth to fyght agaynst Lysias, whom Antiochus had made captayne ouer his host. The prayer of the ambassyners.

Josephus. viii. li. xii. an. When stode vp Judas Machabeus in his fathers steade, & all hys brethren helped hym: and so dyd all they that helde wyth hys father, & fought wyth cherefulnesse for Israell. So Judas gat hys people great honour: He put on a brest plate as a gyaunte, & arayed hym selfe with hys harnesse, and defended the hoste wyth hys swearde. In his actes he was lyke a Lyon, & as *Psal.xci.b a lyons whelpe roaringe at his praye. * He was an enempe to the wycked, & hunted thē
*ii.machab. viii.a out: *and brent vp those that vexed his people: So that hys enempes fled for feare of hym, & all the worckers of vngodlynes were put to trouble: soch lucke and prosperyte was in hys hāde. This greued diuerse kynges, but Jacob was greatly reioyced thorow his actes, and he gatt hym self a greate name for euer.

He wente thorow the cityes of Juda, destroyenge the vngodly out of them, turning awaye the wrath from Israell, and receauynge soch as were oppressed: and the fame of him wēte vnto the vttemost parte of the earth. Then Appollonius (a prynce of Syria) gathered a myghtye greate hoost of the heathē & out of Samaria, to fyght agaynst Israell. Whych when Judas perceaued, he wente forth to mete hym, fought wyth him, slewe him, and a great multitude with him, the remnaunt fled, & he toke their substaūce Judas also toke Appollonius awne swearde, and fought wyth it all hys lyfe longe.

Now whē Seron (another prince of Syria) herde saye, ỹ Judas had gathered vnto V him the congregacyon & church of the fayth full, he sayde: I will get me a name & a prayse thorow out ỹ realme: for I wyll go fyght with Judas, & them that are wyth hym, as many as haue despysed the kynges cōmaundement. So he made hym ready, and there wēte wyth him a greate myghtye hoost of ỹ vngodly, to stande by him, and to be auēged of the children of Israel. And when they came nye vnto Bethoron, Judas wente forth agaynst them wyth a small company. And when his people sawe soch a great goost before them, they sayde vnto Judas: How are we able (beinge so fewe) to fyght agaynst so great a multitude and so stronge, seinge we be so weery, and haue fasted all this daye?
*i.re.xiii *But Judas sayde: It is a small matter for many to be ouercome wt fewe: yee there is no differēce to the God of heauen, to deliuer by a greate multitude or by a small cōpany: * for ỹ victory of the battell standeth
*ii.pa.xx not in the multytude of the hoost, but the strength commeth from heauen. Beholde, they come against vs with a presumptuous and proude multitude, to destroye vs, oure C wyues and oure chyldren, and to robbe vs. But we will fight for oure lyues, & for oure lawes, & the Lorde hym selfe shall destroye them before oure face: therfore be not ye afrayed of them.

As soone as he had spoken these wordes, he leapte sodenly vpon thē. Thus was Seron smytten, and his hoost put to flight, and Judas folowed vpō them beyonde Bethoron vnto the playne felde: where there were slayne eyght hundreth men of them, and the residue fled into the lande of the Philystynes. Then all the heathē on euery syde were afrayed for Judas and his brethren: so that the rumoure of hym came vnto the kynges eares, for all the Gentyles coulde tell of the warres of Judas.

So when kynge Antiochus heare these D
tidynges, he was angry in his minde: wherfore he sente forth, and gathered an hoost of his whole realme, very stronge armyes: and opened hys treasury, and gaue hys hoost a yeares wagyes in hande, commaundynge them them to be ready at all tymes.

Neuertheleſſe when he ſawe, that there was not moneye ynough in his treaſuryes, and ꝑ thorow the diſcorde and perſecucyon, whych he made in the lande (to put downe the lawes that had bene of olde tymes) hys cuſtomes & trybutes of the lande were mynyſhed: he feared that he was not able for to beare the coſtes and charges any longer, nor to haue ſoch gyftes, to geue ſo liberally as he dyd afore, more then the kynges that were before hym.

Wherfore, he was heuy in his mynde, and *1. mac. bi. a thought *to go into Perſides, for to take tributes of the lande, & ſo to gather moch moneye. So he left Lyſias (a noble man of the kynges bloude) to ouerſe the kynges buſyneſſes, from the water Euphrates vnto the borders of Egypte: & to kepe well his ſonne Antiochus, tyll he came agayne.

E Moreouer, he gaue him half of his hooſt, and Elephantes, cõmytted vnto him euery thynge of hys mynde, concernynge thoſe whych dwelt in Juda and Jeruſalem: that he ſhulde ſende out an armye agaynſt them, to deſtroye and to rote out the power of Iſrael and the remnaunt of Jeruſalem: to put out their memorye all from that place, to ſet ſtraũgers for to inhabyt all theyr quarters, *Joſeph. cõ. and to parte theyr lande amonge thẽ: Thus lib. antiq. the kynge toke the other parte of the hooſt, and departed from Antioch (a cyte of hys realme) ouer the water of Euphrates, in the hũdreth and. xlvii. yeare, and went thorow the hye countrees.

*li. mach. viii. d *And Lyſias choſe vnto hym Ptolomy the ſonne of Dorimenus, Nicanor and Gorgias myghty men, and the kynges frendes. Theſe he ſent with. xl. thouſande fote men & .vii. thouſande horſmen, for to go into the lande of Juda & to deſtroye it, as the kynge commaunded. So they wẽte forth wyth all their power, and came to Emmaus into the plaine felde. When the marchauntes hearde the rumoure of them, they & theyr ſeruauntes toke very moch ſyluer & gold, for to bye the childrẽ of Iſrael to be their bonde men: There came vnto them alſo yet moo mẽ of warre on euery ſyde, out of Siria and from the Paleſtynes.

M Now when Judas & hys brethren ſawe ꝑ trouble increaſed, & that the hooſt drewnye vnto their borders cõſidering ꝑ kynges wordes which he commaunded vnto the people: namely, that they ſhulde vtterly waſte and deſtroye them: They ſayde one to another: Let vs redreſſe the decaye of oure people, let vs fyght for oure folke and for oure Sanctuary. Then the congregacyon were ſoone ready gathered to fyght, to prayre & to make ſupplicacyon vnto God for mercy & grace.

*1. mach. ſ. d *As for Jeruſalem, it laye voyde, & was as it had bene a wylderneſſe. There wente no man in nor out at it, and the Sanctuary was troden downe. The Iſraelites gathered them together, and came to Maſpha before Jeruſalem: for in Maſpha was ꝑ place *where they prayed *1. mac. bili afore tyme in Iſrael. So they faſted ꝑ daye & put ſackclothes vpõ them, caſt aſhes vpõ their heades, rẽte their clothes, & layde forth the bokes of the lawe (wherout the heathen ſought the lykeneſſe of theyr ymages) and brought ꝑ Prieſtes ornamẽtes, the fyrſtlinges & the tithes. ## ¶The. iiii. Chapter.

¶ Judas goeth agaynſt Gorgias which liethin wayte. He putteth Gorgias and his hooſt to flyght. Lyſias inuadeth Jewry, but Judas dryueth him oute. Judas purifyeth the temple and dedycateth the aultare.

Then toke Gorgyas fyue thouſand men of fote, and a thouſande of the beſt horſmen: & remoued by nyght, A Joſeph. lib. to come nye where the Jewes hooſt xii. cap. f. laye, & ſo to ſlaye them ſodenly. Now ꝑ men that kepte the caſtell, were the conueyers of them. Then aroſe Judas to ſmyte the cheke & principall of ꝑ kynges hooſt at Emmaus, for the army was not yet come together. In the meane ſeaſõ came Gorgias by nyght in to Judas to Judas tentes: & when he founde no man there, he ſought them in the mountaynes, & thought they had bene fled awaye, becauſe of hym. But when it was daye, Judas ſhewed hym ſelfe in the felde wyth thre thouſande men only, whych had nether harneſſe ner ſwerdes to their myndes.

But on the other ſyde, they ſawe that the Heathen were myghtie and well harneſſed, and their horſmẽ aboute them, and all theſe well experte in fettes of warre. Then ſayde Judas to the mẽ that were with him: Feare not ye the multitude of them, be not afrayed of their violente runnynge: remembre, how *Exo. xiiii. c oure fathers were delyuered * in the reed ſee, when Pharao folowed vpon them wyth a greate hoſt.

Euen ſo lett vs alſo crye now towarde heauen: and the Lord ſhall haue mercy vpon vs, and remembre the couenaunt of oure fathers, yee & deſtroye this Hoſt before oure face this daye: And all ꝑ heathen ſhall know, that it is God hym ſelfe, whych delyuereth and ſaueth Iſraell.

B Then the heathen lyft vp their eyes: and when they ſawe that they were commynge agaynſt them, they went out of their tentes into the battayll: and they that were wyth *li. mach. bili. d Judas, blewe vp the trompettes. *So they buckled together, and the heathen were diſcomfyted and fled ouer the playne felde: but the hynmoſt of them were ſlayne. For they folowed vpõ them vnto Aſſaremoth, and in to the feldes of Idumea towarde Azot and Jamnia: ſo that there were ſlayne of them vpon a thre thouſande men. So Judas turned agayne wyth his Hoſte, and ſayde vnto the people: Be not gredy of the ſpoyles, we haue yet a battayll to fyght: for Gorgias & hys hoſt are here by vs in the mountaynes, but ſtande ye faſt agaynſt oure enemyes, & ouercome them: then maye ye ſafely take ꝑ ſpoyles.

C As Judas was ſpeakyng theſe wordes, beholde there appeared one parte of thẽ vpõ the mount. But whan Gorgias ſawe that they of hys partye were fled, and the tentes brent vp (for by the ſmoke they myght vnderſtãde what was done) they perceaupnge this, were very ſore afrayed: and when they ſawe alſo that Judas and hys hooſt were in the felde ready to ſtrike battayll, they fled euerychone into the lande of the heathen.

So Judas turned agayne to ſpoyle the tentes, where they gatt moch golde and ſyluer, precious ſtones, purple & greate ryches. Thus they went home, and ſonge a Pſalme of thankeſgeuinge, and prayſed God in hea- *Pſal. cvii. a uen: *for he is gracyous, & hys mercy endu- Pſa. cxvii. a reth for euer: And ſo Iſrael had a greate victory in that daye.

Now all the Heathen that eſcaped, came and tolde Lyſias euery thinge as it happened. Wherfore Lyſias was ſore afrayed, & greued in his mynde, becauſe Iſrael had not gotten ſoch myſfortune as he wolde they ſhulde, nether as ꝑ kyng commaunded. The nexte yeare folowing, gathered Lyſias thre ſcore thouſande choſen men of fote, and fyue thouſande horſmen, to fyght agaynſt them.

So they came into Jewry, and pytched D their tẽtes at Bethoron, where Judas came agaynſt them with ten thouſande mẽ. And whẽ he ſawe ſo great & myghtie an hooſt, he made his prayer and ſayde: Bleſſed be thou (O Saupoure of Iſraell) *whych dyddeſt *1. re. xvii deſtroye ꝑ violent power of the gyaunte, in the hande of thy ſeruaunt Dauid, *and ga- *1. re. xiiii ueſt the hooſt of the Heathen into the hande of Jonathas (the ſonne of Saul) and of hys weapen bearer.

Put thys hooſt now into the hãde of thy people of Iſraell, and let them be confounded in their multitude and horſmen. Make them afrayed, & dyſcomforte the boldnes of their ſtrẽgth, that they maye be moued thorow their deſtrucciõ. Caſt them downe thorow the ſwearde of thy louers, then ſhal all they that know thy name, prayſe the wyth thankeſgeuynge.

So they ſtroke the batell, and there were ſlayne of Lyſias hooſt, fyue thouſande men. Then Lyſias ſeynge the dyſcomfetynge of hys men, and the manlyneſſe of the Jewes, how they were ready, ether to lyue or to dye lyke men: he wẽte vnto Antyoche, and choſe out men of warre: that whan they were gathered together, they might come agayne into Jewry. Then ſayd Judas and his brethren: behold, our enemyes are diſcomfyted: Let vs now go vp, to clenſe and to repayre the Sanctuary.

*Upon thys, all the hooſt gathered them *1. mach. together, and wente vp into mount Syon. E iii. Now whan they ſawe the Sãctuary layed waſte, ꝑ aulter defyled, the dores brẽt vp, ꝑ chrubbes growinge in the courtes, like as in a wod or vpon mountaynes, yee & ꝑ the prieſtes Celles were broken downe: They rente their clothes, made great lamentacion, caſt aſhes vpon their heades, fell downe flat to the grounde, made a greate noyſe wyth the trompettes, and cryed towarde heauen.

Then Judas apoynted certayne men to fyght agaynſt thoſe which were in ꝑ caſtell tyll they had clenſed the Sanctuary. So he choſe prieſtes ꝑ were vndefyled, ſoch as had pleaſure in the lawe of God: and they clenſed the Sanctuary, and bare out the defiled ſtones into an vncleane place. And for ſo moch as the aulter of burnt offerynges was vnhalowed, he toke aduyſement, what he myght do wyth all: ſo he thought it was beſt to deſtroye it (leſt it ſhulde happẽ to do thẽ eny ſhame).

*Erod.xx.d Deu.xxvii.e. Iosue.viii.g

*So they toke whole stones accordinge to ꝑ lawe, & buylded a new aulter soch one as was before, & made vp ꝑ Sanctuary wythin & without; & halowed ꝑ house & the courtes. They made new ornamentes, & brought the candilsticke, the aulter of incense, & the table in to the tẽple. The incense layed they vpon the aulter, & lyghted the lampes whych were vpõ ꝑ candilsticke, ꝑ they myght burne in the tẽple. They set the shewbred vpon the table, & hanged vp the vayle, and set vp the tẽple, as it was afore. *And vpon ꝑ .xxv. daye of the ix. moneth, whych is called ꝑ moneth of Casleu, in ꝑ. Cxlviii. yeare: they rose vp by tymes in the mornynge for to do sacrifice (accordige to the lawe) vpõ the new burnt offrynge aulter that they had made: after the tyme and season that the heathen had defyled it. The same daye was it set vp agayne, with songes, pypes, harpes and cymbales.

And all the people fell vpon theyr faces, worshippynge & thãckyng ꝑ God of heauẽ, which had geuen thẽ the victory. *So they kepte the dedicaciõ of the aulter. viii. dayes, offrynge burnt sacrifyces & thankoffringes with gladnesse. They decked the temple also w̃ crownes & shildes of gold, & halowed the portes & celles & hãged dores vpõ thẽ. Thus there was very great gladnes amõge ꝑ people, because the blasphemy of ꝑ heathẽ was put awaye. ## C The. v. Chapter.

C Judas hauynge vanquished the heathen that go aboute to destroye Israel, & is holpen of his brethren Simon & Jonathas. He ouer throweth ꝑ citye of Ephron, because they denyed hym passage thorow it.

IT happened also ꝑ whan the heathen rounde about herd, how that the aulter & the Sanctuary were sett vpi their olde estate: it displeased them very sore, wherfore they thought to destroye ꝑ generacion of Jacob that was amõge them: In so moch that they beganne to slaye and to persecute certayne of ꝑ people. *Then Judas fought agaynst the chyldren of Esau in Idumea, and agaynst those which were at Arabathane (for they dwelt rounde aboute the Israelites) where he slew and spoyled a greate multitude of them. He thought also vpon the malice and vnkaythfulnes of ꝑ childzen of Bean, how they were a snare and stoppe vnto the people, and how they layed wayte for them in the hye waye: wherfore he shut them vp in to towers, and came vnto them, destroyed them vtterly, and brent vp theyr towres, wyth all that were in them.

*Exod.xxv.c and.xxvi.a. ii.mach.x.c

Afterwarde wente he agaynst the chyldren of Ammon, wherof he founde a myghtye power & a greate multytude of people, with Timothy ther captayne. So he stroke many battayls with them, whych were dystroyed before him. And when he had slayne them, he wanne Gazer the cytye, wyth the townes belongynge therto, and so turned agayne into Jewry. The heathen also in Galaad gathered thẽ together, agaynst the Israelites that were in their quarters, to slaye thẽ: but they fled to the castell of Dathemã, and sent letters vnto Judas & hys brethren sayinge: The heathen are gathered agaynst B vs on euery syde, to destroye vs, & now they make them for to come, and laye sege to the castell, wherunto we are fled, and Timothy is the captayne of their host: come therfore, and delyuer vs out of their handes: for there is a greate multitude of vs slayne all ready. Yee and oure brethren that were at Tubin, are slayne & destroyed (well nye a thousande men) and theyr wyues, theyr chyldren and theyr goodes haue the enemyes led awaye captyue.

*ii. Machab. viii.c

Whyle these letters were yet a readynge, beholde, there came other messaũgers from Galilee, with rõte clothes: which tolde euen the same tydynges, and sayde, that they of Ptolomays, of Tyrus and of Sydon were gathered agaynst thẽ, and that all Galilee was filled with enemyes to destroye Israel *Whẽ Judas & the people herde thys, they came together (a greate cõgregacion) to deuyse, what they myght do for theyr brethrẽ, that were in trouble & beseged of theyr enemyes, And Judas sayd vnto Simõ hys brother: chose the out certaine men, and go deliuer thy brethren in Galilee: As for me & my brother Jonathas, we will go into Galaadithim. So he left Josephus the sonne of Zacharyy, and Azarias to be Captaynes of the people, and to kepe the remnaunt of the host in Jewry, and commaunded them, sayinge: Take the ouersyght of thys people, and se ꝑ ye make no warre agaynst the heathen, vntyll the time that we come agayne. And vnto Symon he gaue thre thousande men, for to go into Galilee, but Judas hym selfe had eyght eyght thousande in Galaaditthim.

C Then wente Symon into Galilee, & stroke diuerse batelles wyth ꝑ heathen: whom he discomfyted, and folowed vpon thẽ vnto ꝑ porte of Ptolomais. And there were slaine of the heathen all most. iii. thousande men. So he toke the spoyles of them, and caryed awaye the Israelites, that were in Galilee and Arbatis, wyth theyr wyues, theyr chyldren and all that they had, & brought them in to Jewry wyth greate gladnesse. Judas Machabeus also and his brother Jonathas wente ouer Jordane, ãd trauayled. iii. dayes iourney in the wyldernesse: Where the Nebuthees met them, and receaued them louingly, and tolde them euery thynge that had happened vnto theyr brethren in Galaaditthim, and how that many of them were beseged in Barasa, Boser, Alimis, Casphor, Mageth and Carnaim (all these are stronge walled and myghtie greate cities) and that they were kepte in other cytyes of Galaad also: & to morow they are apointed to brynge their host vnto these cyties, to take them, & to wynne them in one daye.

So Judas and his host turned in all the haste in the wildernesse towarde Bosor, and wãne the cytie, slewe all the males with the swearde, toke all their goodes, and sett fyre vpon the cytie. And in the nyght they toke their iourneye from thence, and came to the castell: And by tymes in the mornynge whẽ they loked vp, beholde, there was an innumerable people bearynge ladders and other instrumentes of warre, to take ꝑ castell and to ouercome them.

When Judas sawe that the battayll beganne, and that the noyse therof wente vp & range in to the heauen, and that there was so greate a crye in ꝑ cytie: he sayd vnto hys host: fyght this daye for your brethren. And so came behynde their enemyes in thre companyes, and blewe vp the trompettes, and cryed in their prayer to God.

But as soone as Timothes host perceaued ꝑ Machabeus was there, they fled from him, and the other slewe them downe ryght sore: so ꝑ there were kylled of them the same daye, almost eyght thousande mẽ. Then departed Judas vnto Malpha, layed sege vnto it, and wanne it, slewe all the males in it, spoyled it, and set fyre vpõ it. From thence wẽte he and toke Casbon, Mageth, Bosor, and the other cytyes in Galaad.

D *ii.mach.x.d *After thys gathered Timothy another hoste, which pitched their tẽtes before Raphon beyonde the water. Judas also sent to spye the hoste, & they brought him worde agayne, sayinge: All the heathen that be rounde aboute vs, are gathered vnto him, and the hoost is very great: Yee they haue hyred the Arabians to helpe them, & haue pitched their tentes beyonde the water, and are redy to come & fyght agaynst the. So Judas wente on to mete them.

And Timothy sayd vnto the captaynes of hys hoost: when Judas & hys hoost come nye the ryuer: yf he go ouer fyrst, we shal not be able to withstãde him: for why? he wil be to stronge for vs. But yf he darre not come ouer, so that he pitch his tente beyõde ꝑ water: thẽ will we go ouer, for we shalbe strõge ynough agaynst him. Now as soone as Judas came to ꝑ ryuer, he appoynted certayne scribes of the people, & commaunded them, sayenge: se that ye leaue none behinde vpon this syde of the ryuer, but let euery mã come to the battayll. So he wente fyrst ouer vnto them and his people after him.

And all the heathen were dyscomfyted before him, and let their weapens fal, & rãne into ꝑ tẽple that was at Carnaim. Whych cytye Judas wanne, and brent the temple with all that were in it: So was Carnaim subdued, and myght not withstãde Judas. Then Judas gathered all ꝑ Israelites that were in Galaadythim, from the lest vnto ꝑ most, wyth theyr wyues and theyr chyldren (a very greate hoost) for to come into ꝑ lande of Israell.

*So they came vnto Ephrõ, which was E a myghtie, greate and strõge cytye, and laye *ii.mac.xii.e in their waye. For they coulde not go by it, nether of the ryght hande ner of the left, but must goo thorow it. Neuertheless they that were i ꝑ cytye, wolde not let thẽ go thorow, but walled vp the portes with stones. And Judas sent vnto them w̃ peaceable wordes sayinge: Lett vs passe thorow youre land, ꝑ we maye goo into oure awne countre: there shall no body do you harme, we will but only go thorow on fote. But they wolde not let them in.

Wherfore Judas commaunded a proclamacyon to be made thorow oute the hoste, that euery man shulde kepe his ordre: and so they dyd their best lyke valeaunt men.

And Judas beseged ꝑ cytie all that daye and all that nyght, and so wanne it: where they slewe as many as were males, and destroyed the cytye, and spoyled it, and wente thorow all the citye ouer thẽ ꝑ were slayne. Then wẽt they ouer Jordane in to ꝑ playne felde before Bethsã. And Judas helped those forwarde ꝑ cã behynde, and gaue the people good erhortacyõ all ꝑ waye thorow, tyll they were come into ꝑ lande of Juda. Thus they wente vp vnto the mount Syon, where they offred w̃ myrth* & thãckesgeuynge: *ii.par.xv. because there were none of them slayne, but came home agayne peaceably.

Now what tyme as Judas & Jonathas were in the lande of Galaad, and Symon ther brother in Galilee before Ptolomays:

Then

Then Josephus ꝑ sonne of zacharp and Asaryas the captaynes, hearinge of the actes that were done and of the battels that were stroken, sayde: Lett vs get vs a name also, and go fyght agaynst the Heathen that are rounde aboute vs.

¶ So they gaue theyr hoost a commaũdement, and wente towarde Jamnya. Then came Gozgyas & his men out of the citie, to fyght agaynst them: Josephus also & Asaryas were chased vnto ꝑ bozders of Jewry, & there were slayne that daye of the people of Jsrael .ii. M. men: so ꝑ there was a great Neuertheles they came not of the sede of these men, by whom Jsraell was helped. But the mẽ that were with Judas, were greatly commended in the syght of all Jsraell and all Heathẽ, where so euer theyr name was herde vpõ, & the people came vnto them, byddynge them welcome.

After thys wente Judas forth wyth hys bzethren, and fought agaynst the childzẽ of Esau, in the lande ꝑ lyeth towarde the south where he wanne the citye of Hebzon and the townes that lye besyde it: & as for ꝑ walles and towzes rounde aboute it, he bzent them vp. Then remoued he to go into the lãde of the Philistines, and wente thozow Samaria. At the same tyme were there many pzestes slayne in the battayll, whych wylfully and without adupsement wente out for to fyght to get thẽ honoure. And when Judas

¶ The .vi. Chapter.

¶ Antiochus wyllinge to take the citye of Elymas for a praye is dryuen awaye of the citezyns. He falleth into syckenes & dyeth. His sonne Antiochus is made kynge. The besege of ꝑ tower of Syon. Eupator commeth into Jewry wyth a great armye. The boldnesse of Eleazar.

A Joseph.ca.riii. lib.xii.antiq. NOw when kynge Antiochus trauayled thozow the hye countrees, he herde ꝑ Elymas in Persia was a noble & plenteous citye in syluer & gold, & that there was in it a very riche tẽple: where as were clothes, cote armoures & shyldes of golde, whych Alexãder the sonne of Philippe kyng of Macedonia (that raygned fyrst in Gzeke londe) had left behynde hym. Wherfore he wente about to take the citye & to spoyle it, but he was not able: for the citezyns were warned of it, & fought wt him. And so he fled & departed wyth greate heuynesse, and came agayne into Babylon. Moreouer there came one whych brought
* 1. Macha. iii.e.f.iiii him tydynges in Perside, *that his hoostes which were in the lande of Juda, where dryuen awaye, and how that Lysias wẽt forth fyrst wyth a greate power, & was dryuen awaye of the Jewes: how ꝑ they had wonne the victory, & gotten greate goodes out of the hoostes ꝑ perished: how they had broken downe the abhominacyõ, * whych he set vp *1. macha.i vpõ the altare at Jerusalem, and fenced the Sãctuary with hye walles, lyke as it was afore: yee and Bethsura hys cite also.

So it chaunced, that when the kynge had B herde these wordes, he was afraped and greued very sore. Wherfore he layed him downe vpon his bed, and fell sicke for very sorowe: ãd all because it had not happened as he had deuised. And there contynued he longe, for hys greke was euer, more & more, so that he saw he must nedes dye. Therfore he sent for his frendes, & sayde vnto thẽ: the slepe is gone fro myne eyes, for the very sorow and veracyon of herte that I haue. For when I cõsidre in my mynde the greate aduersyte ꝑ I am come vnto, & the floudes of heupnesse which I am come in, where as afore tyme I was so mery, & so greatly set by (by reason of my power) Agayne, consyderinge ꝑ euell ꝑ I haue done at Jerusalem, fro whence I toke all ꝑ ryches of golde & syluer ꝑ were in it, and sent to fetch awaye the inhabytours of Jewry wythout any reason why: I knowe, ꝑ these troubles are come vpon me for ꝑ same cause. And beholde, I must dye wyth greate sorow in a straũge lande. Thẽ called he for one Philippe a frende of his, whom he made ruler of all his realme, & gaue him the crowne, his roabe & his ryng: ꝑ he shulde take his sonne Antiochus vnto him, & bzynge hym vp, tyll he myght raygne hi self. * So *ii. Macha. ix.a.b.c.d. the kyng Antiochus dyed there, in the .cxlix. C peare. When Lysias knewe that the kynge was deed, he ordened Antiochus hys sonne. *Josep.lib. xiiii.cap. iii.macha.iiii.d (*whõ he had bzought vp) to raygne in his fathers steade, & called hym Eupator. Now they that were in the castell (at Jerusalem) kepte in the Jewes rounde about the Sanctuary, & sought euer styll to do them harme for the strengthenynge of the Heathen.

Wherfore Judas thought to destroye thẽ, and called all the people together, that they might laye sege vnto thẽ. So they came together in the .Cl. peare, & besieged them, layinge forth theyr ordinaũce and instrumẽtes of warre. Then certayne of them that were beseged, wente forth (vnto whom some vngodly mẽ of Jsrael ioyned them selues also) and wẽt vnto the kyng, sayinge: How lõge wyll it be, or thou punysh and auenge oure bzethren? We haue euer bene mynded to do thy father serupce, to walke in hys statutes, and to obeye his commaundementes. Therfore oure people fell from vs, and whereloeuer they founde any of vs, they slewe them: (and spoyled oure enheritaunce) and they haue not only medled wyth vs, but wyth all oure countrees: and beholde, thys daye are they besegynge the castell at Jerusalẽ, *and *1. macha. iii.f. haue made vp the strõge holde in Bethsura: And yf thou doest not pzeuente them rpght soone, they wyll do more then these, & thou shall not be able to ouercome them.

D *When ꝑ kyng herde thys, he was very *ii. macha. viii.d angrye, and called all hys frendes, the captaynes of hys fote men. and of all his horsemen together. He hyred men of warre also out of other realmes & out of the Iles of the see, which came vnto hym. And the nõbre of hys Host was an hundreth thousande fote men, & twentye thousande horsmẽ, & .xxxii. *1. mach. iiii & and. bi.f. Elephãtes wel exercised to battaill. *These ame thorow Idumea vnto Bethsura, & besieged it a longe season, and made dyuerse instrumẽtes of warre agaynst it. But ꝑ Jewes came out ãd bzent thẽ, and fought lyke men. Then departed Judas frõ the castell at Jerusalẽ, & remoued ꝑ host toward Bethzacaran ouer agaynst the kynges armye.

So the kynge arose before the daye, and E bzought the power of hys host into ꝑ waye to Bethzacaran, where ꝑ hostes made thẽ to ꝑ battayll, blowynge the trõpettes. And to pzouoke the Elephãtes for to fight, they shewed them the sappe of reed grapes & mol beries. And deuided the Elephãtes amonge the Hoste: so ꝑ by euery Elephante there stode a. M. men well harnessed, & helmettes of stele vpon theyr heades: Yee vnto euery one of the Elephantes also, were ordened .v. C. horsmen of the best, which wayted of the Elephante, goynge where so euer he wẽte, and departed not from hym. Euery Elephant was couered with a stronge tower of wod, where vpon were .xxxii. valeaunte mẽ with weapens to fight, and within was a man of Jnde to rule the beest.

As for the remnaunt of the horsmen, he sett them vpõ both the sydes in two partes with trompettes, to pzouoke the Hoste, ãd to stere vp soch as were slowe in the armye. And when the sunne shone vpõ their shildes of golde and stele, the mountaynes glistered agayne at them, and were as bzight as the cressettes of fyre. The kinges hoost also was deuyded, one parte vpon the hye mountaynes, the other lowe beneth: so they went on, takynge good hede, and keppnge theyr ordre. And all they that dwelt in the lãde, were afrayed at the noyse of their hoost, when the multitude wente forth, & when the weapens smote together, for the hoost was both great & myghty. Judas also & hys hoost entred into the batayll, & slew .vi. C. mẽ of the kynges armye. Now when Eleasar ꝑ sonne of Saura dyd se one of ꝑ Elephantes decke wt the Kynges badge, & was a more goodly beast thẽ the other: he thought ꝑ kyng shuld be vpõ him, & leoparde hi self to delyuer hys people, and to gett hym a perpetuall name.

Wherfore he ranne with a corage vnto the Elephãte in ꝑ middest of the hoost, smytynge thẽ do.one of both ꝑ sydes, & slewe many aboute him. So wente he to the Elephãtes kete, & gat him vnder him, & slewe hym: then fell the Elephant downe vpõ him, & there he dyed. Judas also & his men seing ꝑ power of the kyng & the mightye violẽce of his hoost, departed frõ them. And ꝑ kinges armye wẽte vp agaynst thẽ towarde Jerusalẽ, & pitched their tẽtes in Jewry besyde mount Sion. Moreouer, the kynge toke truse with them F that were in * Bethsura. *1. Macha. iii.bi.d. ii. Mach. xi. e.xb.d.

But when they came out of the cyte (because they had no victales within, & the lãde laye vntilled) the kyng toke bethsura, & set mẽ to kepe it, & turned his hoost to the place of the Sanctuary, & layed siege to it a greate whyle. Where he made al maner ordinaũce: handbowes, fyrie dartes, rackettes to cast stones, scorpiõs to shote arowes, & slynges. The Jewes also made ordinaunce agaynst theirs, and fought a longe season.

But in the cyte there were no vytaples, for it was the seuenth yeare of the warres, & those Heathen ꝑ remayned in Jewry, had eaten vp all their store. And in the Sanctuary were few mẽ lefte, for ꝑ hunger came so vpõ thẽ, that they were scatered abzoade euery man to hys owne place.

So when Lysias hearde that Philyp (*whõ Antiochus the kynge whyle he was *1. Macha. vi.b. yet lyuynge had ordened to bzynge vp Antiochus his sonne, that he myght be kynge) was come agayne out of Persia & Medea with the kinges hoost, & thought to optaine the kyngdome. He gat him to the kyng in all the haste, & to the captaynes of the hoost, & G sayde: we decrease dayly, & oure vytales are but small: Agayne, the place that we laye sege vnto, is very strõg, & it were oure parte to se for the realme. Let vs agre wyth these men, and take truce with them, and with all theyr people, ãd graunte them to lyue after theyr lawe, as they dyd afore. For they be greued & do all these thinges agaynst vs, because we haue desyred theyr lawe. So the kynge and the pzynces were content, & sent vnto them to make peace, & they receaued it. Now whẽ the kyng & the pzinces had made an othe vnto thẽ, they came out of ꝑ castell, and the kynge wente vp to mount Syon. But when he sawe that the place was well fenced, he brake the othe that he had made, & commaunded to destroye the wall rounde aboute. Then departed he in all the haste, and returned vnto Antioche, where he founde Philippe hauyng dominion of the citie. So he fought agaynst hym, and toke the cirye agayne into hys handes.

¶ The. vii. Chapter.

¶ Demetrius raygneth after he had killed Antiochus & Lysias. He troubleth the childzen of Israel thozow ꝑ councell of certen wycked persones. The prayer of ꝑ Prestes against Nicanoz. Judas killeth Nicanoz, after he had made hys prayer.

A IN the. Cli. yeare came Demetrius the sonne of Seleucus from the cytie of Rome wyth a small cõpany of men, vnto a citie of the see coast, & there he bare rule. And it chaunced, ꝑ whẽ he came to Antioche the citie of his Progenitours, his host toke Antiochus & Lysias, to bryngе them vnto him. But whẽ it was tolde hym, he sayd: let me not se theyr faces: So the hoost put them to death. Now when Demetrius was set vpon the trone of hys kyngdome, there came vnto hym wycked & vngodly mẽ of Israel: whose captayne was Alcimus, that wolde haue bene made hye preste: These men accused ꝑ people of Israel vnto the kynge, sayinge: Judas & hys brethren haue slayne thy frẽdes, and dryuen vs out of oure awne lãde. Wherfoze, sende now some man (to whom thou geuest credence) that he maye go and se all the destruccyon, which he hath done vnto vs & to the kynges lande, and lett him be punished with all hys frendes and fauourers.

B Then the kynge chose Bachides a frende of his, which was a man of greate power in the realme (beyonde the greate water) and kaythfull vnto the kynge: and sent him to se the destruccyon that Judas had done. And as foz that wycked Alcimus, he made hym hye prest, and commaunded hym to be auenged of the childzen of Israell. So they stode vp, and came wyth a greate hoost into the lande of Juda, sendynge messaungers to Judas & hys brethren, & speakyng vnto them wyth peaceable wozdes: but vnder disceate.

*1. Mach. 7. b *Therfoze Judas & hys people beleued not theyr saying, foz they sawe that they were come with a greate Hoost.

After this came the scribes together vnto Alcimus & Bachides, truskinge the best vnto them. And fyrst the Assideans requyred peace of thẽ, sayinge: Alcimus the preste is come of the sede of Aarõ, how can he disceaue vs? So they gaue thẽ louynge wozdes, & swoze vnto them, & sayde: we wyll do you no harme: nether your frẽdes: & they beleued them. But the very same daye toke they. lx. men of them & slewe them accozdyng to the

* Ps. lxxix. a wozdes that are wzytten: * They haue cast the flesh of thy saynctes, & shed their bloude

C roũde about Jerusalem, & there was no mã ꝑ wolde bury them. So there came a greate feare and dzede amõge the people, sayenge: there is nether treuth noz ryghteousnesse in thẽ, foz they haue broken the appoyntement and othe ꝑ they made. And Bachides remoued his hoost from Jerusalem, and pytched his tente at Bethzecha: where he sent forth, & toke many of them that had forsaken hym: He slewe many of the people also, and cast them into a greate pytt. Then commytted he the lande vnto Alcimus, and left men of warre wyth hym to helpe hym, & Bachides him self wẽte vnto the kyng. And thus Alcimus defended his hye prestehode: & all soch as vexed Israell reloyted vnto hym: In so moche that they optayned the lande of Juda, and dydmoch euell vnto the Israelites.

Now when Judas sawe all the myschefe that Alcimus and his cõpany had done (yee moze then the heathen thẽ selues) vnto the Israelites: He wente fozth roũde about all the bozders of Jewry, and punyshed those vnkaythfull rennagates, so that they came nomoze out into the countre. So when Alcimus sawe, that Judas and his people had gotten the vpperhãde, and that he was not able to abyde them: he wente agayne to the kynge, and sayde all the wozst of them that he coulde. Then the kyng sent Nicanoz, one of hys chefe prynces (whych bare euell wyll vnto Israel) and commaunded him, that he shulde vtterly destroye the people.

D * So Nicanoz came to Jerusalem with a greate goost, and sent vnto Judas and his brethren wyth frendly wozdes (but vnder disceate) sayẽge: there shall be no warre betwixte me & you: I wyll come wyth a fewe men, to se how ye do, wyth frẽdshype. Upon this he came vnto Judas, and they saluted one another peaceably: but ꝑ enemyes were appoynted to take Judas by violence. Neuertheles it was tolde Judas, that he came vnto hym but vnder disceate: wherfoze he gat hym awaye from him, and wolde se hys face nomoze. Whẽ Nicanoz perceaued that hys councell was bewzayed, he went out to fight agaynst Judas, belyde Capharsamala: where there were slayne of Nicanozs hoost. v. M. men: and the resydue fled vnto the castell of Dauid.

* 1. Mach. 7. d

After this came Nicanoz vp vnto mount Syon: and the prestes with the elders of the people wẽte fozth to salute hym peaceably, & to shewe hym the burntsacrifices that were offered foz the kyng. But he laughed thẽ and ꝑ people to scozne, mocked them, defiled their offeringes, & spake disdaynefully, yee

E and swoze in hys wzoth, sayenge: * If Judas and hys hoost be not delyuered now into my hãdes, as soone as euer I come agayne (& fare well) I shall burne vp thys house. With that, wente he out in a greate anger. Then the prestes came in, and stode befoze the aulter of the temple, weppynge & sayẽge.

* 1. Mach. 7. e

When Nicanoz was gone from Jerusalem, he pitched his tente at Bethozon, and there an hoost met hym out of Syria. And Judas came to Adarsa with thze thousãde men, & made his prayer vnto God, sayeng:

And so the hoostes stroke the felde, the thyrtene daye of the monethe * Adar: and Nicanozs hoost was dysconfited, * and he him self was fyrst slayne in the battaylle. So ꝑ Jewes came fozth of all ꝑ townes there aboute, and blewe out theyr hoznes vpon them, and turned agaynst them. Thus were they all slayne, and not one of them lefte.

Then they toke theyr substaunce foz a pray, and smote of Nicanozs heade and his ryght hande (* which he helde vp so proudly) and brought it with them, & hãged it vp afoze Jerusalẽ. Wherfoze, the people were exceadyngly reioysed, and passed ouer that day in greate gladnesse. And Judas ordeyned, that ꝑ same daye (namely ꝑ thyrtynth daye of the moneth Adar) shulde be kepte in myrth euery yeare. Thus the lãde of Juda was in rest a lytle whyle.

¶ The. viii. Chapter.

¶ Judas consyderyng the power and godly pollycye of the Romaynes maketh peace with them. The reserype of the Romaynes sent vnto the Jewes.

A JUdas heard also the fame of the Romaynes, that they were myghtye & valeaunt men, & agreable to all thynges ꝑ are required of them, & make peace vnto al men, which come vnto them, and how they were doughty men of strẽgth. Belydes ꝑ it was tolde him of theyr battaylles, and noble actes which they dyd in Galacia, how they had conquered them, and brought them vnder tribute: and what great thynges they had done in Spayne, how that vnto theyr wysdome & sober behauour they had wonne ꝑ Mynes of syluer & gold ꝑ are there, & optayned all ꝑ lãde, with other places farre from them: how they had discomfyted & slayne downe ꝑ kynges ꝑ came vpon them, from the vttermost parte of ꝑ earth, and how other people gaue thẽ tribute euery yeare. How they had slayne & ouercome Philip and Perses kynges of Cethim, & other mo (in battaylle) which had brought theyr ordynaũce agaynst thẽ: how they discõfyted great Antiochus kyng of Asia (that wolde nedes fyght wt them) haupnge an hundzed & twenty Elephãtes, with hozsemen, charettes, and a very great hoost: how they toke hym selfe alyue, & ordeyned hym (with soch as shuld raygne after him) to paye thẽ a greate trybute. * yee, and to fynde them good suertyes & pledge: belydes all thys, how they had taken from hym India, Media, and Lydia (his best lãdes) and geuen them to kynge Eumenus. Agayne, how they perceauyng ꝑ the Grekes were cõmynge to vexe thẽ: sent agaynst thẽ a captayne of an hoost, which gaue thẽ battaylle, slewe many of them, led awaye theyr wyues and chyldzen captyue, spoyled thẽ, toke possessyon of theyr lande, destroyed theyr stronge holdes, and subdued them to be theyr bonde men, vnto thys daye. Moreouer, how that as foz other kyngdomes and Iles, which somtyme withstode them, they destroyed them, and brought them vnder theyr dominyon. But helped euer theyr awne frendes and those that where confederat with them, and conquered kyngdomes both farre and nye: & that whosoeuer herde of theyr renowne, was afrayed of them: foz whom they wold help to their kyngdomes, those raygned: & whom it lyked not them to raygne, they put him downe. And how they were come to greate preeminence: haupnge no kynge among them, nether eny man clothed in purple, to be magnifyed there thorow, but had ordeyned them selues a perlamẽt, where in there sat thze hundzed & twenty Senatours daylye vpon the councell, to dyspatch euer ꝑ busynesse of the people, & to kepe good ordze. And how that euery yeare they chose a Wayze, to haue ꝑ gouernaunce of all theyr land: to whom euery man was obedient, & there was nether euell wyll ner discencyon amonge them.

* 1. Mach. 8. a

C Then Judas chose Eupolemus ꝑ sonne of Jhon the sonne of Jacob, and Jason the sonne of Eleazar, & sent them vnto Rome foz to make frendshyppe and a bõde of loue with them: that they myght take frõ them the bõdage of ꝑ Grekes, foz ꝑ Jewes sawe, that the Grekes wolde subdue ꝑ kyngdome of Israel. So they went vnto Rome (a very greate iourney) & came into ꝑ perlamẽt, and sayd: Judas Machabeus with his brethren and ꝑ people of ꝑ Jewes hath sent vs vnto you, to make a bõde of frẽdshyppe and peace wt you, & ye to note vs as your louers and frendes. And ꝑ matter pleased the Romaynes right wel, wherfore it was written vp: of the whych ꝑ Romaynes made a wrytynge in tables of brasse, and sent it to Jerusalem: that they myght haue by them a memoriall of the same peace & bonde of frendshyp after this maner. God saue ꝑ Romaynes and the people of the Jewes both by see and by land, and kepe the sweard and enemy frō thē for euermore. If there come first eny warre vpon the Romaynes or eny of theyr frēdes thorow out all theyr dominyon, the people of the Jewes shall help them (as the tyme requyreth) & that wt all theyr hertes. Also they shall nether geue nor sende vnto theyr enemyes vitayles, weapens, moneyner shyppes: but fulfyll this charge at ꝑ Romaynes pleasure, & take nothyng frō them therfore. Agayne yf the people of ꝑ Jewes happen fyrst to haue warre, the Romaynes shal stāde by them wt a good wyll, accordynge as ꝑ tyme wyll suffre. Nether shall they geue vnto ꝑ Jewes enemyes, vytales, weapens, moneyner shyppes. Thus are the Romaynes cōtent to do, and shall fulfyll their charge without eny discreate.

D Accordyng to these articles, the Romaynes made the bonde with the Jewes. Now after these articles (sayde they) yf eny of the parties wyll put to thē, or take eny thynge from them: they shall do it wt the consent of both: & what soeuer they adde vnto them or take from them, it shall stande fast. And as touchyng ꝑ euell that Demetrius hath done vnto the Jewes, we haue written vnto hym, sayenge: wherfore layest ā thy heuy yocke vpon ꝑ Jewes oure frendes & louers: If they make eny cōplaynte of the agayne vnto vs, we shall defende them, and fyght with the by see and by lande.

¶ The.ix. Chapter.

¶ After the deeth of Nycanor. Demetrius sendeth his armye agaynst Judas. Judas is slayne. Jonathas is put in the stede of hys brother. The stryfe betwene Jonathas and Bachydes. Alcymus is taken with the palsye and dyeth. Bachydes returneth agayne into the kyng. He cometh vpon Jonathas by the councell of certayn wycked persounes, and is ouercome. The truce of Jonathas with Bachydes.

IN the meane season whē Demetrius herde that * Nicanor and hys hoost was slayne in the felde, he proceded further to sēde Bachydes and Alcymus agayne into Jewry, & those that were in the fyght wynge of his hoost, with them. So they went forth by the waye ꝑ leadeth vnto Galgala, and pitched theyr tentes before Melaloth which is in arbellis, and wanne the cytie & slewe moche people. In the fyrst moneth of the .Clii. yeare, they brought theyr hoost to Jerusalem, and rose vp & came to Berea, with .xx. M. fotemen. & .ii. M. horsmen.

Now Judas had pytched his tētes at Laysa, with thre thousande chosen men. And when they sawe the multytude of the other army that it was so greate, they were sore afrayed, and many coueyed them selues out of the hoost. In so moch that there abode no mo of them but eyght hundred men. When Judas sawe ꝑ his hoost fayled hym, and that he must nedes fight: it brake his herte, that he had no tyme to gather them together: wherfore the man was in extreme trouble. Neuertheles, he sayde vnto them, that remayned with hym. Up, lett vs go agaynst oure enemyes, peraduēture we shalbe able, to fyght with them. But they wolde haue stopped hym, sayenge: we shall not be able, therfore lett vs now saue oure lyues, & turne agayne to our brethren and then will we fyght against thē, for we are here but fewe. And Judas sayde: God forbyd, ꝑ we shulde fle from them. Wherfore, yf oure tyme be come, let vs dye manfully for our brethren, and lett vs not stayne oure honoure. Then the hoost remoued out of ꝑ tentes, and stode agaynst them. The horsmen are deuyded in two partes: the slyng casters & archers wente before ꝑ hoost, and all the myghtye men were formost in ꝑ felde. Bachides him selfe was in ꝑ ryght wyng of ꝑ battayll, ād the hoost drewe nye in two partes, & blewe the trompettes. They of Judas syde blewe the trōpettes also, & the earth shoke at the noyse of ꝑ hostes, & they stroke a felde from the morow tyll nyght. And when Judas sawe ꝑ Bachides hoost was strongest of ꝑ ryght syde, he toke with hym all the hardy men, & brake ꝑ ryght wynge of theyr ordre, & folowed vpon them vnto ꝑ mount Azot.

Now when they which were of the left wyng, sawe that ꝑ ryght syde was discōfyte, they persecuted Judas & them ꝑ were wt hym. Then was there a sore battayll, for many were slayne & wouded of both ꝑ parties, Judas also him selfe was kylled, & the remnaunt fled. So Jonathas and Symon toke Judas theyr brother, and buryed hym in his fathers sepulchre in ꝑ cytie of Modin. And all ꝑ people of Israell made greate lamētacyon for hym, & mourned lōge, sayēge: Alas, that thys worthy shulde be slayne, which delyuered ꝑ people of Israel. As for other thinges perteynynge to ꝑ battaylles of Judas, ꝑ noble actes that he dyd & of hys worthynesse: they are not wrytten, for they were very many.

*And after ꝑ death of Judas, wycked men came vp in all ꝑ coastes of Israel, and there arose all soch as worcke vngodlynesse. In those dayes was there a greate dearthe in ꝑ lande, and all the countre gaue ouer themselues and theyrs vnto Bachydes. So Bachydes chose wycked men, and made them lordes lordes in ꝑ land. These sought out & made search for Judas frēdes, and brought them vnto Bachydes: which auenged hī self vpō them with great despyte. And there came so great trouble in Israell, as was not sens ꝑ tyme that no prophete was sene there.

Then came all Judas frendes together, and sayde vnto Jonathas: For so moch as thy brother Judas is deed, there is none lyke him to go forth agaynst our enemyes, agaynst Bachides, & soch as are aduersaries vnto oure people. Wherfore thys daye we chose the for hi, to be oure prince & captayne to ordre oure battayll. And Jonathas toke ꝑ gouernaunce vpon hym at the same tyme, and ruled i steade of hys brother Judas Whē Bachides gatt knowledge therof, he sought for to sley hym. But Jonathas and Symon his brother, perceauinge that, fled into the wildernes of Thecua with al their company, and pytched theyr tentes by the water pole of Asphar.

Which when Bachides vnderstode, he came ouer Jordane with all his hoost vpon ꝑ Sabboth day. Now had Jonathas sent his brother Jhon (a captayne of the people) to praye hys frendes the Nabuthytes, ꝑ they wolde lende them their ordinaunce, for they had moch. So the chyldrē of Jambry came out of Madaba, and toke Jhon and al that D he had, and wēte theyr waye with al. Then came worde vnto Jonathas & Simon hys brother, that the chyldren of Jambry made a greate mariage, and brought the bride frō Madaba with greate pompe: for she was daughter to one of ꝑ noblest prynces of Canaā. Wherfore they remembred the bloude of Jhon their brother, and wēte vp and hid thē selues vnder the shadowe of the mountayne.

So they lift vp theyr eyes, and loked, & beholde, there was moch a do, and great repayre: for the bridegrome came forth, & hys frendes and hys brethren met them wt tympanyes, instrumētes of musicke, and many weapens. Then Jonathas and they ꝑ were with him, rose out of their lourkyng places against them, and slewe many of them. As for the remnaunt, they fled into ꝑ mountaynes, and they toke all theyr substaunce. Thus the marryage was turned to mournynge, and the noyse of theyr melody into lamētacyon. And so when they had auenged ꝑ bloud of theyr brother, they turned agayne vnto Jordane.

Bachides hearynge thys, came vnto the E very border of Jordane with a great power vpō ꝑ Sabbath daye. And Jonathas sayd to hys companye, let vs get vp, and fyght agayne our enemyes: for it stādeth not with vs to daye, as in tyme past: Beholde, oure enemyes are in our waye, the water of Jordane vpon the one syde of vs, wyth bankes, fennes and woddes of the other syde, so that there is no place for vs to departe vnto.

*Wherfore crie now vnto heauen, that ye *1. Para. xx. 1. Mac. iiii. maye be delyuered frō ꝑ power of your enemyes. So they stroke ꝑ battaylle. And Jonathas stretched out hys handes to smyte Bachydes, but he fled backwarde. Then Jonathas & they ꝑ were with him leapte into Jordane, and swymmed ouer Jordane vnto hym, and there were slayne of Bachydes side that daye, a thousande men.

Therfore Bachydes wyth his hoost turned agayne to Jerusalem, and buylde vp ꝑ castels and strong holdes that were i Jewrye, Jericho, Emaus, Bethoron, Bethell, Thamnata, Phara and Topo, wt hye walles, with portes and with lockes: & set men to kepe thē, that they myght vse theyr malyce vpō Israel. He walled vp Bethsurath, Gazarah and the castell at Jerusalem also and prouided thē wyth men and vitayles. He toke also the chefest mens sonnes in the countre for pledges, and put them in the castell at Jerusalem to be kepte.

Afterwarde in the hundred fifty & thre yeare in ꝑ secōde moneth, Alcimus cōmaunded, that ꝑ walles of the ynnost Sanctuary shuld be destroyed, and the buyldinges of ꝑ prophetes also. And when he beganne to destroye them, ꝑ thynges ꝑ he wēte aboute, were hyndered, for he was smyttē wt a palsey, and his mouth shut, so that he coulde no more speake ner cōmaunde eny of his house concernynge his busynesse. Thus dyed Alcimus in greate mysery at ꝑ same tyme. And whē Bachides sawe that Alcimꝰ was deed, he turned agayne to the kyng, and so ꝑ lāde was in reast two yeares. Then all the vn- F godly men held a councell, sayeng: Behold, Jonathas and his company are at ease, and dwell without care. Wherfore let vs bringe Bachides hyther, and he shall take them al in one nyght.

So they wente and gaue Bachides this councell, which arose to come with a greate hoost, and sent lettres preuely to his adherētes, whych were in Jewrye, to take Jonathas & those ꝑ were wt hym: but they myght not for ꝑ other had gotte knowledge of theyr deuyce. And Jonathas toke fyfty mē of ꝑ countre (whych were ꝑ ringleaders of thē) and slewe thē. Then Jonathas and Simō wyth theyr cōpany departed vnto the cyte Bethbessen whych lyeth in the wyldernes, & repayred ꝑ decaye therof, & made it strōg. When Bachides knewe thys, he gathered all hys hoost, and sent worde to them that were of Jewry. Then came he and layed sege to Bethbessen & fought agaynst it a lōg G season, & made instrumētes of warre. Now Jonathas left his brother Simō in ꝑ cytie, and wente forth hym selfe into the coūtre, & came with a certayne nōbre, & slewe Odares and his brethrē and the childrē of Phaseron in theyr tentes: so that he beganne to be stronge, and to increase in power.

As for Symon and hys companye, they wente out of the cytie, and brent vp the instrumētes of warre, & fought agaynst Bachydes, and discōfyted hym. And Bachides was sore vexed, because his councel and trauayl was i vayne. Wherfore he was wroth at the wycked men (that gaue hym councell to come into theyr lāde) and slewe many of them. Then purposed he with hys company to go awaye into his awne countre: wherof whē Jonathas had knowledge, he sent embassitoures vnto hym, for to make peace wt hym, and that he shuld delyuer hym his prisonners agayne. To the whych Bachydes cōsented gladly, and dyd accordynge to hys desyre: yee and made an othe, that he shulde neuer do hym harme al the dayes of his lyf. So he restored vnto hym al the prisonners that he had taken out of the lāde of Juda, & then turned and wente his waye into hys awne lāde, nether proceded he eny further to come vnto the borders of Juda. Thus Israel had nomore warre. And Jonathas dwelt at Machemas, and beganne there & to gouerne the people, and destroyed ꝑ vngodly men out of Israell.

¶The.x.Chapter.

*Iosephi.ca. vi.li.o.xiii.

IN the hūdred and thre score yeare came Alexander ꝑ sonne of noble Antiochus and toke Ptolomays, whose cytesyns receaued him, and there he raygned. When Demetrius herde therof, he gathered an exceading great host, and went forth against him to fyght. Wherfore Demetry⁹ sent lettres vnto Jonathas with louyng wordes, and praysed him greatly. For he sayde: we will fyrst make peace with him, before he bynde hym selfe wyth Alexāder against vs: els he shall remembre ꝑ euell that we haue done agaynst hym, his brother & his people. And so he gaue Jonathas leue to gather an host, to make weapens, and to be confederat wyth hym, & commaūded the pledges that were i the castell, to be deliuered vnto hym.

Then came Jonathas to Jerusalem, and red the letters in the audience of all the people, and of them that were i the castell. And therfore were they sore afraied, because they herde, that ꝑ kynge had geuen hym lycence B to gather an host. Thus were the pledges delyuered vnto Jonathas, wyych restored thē to theyr elders. Jonathas also dwelt at Jerusalem, and beganne to buylde vp & to repayre the cytie: commaūdyng the workmen, to wall it, and the mount Sion round about with fre stone, to be a stronge holde, and so they dyd. As for ꝑ heathen that were i ꝑ castels which Bachides had made vp they fled: so that euery man left ꝑ place, and wēt into his awne countre. Only at Bethsura remayned certayne of ꝑ Jewes, wyych had forsaken ꝑ lawe and commaundementes of God, for Bethsura was theyr refuge.

Now when kyng Alexander herde of the promyses that Demetrius had made vnto Jonathas, and when it was tolde hym of ꝑ battels and noble actes, wyych he and hys brethren had done, and of the greate trauayles that they had takē, he sayde: where shall we fynde soch a man? well, we wyll make him our frende, and be cōfederat wyth hym. Vpō this he wrote a lettre vnto hym, with these wordes: kynge Alexāder saluteth hys brother Jonathas. We haue herde of the, ꝑ thou art a valeaūt man, and mete to be our frende: wherfore thys daye we ordeyne the to be the hye preste of thy people, and to be called the kynges frēde. (Vpon this, he sent hym a purple clothynge, and a crowne of golde) that thou mayest consydre what is for oure profyt, and kepe frendshyppe towarde vs.

So in the seuenth moneth of the hūdred C and thre score yeare vpō the solempne feast daye of the tabernacles, Jonathas put ꝑ holy rayment vpon him. Then gathered he an host, and made many weapēs. Which whē Demetrius herde, he was maruelous sory, & sayde: Alas, what haue we done, that Alexander hath preuēted vs in gettyng ꝑ frēdshyppe of the Jewes, for hys awne defence? Yet will I wryte louyngly vnto them also, yee and promyse them dignities add rewardes, ꝑ they maye be of my syde. Wherupon he wrote vnto thē these wordes. Kinge Demetrius sendeth greting vnto ꝑ people of ꝑ Jewes. Where as ye haue kepte your couenaunt toward vs, & cōtynued in our frendshyp, not enclyning to our enemyes, we were glad, when we herde therof. Wherfore remayne styll, & be faythfull to vs: & we shall well recōpense you for ꝑ thinges, ꝑ ye haue done on oure partye: we shall release you of many charges, ād geue you rewardes. And now I dyscharge you & all ꝑ Jewes frō tributes, I forgeue you ꝑ customes of salt, and release you of ꝑ crowne taxes, of the thyrde parte of sede, & half of ꝑ frute of trees, which is myne awne dewtye. These I leaue for you, frō this daye forth: so ꝑ they shal not be taken of the lande of Juda ner of the thre cyties wyych are added ther vnto out of Samaria and Galylee, from thys daye forth for euer-

D for euermore. Jerusalē also with al thinges be longing therto, shal be holy and fre, yee ꝑ tythes and trybutes shall pertayne vnto it. As for the power of ꝑ castell which is at Jerusalē, I rempt & geue it vnto ꝑ hye preste, that he maye set i it soch mē, as he shal chose to kepe it. I frely delyuer al the Jewes that are prisonners thorow out all my realme: so ꝑ euery one of thē shal be fre from paying any trybute, yee euen of their catell.

All the solempne feastes, Sabbathes, newmoones, the dayes appoynted, the thre dayes before & after the feast, shal be fre for all the Jewes in my realme: so that in them no man shall haue power to do eny thynge, or to moue any bulynesse agaynst any of thē in any maner of cause. There shall thyrty thousande also of the Jewes be wrytten vp in the kynges hoost, and haue theyr wages payed, as all other men of warre of the kynges shulde haue: and of them shalbe ordeyned certayne, to kepe ꝑ kynges strong holdes: yee and some of thē shalbe set ouer the kynges bulynesse, that they maye faythfully deale wt the same. The Jewes also shall haue princes of theyr awne, and walcke in theyr awne lawes, as the kynge hath commaunded in the lande of Juda.

And the thre cyties that are fallen vnto Jewry from ꝑ countre of Samaria & Galylee: shalbe taken as Jewry, and be vnder one: nether be subiecte to any straūge Lord, but to the hye preste. As for Ptolomais and the lande pertaynyng therto, I geue it vnto the Sanctuary at Jerusalem, for the necessary expēces of the holy thynges. Moreouer, I wyll geue euery peare fyftene thousand Sycles of syluer out of ꝑ kynges checker (which pertayneth vnto me) to the worke of the temple: yee and loke what remayneth (which they ꝑ had oure matters in hād in tymes past, haue not payed) ꝑ same shall they geue vnto them also. And besydes all thys, the fyue thousand Sycles which they toke yearly of the rentes of the Sāctuary, shall belonge vnto the prestes that do seruyce.

Item, whosoeuer they be that fle vnto ꝑ temple at Jerusalem or within the liberties therof, where as they are fallen into ꝑ kynges daunger for eny maner of busynes, they shall be pardoned and all the goodes that they haue in my realme, shalbe fre. For the buyldyng also and repayryng of the worcke of the Sanctuary, expenses shalbe geuen out of the kynges Checker: Yee and for the makynge of the walles rounde about Jerusalem, for ꝑ bye kyng downe of the olde and for the settynge vp of ꝑ stronge holdes in Jewry, shall the costes and charges be geuen out of the kynges Checker.

heard these wordes, they gaue no credence vnto them, nether receaued them: for they remembred the greate wyckednesse that he had done vnto Israell, and how sore he had vexed them. Wherfore, they agreed vnto Alexander, for he was a prynce that had dealte frendly wyth them, and so they stode by hym all waye. * Then gathered kynge *Iosephi. Alexander a greate hoost, and brought hys armye agaynst Demetrius. So the two kynges stroke batayll together, but Demetrius host fled, and Alexander folowed after and fell vpon them. A myghtye sore felde was it, contynuynge tyll the Sonne wente downe, and Demetrius was slayne the same daye.

And Alexander sente ambassitoures vn- E to Ptolomy the kynge of Egypte with these wordes, sayenge: For so moch as I am come agayne to my realme, and am set in the trone of my progenytoures, and haue gotten the domynyon, ouercomed Demetrius, conquered the lande, and stryken a felde wyth hym, so that we haue discōfyted both hym and hys hoost, and syt in the trone of hys kyngdome. Let vs now make frendshyppe together, geue me thy daughter to wyfe: so shall I be thy sonne in lawe, and both geue the rewardes, and her greate bygnite. Ptolomy the kynge gaue answere, sayenge: Happy be the daye wherin thou arte come agayne to the lande of thy progenytoures, and set in the trone of theyr kyngdome. As now wyll I fulfyll thy wyttynge: but mete me at Ptolomais, that we maye se one another, & that I maye mary my daughter vnto the accordynge to thy desyre. So Ptolomy wente out of Egypte wyth hys daughter Cleopatra, and came vnto Ptolomais in the. Clxii. peare: where kynge Alexander met him, and he gaue Alexander his daughter Cleopatra, & maried thē at Ptolomais with greate worshyppe, lyke as the maner of kynges is to be. Thē wrote kyng Alexander vnto Jonathas, that he shulde G come and mete hym. So he wente honorably vnto Ptolomais, and there he mete the two kynges, and gaue them greate presentes of golde and syluer, and founde fauoure i theyr syght. And there came together agaynst Jonathas certayne wycked men & vngracious personnes of Israel, makyng complayntes of hym, but ꝑ kynge regarded thē not. As for Jonathas, the kinge commaunded to take of his garmentes, and to clothe hym i purple: and so they dyd. Then ꝑ kyng appoynted hym to syt by hym, and sayde vnto his princes: Go with hym into ꝑ myddest of the cytie, and make a proclamacyon, that no man complayne agaynst him of eny matter, and that no man trouble hym for eny maner of cause.

So it happened, that when hys accusers sawe the worshyppe which was proclamed of hym, and that he was clothed in purple: they fled everychone. And the kynge made moch of hym, wrote hym amonge hys chefe frendes, made hym a duke, and partaker of hys domynion. * Thus Jonathas went a-
* Josephus. ca. vi. lib. xiii antio. gayne to Jerusalem with peace & gladnes. In the. Clxv. yeare came Demetrius the sonne of Demetrius frō Creta into hys fathers lande: wherof whē Alexander herde tell, he was sryght sory, and returned vnto Antio-
*1. Mac. xii. a che. And Demetrius chose * Appollonyus, (whych had the gouernaunce of Celosyrya) to be hys captayne.

So he gathered a greate hoost and came vnto Jamnia, and sente word vnto Jonathas the hye preste, sayeng: Darrest ꝑ withstād vs thy self alone? Askor me, I am but laughed to scorne and shamed, because thou prouedst thy strength agaynst vs in ꝑ moūtaynes. Now therfore, yf thou trustest in thyne awne strength, come downe to vs in-
H to the playne felde, and there let vs proue our stregth together: thou shalt kynde, that I haue valeaunt mē of warre wyth me and shalt knowe whō I am, and the other that stande by me.

Which saye, that your fote is not able to stāde before oure face, for thy fathers haue bene twise chaced into theyr awne lāde. And now, how wylt ꝑ be able to abyde so greate an hoost of horsmen and fotemen in the felde, where as is nether rocke, stone ner place to flē vnto?

When Jonathas herd the wordes of Appolonius, he was moued in hys mynde: wherfore he chose tente thousand men, and wente out of Jerusalem, and Symon hys brother met hym for to help hym: And they pitched theyr tētes at Joppa, but ꝑ cytie kepte hym forth, for Joppa was an holde of Appolonius. Then Jonathas layed sege to it, and they that were in the cytie, for very feare let hym in: and so Jonathas wanne Joppa. Appollonius hearinge of thys toke thre thousande horsmen, with a greate hoost of fote, and wente as though he wold go to Azotus, and came immediatly into the playne felde: because he had so many horsmen, and put hys trust in thē. So Jonathas folowed vpon hym to Azotus, and there they stroke the battaylle. Now had Appolonius lefte a thousand horsmē behynde them preuely in the tētes. And when Jonathas knewe that soch wayte was layed behynde them, they went rounde aboute the enemyes hoost and shot dartes at the people frō the morynge to the euenynge. As for Jonathas people, they kepte theyr ordre as he had commaunded them, and the enemies horses were euer labouringe.

Then brought Tymon forth hys host, & I set them agaynst the fote men. For the horsmen were wery all ready. So he discōfyted them, and they fled. And they that were scatred in the feld, gat thē to Azotus, and came into the temple of Dagon theyr Idoll, ꝑ they myght there saue theyr lyues. But Jonathas set fyre vpon Azotus and all the cytes rounde aboute it, and toke theyr goodes and * brent vp the temple of Dagon, wyth *1. Mac. xi. a. all them that were fled into it.

Thus were slayne and brent well nye. viii M. men. So Jonathas remoued the hoost from thence, and brought them to Ascalon: where the men of the cytie came forth, & met hym with greate worshyp. After this wēte Jonathas and hys hoost agayne to Jerusalem, with greate substaunce of good. And when kyng Alexander herde these thynges he thought to do Jonathas more worshyppe and sent hym a colar of golde, as the vse is to be geuen vnto soch as are of the kynges next blonde. He gaue hym also the cytie of Accaron (with the landes belongynge therto) in possession.

¶ The. xi. Chapter.

¶ The dissencyon betwixt Ptolomes and Alexāders hys sonne in lawe. The deeth of Alexander. Demetrius raygneth after the deeth of Ptolomeus. Symon is besieged of Jonathas. Demetrius sepnge that no man resisted hym, sendeth his armye agaynst. Triphom moueth Antiochus agaynst Demetrius. Demetrius is delyuered by the succour of Jonathas. After hys delyueraunce he breaketh hys couenaunt that he had made.

AND the kynge of Egypte gathered an hoost (lyke the sande that lyeth vpō ꝑ see shore) and many shipes: * & went about thorow dis-
* Josep. cap. viii. lib. xiii. ceate to optayne ꝑ kingdome of Alexāder, & to ioyne it vnto hys awne realme. Upō thys he toke hys iourney into Siria, & was lettē into the cyties, and mē came forth to mete hym: for kyng Alexander had commaunded them so to do, because he was hys father in lawe. Now whē Ptolomy entred into eny cytie, he lefte men of warre to kepe it, and this he dyd thorow out all the cities. And when he came to Azotus, * they
*1. Mac. x. d shewed hym the temple of Dagō and Azotus that was brent vp, with the other thynges whych were destroyed, the deed bodyes cast abrode, & ꝑ graues that they had made by ꝑ waye syde, for soch as were slayne in ꝑ felde. And tolde ꝑ kyng that Jonathas had done all these thynges, to ꝑ intēt they might get hys euell wyll. But the kynge sayde not a worde therto. And Jonathas met the kynge wyth greate honour at Joppa, where they saluted one another, and toke theyr rest. So whē Jonathas had gone wt ꝑ kyng vnto the water that was called Eleutherus, he turned agayne to Jerusalem.

Now

Now we Ptolomye had gotten the domynion of the cyties vnto Seleucia vpon ꝑ see coast, ymaginynge wycked councels agaynst Alexander, and sent ambassitours vnto Demetrius, saying. Come, let vs make a bond be-
B twyxte vs, so shall I geue the my daughter that Alexander hath, and thou shalt raygne in thy fathers kyngdome. I repente that I gaue Alexander my daughter, for the goeth about to sley me. And thus he sclaundred Alexander, because he wolde haue had hys realme.

Thus he toke hys daughter from hym, gaue her vnto Demetrius, and forsoke Alexander, so that his malyce was openly knowne. And Ptolomy cam to Antioche, where he set two crownes vpō hys awne head: the crowne of Egypt and of Asia. In the meane season was kynge Alexander in Cilicia, for they that dwelt in those places, had rebelled agaynst him. But when Alexāder herde of thys, he came to warre agaynst hym. So kynge Ptolomy brought forth hys hoost & met hym with a myghty power, and chased him awaye. Then fled Alexander into Araby, there to be defended, and kynge Ptolomyes honoure increased. And Zabdiel ꝑ Arabian smote of Alexanders head, and sent it vnto Ptolomy. But the thyrde daye after, dyed kynge Ptolomy hym selfe: and whom
C he had sett in the kröge holdes, were slayne of those that were wythin the cyties. And Demetrius raygned in the hundred and seuen and syxtie yeare.

At the same tyme gathered Jonathas thē that were in Jewry, to laye sege vnto the castell whych was at Jerusalem, and so they made many instrumentes of warre agaynst it. Then wente there certayne vngodly personnes (whych hated their awne people) vnto kynge Demetrius, and tolde hym that Jonathas beseged the castell. So whē he heard it, he was angrie, and immediatly came vnto Ptolomais, and wrote vnto Jonathas, that he shulde not laye sege to the castell, but come and speake wyth him in all the haste. Neuertheles, when Jonathas herde this, he commaunded to besege it. He chose also certayne of the elders and prestes of Israel, and put him selfe in the parell, and toke with him golde, syluer, clothynge, and diuerse presentes: & wente to Ptolomais vnto the kynge, and founde hym gracyous.

And though certayne vngodly men of hys awne people made cōplaintes vpon him, yet
*1. Mac. x. d. ꝑ kynge intreated hym, * lyke as hys predecessours had done before: and promoted hym in the syght of all his frendes, cōfyrmed hym in the hye presthode with all ꝑ worshyp ꝑ he had afore, and made him hys cheke frēde. Jo-
*1. Mach. x. c. and. xi. d. nathas also desyred the kyng, that he wolde make Jewry free. * wt the thre head cyties of Samaria and the landes pertaynynge therto: vpon thys dyd Jonathas promyse hym thre. C talentes. Where vnto ꝑ kynge cōsented, & gaue Jonathas wrytinge of the same, conteynyng these wordes: Kinge Demetrius sendeth gretyng vnto his brother Jonathas & to the people of the Jewes. We sende you here a copy of the lettre which we dyd wryte vnto oure eldest Lasthenus, concernynge you that ye shulde knowe it.

Kynge Demetrius sendeth gretynge vnto D Lasthenus hys elder. For the kaythfulnesse ꝑ oure frendes the people of the Jewes kepe vnto vs, and for the louyng kyndnes which they beare to warde vs: we are determyned to do thē good. Wherfore we ordeyne all the coastes of Jewry with thre cyties, Lydda & Ramatha (whych are added vnto Jewrye from Samaria) and all the landes pertaynynge there vnto, to be frely separated for soche as do sacrifyce in Jerusalē: both concernynge the paymentes which the kynge toke yearly afore tyme, and the frutes also of the earth and trees. As for other tythes and tributes that belonged vnto vs, we discharge them therof from thys tyme forth. In lyke maner we graunte vnto them all the customes of salt and crowne taxes, whych were brought vnto vs. And this fredome shall they haue fyrme and stedfast, from thys tyme forth for euermore. Therfore se that ye make a copy of these our lettres, and delyuer it vnto Jonathas: that it maye be kepte vpō the holy mount in a conuenient place.

After thys, when Demetrius the kynge E sawe that his lande was in rest, and that no resystaūce was made him: he sent awaye all his hoost, euery man to hys awne place, excepte an armye of straūgers, whō he brought from the Iles of the Heathen, wherfore all hys fathers hoost had euell wyll at hym. *
*1. Mac. xiii Nowe was there one Tryphon (that had bene of Alexanders parte afore) whych when he sawe that all ꝑ hoost murmured agaynst Demetrius: he wente to Emalcuel the Arabian (that brought vp Antiochus the sonne of Alexāder) and laye sore vpon hym, to delyuer hym this yōge Antiochus: ꝑ he myghe raygne in hys fathers steade. He tolde hym also, what great euell Demetrius had done, and howe his men of warre loued him not: & so remayned there a longe season.

And Jonathas sent vnto kynge Demetrius, to dryue them out whych were in the castell at Jerusalem, and in the other refuges, for they dyd Israel greate harme. So Demetrius sent worde vnto Jonathas, sayeng: I wyll not only do thels thynges for ꝑ and thy people, but at tyme conuenient I wil F do both the and thy people great worshippe. But nowe thou shalt do me a pleasure, yf ꝑ wylt sende me men to helpe me: for all myne armye is gone fro me. So Jonathas set him thre thousand stronge men vnto Antioche, & they came vnto ỹ kynge, wherfore the kyng was very glad at their comming. But they that were of the cytie (euen an hundred and twenty thousande men) gathered thē together, and wold haue slayne the kynge, which fled into his court, and the cytesins kepte the stretes of the cytie, and beganne to fyght.

Then the kynge called for the Jewes helpe, whych came vnto hym all together, and wente abrode thorowe the cytie, and slewe the same daye an hūdred thousande men: set fyre vpō the cytie, gat many spoyles in that daye, and delyuered the kynge. So whē the cytesyns sawe that the Jewes had gotten their wyll of the cytie, & they them selues disapoynted of their purpose, they made theyr supplicacion vnto the kynge, sayeng: Graūt vs peace, and let the Jewes ceasse frō troublynge vs and the cytie, and vpon this they cast awaye theyr weapēs. Thus they made peace, and the Jewes gatt great worshyp in the syght of the kinge, and in the syght of all that were in hys realme, and were spoken of thorowe out the kyngdome: and so they came agayne to Jerusalē wyth great goodes.

G So the kynge Demetrius sat in the trone of hys kyngdome, and had peace in his lāde. Neuertheles, he dyssembled in all that euer he spake, and wyth drewe hym selfe frō Jonathas, nether rewarded hym accordyng to the benefites which he had done for him, but troubled hym very sore. After thys came Tryphon agayne wyth yonge Antiochus, whych raygned and was crowned kynge. Then there gathered vnto hym all the men of warre, whō Demetrius had put awaye: these fought against Demetrius, which fled and turned his backe. So Tryphon toke the Elephātes, & wāne Antioche. And yōg Antiochus wrote vnto Jonathas, sayēge: I confyrme the in thy presthode, and make the ruler of .iiij. countres, ỹ thou mayest be a frēde of the kynges.

Upon thys he sent hym golden vessels to be serued in, and gaue hym leue to drynke in golde, to be clothed in purple, and to were a colar of golde. He made hys brother Symō also captayne, frō the coastes of Tyrus vnto the borders of Egypt. Then Jonathas toke his iourney, and wēte thorowe the cyties beyonde the water of Jordane, & all the mē of warre of Syria gathered them vnto him for to helpe him. So he came vnto Ascalon, and they of the cytie receaued hym honorably, and from thence wente he vnto Gaza, but they wolde not lett hym in: wherfore he layed sege vnto it, burnynge vp and spoylynge the places that were aboute the cytie.

And the cytesyns of Gaza submytted thē selues vnto Jonathas, which made peace wt thē, but toke of theyr sonnes to pledge, sent them to Jerusalem, and wente thorowe the countre vnto Damascus. Nowe whē Jonathas herde that Demetrius princes were come into Cades (which is in Galilee) wyth a greate hoost, purposynge to put Demetrius out from medlynge in the realme: he came agaynst them, and lefte Symon hys brother in the lande: whych came to Bethsura, and layed sege to it a longe season, and dissomfited thē. So they desyred to haue peace with hym, whych he graunted them, and afterwarde put them out from thēce, toke the cytie, and sett men to kepe it. And Jonathas wt his hoost came to the water of Genesar, and by tymes in the morynge gatt them to the playne felde of Asor.

And beholde, the hoostes of the Heathen met them in the felde, and layed watch for them in the mountaynes: so that when Jonathas came against them, the other (which were layed to watch) rose out of theyr places, and fought, and they that were of Jonathas syde, fled euery man: and there was not one of them left, except Mathathias the sonne of Absalomus, & Judas the sonne of Calphi the captayne of the hoost. Then Jonathas rente his clothes, layed earth vpon hys head, made hys prayer, and turned agayne to thē in the felde: where they fought together, & he put them to flyght. Nowe whē his owne mē, that were fled, sawe thys: they turned agayne vnto hym and helped him to followe vpon all their enemyes vnto their tentes at Cades. So there were slayne of the Heathen the same daye thre thousande men, and Jonathas turned agayne to Jerusalem.

¶ The .xij. Chapter.

¶ Jonathas sendeth Embassitoures to Rome and to ỹ people of Sparta to renue their couenāt of frendshyp. Jonathas putteth to flyght the princes of Demetrius. Tryphon taketh Jonathas by decreate.

A JOnathas seyng that ỹ tyme was mete for hym, chose certayne men and sent thē vnto Rome for to stablish & to renue * the frendshyppe with thē. He sent lettres also vnto Sparta, and to other places in lyke maner. So they wente vnto Rome, and entred into the councell, & sayde: Jonathas the hye preste and the people of the Jewes sent vs vnto you, for to renue the olde frēdshyp and bonde of loue. Upō thys the Romaynes gaue them fre pasportes, that men shulde lede them home into the lāde of Juda peaceably. And thys is the copy of the letters that Jonathas wrote vnto the Spartians.

* 1. Mac. viij.

Jonathas the hye preste wt the elders, prestes, & the other people of the Jewes, sende gretynge vnto the Spartians their brethre. There were lettres sente longe a goo vnto Onias the hye preste, frō Arius, whych than raygned raygned amonge you: that ye are oure brethren, as the wrytinge made ther vpon, specifyeth: And Onias entreated the embassitoure that was sent, honorably, and receaued the letters: where in there was mencyon made of the bonde of loue and frendshyppe.

B But as for vs, we nede no soche wrytinges: for why, we haue the holy bokes of scripture in oure handes to our comforte. Neuertheles, we had rather sende vnto you, for the renuynge of the brotherhode and frendshyppe: lest we shulde be straunge vnto you: for it is longe, sens the tyme ỹ ye sent vnto vs. Wherfore in the sacrifyces that we offre and other ceremonyes vpō the hye solempne dayes and other, we alwaye remembre you without ceassynge (lyke as reason is, and as it becommeth vs to thynche vpon our brethren) yee and are ryght glad of youre prosperous honoure.

And though we haue had great troubles and warres, so that the kynges aboute vs haue foughten against vs: yet wolde we not be greuous vnto you, ner to other of our louers and frendes in these warres. For we haue had helpe from heauen, so that we are delyuered, and oure enemies subdued. Wherfore we chose Numenius the sonne of Antiochus and Antipater the sonne of Jason, and sent them vnto the Romaynes, for to renue the olde bonde of frendshyppe and loue with them. We cōmaunded them also to come vnto you to salute you, and to delyuer you oure lettres, concernynge the renouacyon of oure brotherhode. And nowe ye shall do ryght well, to geue vs an answere there vnto.

C And thys is the copy of the wrytynge, which Arius the kynge of Sparta sent vnto Onias. Arius kynge of the Spartians sendeth gretynge vnto Onias the hye prest. It is founde in wrytynge, that the Spartians and Jewes are brethren, and come out of the generacīō of Abrahā. And nowe for so moch as this is come to oure knowledge, ye shall do well, to wryte vnto vs of youre prosperitye. As for vs, we haue wryttē oure mynde vnto you: Oure catell and goodes are yours, & yours ours. These thynges haue we commaunded to be shewed vnto you.

When Jonathas hearde, that Demetrius princes were come forth to fyght agaynst him, with a greater hoost then afore, he went from Jerusalem, and met them in the lande of Hemath, for he gaue thē nott space to come into his owne countre. And he sent spyes vnto their tētes, which came agayne and tolde him, that they were appoynted to come vpō him in the nyght season. Wherfore when the sunne was gone downe, Jonathas commaunded his men to watche all the nyght, and to be ready wt weapens for to fyght: and set D watchmen rounde aboute the hoost. But when the aduersaryes herde that Jonathas was ready with his men to ỹ battayll, they feared, and were afrayed in their hertes, and kyndled fyres in their tentes, brake vp, and gat thē awaye. Neuertheles Jonathas and his cōpany knewe it not tyll the morynge, for they sawe the fyres burnynge.

Then Jonathas folowed vpō them, but he myght not ouertake them, for they were goīe ouer the water Eleutherus. So Jonathas departed vnto ỹ Arabiās (which were called Zabadei) slewe thē, and toke their goodes. He proceded further also, and came vnto Damascus, and wente thorowe all ỹ cōtre. But Simō his brother toke his iourney and came to Ascalon and to the nexte stroge holdes: departynge vnto Joppa, and wanne it. For he herde that they wolde stāde of Demetrius partye: wherfore he set mē of warre in the cyte, to kepe it. After this came Jonathas home agayne, and called the elders of ỹ people together: and deuysed with them for to bylde vp the stronge holdes in Jewry, & the walles of Jerusalē, to set vp an hye wall betwixt the castell and the cyte, for to separate it from the cyte, that it myght be alone, and that men shulde nether bye nor sell in it.

Upō this they came together for to bylde vp the cytie, and for so moch as the wall vpon the broke of the west syde (called Caphetah) was fallen downe, they repayred it. And Simon set vp Adiadah in Sephelah, & made it stroge setynge portes & lockes vpō it. Nowe when * Tryphon purposed to raygne in Asya, to be crowned, and to slaye the kynge Antiochus: he was afrayed that Jonathas wolde not suffre hym, but fyght agaynst him. Wherfore he wente about to take Jonathas, and to kyll hym. E

* 1. Mac. xi. c. Joseph. cap. xxi. lib. xiii.

So he departed, and came vnto Bethsan. Then wente Jonathas forth agaynst hym to the battayll with fourtye thousande chosen men, and came vnto Bethsan also. But when Tryphon sawe that Jonathas came wyth so greate an hoste to destroye him, he was afrayed: and therfore he receaued him honorably, commēded him vnto all hys frendes, and gaue hym rewardes, and commaunded his men of warre to be as obedient vnto him as to him selfe.

And sayde vnto Jonathas: why hast thou caused this people to take soch trauayle, seynge there is no warre betwixte vs? Therfore sende thē home agayne, and chose certayne men to wayte vpon the, and come thou vnto me to Ptolomais: for I wyll geue it ỹ, with the other stronge holdes, men of warre and their officers. As for me, I must departe, this F is onely the cause of my cōmynge. Jonathas beleued him, and dyd as he sayde, puttynge awaye hys hoost, which wente in to the lande of Juda. He kepte but .iij. C by him, wher-of he sent. iij. M. into Galile, and one. M. wente with him selfe.

Nowe as soone as Jonathas entred into Ptolamais, the cytesyns sparred the gates of the cytie, and toke him, and slewe all them with the swerde, ỹ came in with him. Then sent Triphon an hoost of fote men and horsmen into Galilee and into the greate playne felde, to destroye all Jonathas cõpany. But when they knewe that Jonathas was takẽ, and all they slayne that wayted vpon hym: they toke councell together, and came forth ready to the battayll. Ho when they whych folowed vpon thẽ, sawe that it was a matter of lyfe, they turned backe agayne. As for the other, they wente into the lande of Juda peaceably, & bewayled Jonathas, and them that were with hym ryght sore. And Jsrael made great lamentacion. Then all the heathen that were rounde aboute thẽ, sought to destroye them. For they sayde: nowe haue they no captayne, nor eny man to helpe thẽ. Therfore lett vs ouercome them, and rote out their name from amonge men.

¶ The.xiij. Chapter.

¶ After Jonathas was taken. Symon is chosen captayne, of whom Triphon takynge hys chyldre and money for the redemcyon of Jonathas, kylleth hym and hys chyldren. The graue of Jonathas. Triphon kylleth Antiochus, and possesseth the realme. Demetrius taketh truce wyth Simon. Simon wynneth Gaza. He possesseth the tower of Syon. He maketh his sonne John Captayne.

A NOwe when Simon herde ỹ Triphon gathered a great hoost, to come into the lande of Juda, & to destroye it: and sawe that the people was in great fearfulnesse and care: he came vp to Jerusalẽ, and gathered the people together, and gaue them exhortacyõ, sayinge: Ye knowe what greate battayls I and my brethren and my fathers house haue fought for the lawe and the Sanctuary, and what maner of troubles we haue sene: thorow occasyon wherof * all my brethren are slayne for Jsraels sake, and I am left alone. And nowe lett not me spare myne awne lyfe in eny maner of trouble, for I am no better then my brethren: but wyll auenge my people and the Sanctuary, oure chyldren and oure wyues: for all the heathen are gathered together, to destroye vs of very malyce.

At these wordes the hertes of the people were kyndled together, so that they cryed wt a loude voyce, sayinge. Thou shalt be oure captayne in steade of Judas and Jonathas thy brethrẽ, order thou oure battell, & whatsoeuer thou commaundest vs, we shall do it. So he gathered all the men of warre, makynge haste to fynyche all the walles of Jerusalẽ, which he made stronge rõude aboute. B Then sent he Jonathas the sonne of Absalomus with a fresh hoste vnto Joppa, which draue them out that were in the castell, and remayned there him selfe. Triphon also remoued from Ptolomais wt a greate armye, to come in to the lande of Juda, and Jonathas wt him in warde. And Simon pytched his tentes at Addus before the playne felde.

But when Triphon knewe that Simon stode vp in steade of hys brother Jonathas, & that he wolde warre agaynst him: he sent messaungers vnto hym, sayinge: Where as we haue kepte Jonathas thy brother, it is for money that he is owynge in the kynges accompte, concernynge the busynesse that he had in hande. Wherfore sende now an. C. talentes of syluer and his two sonnes for suertye, that when he is letten forth he shall not forsake vs: and we shall sende hym agayne. Neuertheless Simon knewe, that he dissembled in his wordes: yet commaunded he the money and chyldren to be delyuered vnto him: lest he shulde be ỹ greater enemye agaynst the people of Jsrael: and saye, because he sent him not ỹ money and the chyldren, therfore is Jonathas deed.

So Symon sent him the chyldren and an C hundreth talentes, but he dissembled, & wolde not let Jonathas go. After warde came Triphon into the lande, to destroye it, and went rounde about by the waye, that ledeth vnto Ador. But where soeuer they wẽte, thyther wẽte Symon and his hoste also. Nowe they that were in the castell, sent messaũgers vnto Triphon, that he shulde make haste to come by the wyldernesse, and to sende them vytayles. And Triphon made ready all hys horsmẽ, to come that same nyght. Neuertheless it was a very greate snowe, so that he came not in. Gaaladithim. And whẽ he drewe nye Baschama, he slewe Jonathas and his sonnes there, and then turned for to goo home into his awne lande.

Then sent Symon for to fet his brothers deed coarse, and buryed it in Modin hys fathers cytie. So all Jsrael bewayled hym wt greate lamentacyon, and mourned for hym very longe. And Symon made vpon the sepulchre of his father and his brethrẽ, a huyldynge hye to loke vnto, of fre stone behynde and before. & set vp seuẽ pyllers, one agaynst another (for his father, his mother and foure brethrẽ) and set great pyllers rõude aboute, with armes vpon them for a perpetuall memory, and carued chyppes behynde the armes: that they myght be sene of men saylynge in the see. Thys sepulchre which he made at Modin, standeth yet vnto this daye.

D * Nowe as Triphon wẽt forth to walke wt the ponge kynge Antiochus, he slewe hym trayterously, & raygned in his steade, crowned hym selfe kynge of Asia, and dyd moch euell in the lande. Symon also buylte vp the castels castels in Jewry, makynge thẽ stronge with hye towres, great walles, portes and lockes and layed vp vitayles in the strong holdes. And Simon chose certaine men, & sent them to kynge Demetrius: to desyre him, that he wolde discharge the lande from all bõdage, for Triphõ had spoyled it very sore. Where vpon Demetrius the kynge answered him, and wrote vnto hym after thys maner.

Demetrius the kynge sendeth gretinge vnto Symon the hye prest hys frende, with the elders and people of ỹ Jewes. The golden crowne and precious stone that ye sent vnto vs, haue we receaued: and are ready to make a stedfast peace with you, yee and to wryte vnto oure officers, for to release you, concernynge the thynges wherin we made you fre: and the appoyntement that we make with you, shalbe firme and stable. The stronge holdes which ye haue buylded, shall be youre awne. As for eny ouersyght or fawte commytted vnto this daye, we forgeue it, & the crowne taxe that ye ought vs also. And where as was eny other tribute i Jerusalem, it shal now be no tribute: and loke who are mete among you to be in oure courte, let them be wryten vp, that there maye be peace betwyxte vs.

E Thus the yock of the heathen was taken from Jsrael, in the hundreth and seuentieth yeare. And the people of the Jewes beganne to wryte in theyr lettres & actes on this maner. 1. Mac. viii. d * In the fyrst yeare of Symon the hye prest, and prince of the Jewes.

In those dayes went Symon vnto Gaza, and besieged it rounde aboute, where he set vp ordynaunce of warre. And wanne a towre, which he toke. So they that gatt in to the towre leapte into ỹ cytye, whych was in a greate feare: In so moch that the people of the cytye rente their clothes, and clymmed vp vpon the walles with theyr wyues and chyldren beseechyng Symõ to be at one with them sayinge.

F Drewarde vs not after oure wickednes, but be gracious vnto vs, and we shall do ỹ seruyce. Then Symõ for very pytie, wolde fyght no more agaynst them, but put them out of the cytie, and caused the houses (wherin the Images were) to be clẽsed, and so entred the cytye wyth Psalmes of prayse, geuyng thanckes vnto the Lord. So when he had cast all abhominacyons out of the citie, he set soch mẽ in it as kepte the law of God, and made the cytie stronge, and buylded a dwellynge place for him selfe.

Now when they in the castell at Jerusalem were kepte so straytly, that they coulde not come forth into the countre, and myght nether bye ner sell: they were very hungrye, and many of them kamyshed to death: In so moch that they besought Simõ to be at one with them, which he graunted them. So he put them out from thence, and clensed the castell from fylthynesse. And vpon the. xxiii. daye of the seconde moneth in the. C. lxxi. yeare they entred into it wyth thanckesgeuynge and braunches of palme trees, wyth harpes, crowdes, cymbals, and lutes, syngynge psalmes, and songes of prayse vnto God, for that the greate enemy of Jsrael was ouercome.

And Symon ordeyned, that ỹ same daye shuld be kepte euery yeare in gladnesse, and made stronge the hyll of ỹ temple that was besyde the castell, where he dwelt hym selfe with his company. Symon also perceauing that Jhon his sonne was a myghtie man of armes, made him captayne of all the hoostes and caused him to dwell at Gaza.

¶ The. xiiii. Chapter.

¶ Demetrius is ouercome of Arsaces. Symõ beyng captayne there is greate quyetnes in Jsraell. The couenaunt of frendshyp with the Romaynes and with the people of Sparta is renued.

IN the. C. lxxii. yeare gathered kynge Demetrius his hoost, and departed vnto Media, to gett hym helpe for to fyght agaynst Triphon. Now when Arsaces the kynge of Persia and Media herde, ỹ Demetrius was entred wyth in hys borders: he sent one of his princes to take him alyue: and to brynge hym vnto hym. So he wente and slewe Demetrius hoste, toke hym selfe, brought hym to Arsaces, whych kepte hym in warde. And all the lande of Juda was in rest, so longe as Simon lyued, for he sought the wealth of his people, therfore were they glad to haue hym for theyr ruler, and to do hym worshyppe all waye.

Symon wãne the citie of Joppa also for an haũ towne, and made it an entraunce vnto the Iles of ỹ see. He enlarged the borders of his people, and cõquered them more land: He gathered vp many of theyr people that were preseners: he had the dominion of Gaza, Bethsura and the castell, whych he clensed from fylthynes, and there was no man that resisted him: So that euery man tylled hys grounde in peace, the lande of Juda and B the trees gaue their frute and encrease. The elders sat all in iudgement, and toke theyr deuice for the wealth of the lande: the ponge men put on worshyp and harnesse vpon thẽ. He prouyded vytalles for the cytyes, and made goodly stronge holdes of them: so that the fame of hys worshyp was spoken of vnto ỹ ende of the worlde. * For he made peace thorow out the land, and Jsrael was full of myrth and ioye. * 1. Reg. xxvi. iiii. Reg iii. a come. He helped thoſe that were in aduerſyte among his people, he was diligent to ſe ꝑ lawe kepte: as for ſoch as were vngodly ād wycked, he toke them awaye. He ſet vp the Sanctuary, and encreaſed the holy veſſels of the temple.

Euery man sat vnder his vyne and fygg trees, and there was no man to fraye them awaye. There was none in ỹ lande to fyght agaynst thẽ, for then the kynges were ouercome.

When the Romaynes and Sparcians had gotten worde, that Jonathas was deed they were right ſory. But when they hearde that Symō his brother was made hye prieſt in hys ſteade, & how he had wonne the lande agayne with the cities in it: they wrote vnto him in tables of braſſe, to renue the frēdſhyp, and bonde of loue, which they had made afore wyth * Judas and ‡ Jonathas hys brethren. Which writinges were red before the congregacyon at Jeruſalem.

¶ And this is the copy of the lettres, that the Sparciās ſent: The Senatours and citeſins of Sparta ſende greting vnto Simō the great prieſte, with the elders, prieſtes, ād the other people of the Jewes their brethrē: When youre ambaſſytours that were ſent vnto oure people, certyfied vs of youre worſhyppe, honoure and proſperous wealth: we were glad of theyr cōming, and haue wrytten the caraūde which they ſpake before the councell of the people: namely, that Numenius the ſonne of Antiochus, And Antipater ꝑ ſonne of Jaſon ꝑ Jewes ambaſſitours are come vnto vs, for to renue the olde frēdſhype with vs. ¶ Upon this the people conſented, that the men ſhuld be honorably intreated, and that the copy of theyr caraūde ſhulde be writtē in the ſpeciall bokes of the people, for a perpetuall memory vnto ꝑ Sparcians: yee and that we ſhulde ſende a copy of the ſame vnto Symon ꝑ great prieſte. After this dyd Simō ſende Numenius vnto Rome, wᵗ a golden ſhylde of a thouſande poūde weight, to cōfirme the frēdſhip wᵗ thē: which when ꝑ Romaynes vnderſtode, they ſayde: what thāckes ſhall we recōpēce agayne vnto Symō & his childrē? For he hath ſtabliſhed his brethrē, & ouercome ꝑ enemies of Iſrael. Wherfore, they graunted him to be free. And all this wrote ꝑ Jewes ī tables of braſſe, & nayled it vnto ꝑ pillers vpon ꝑ mounte Syon. The copy of the wrytinge is this.

* Auguſt.

The .xviii. daye of ꝑ moneth * Elul in the Clxxii. yeare in ꝑ third yeare of Simō ꝑ hye prieſte, in ꝑ great cōgregacion the prieſtes, rulers of ꝑ people, & elders of ꝑ coūtre at Aſarame, were theſe wordes openly declared.

E For ſo moch as there was moch warre in our land, therfore Simon the ſonne of Mathathias (come of the childzen of Jareb) and his brethren put them ſelues in parell, and reſiſted the enemyes of theyr people: ꝑ theyr Sanctuary & lawe myght be mayntayned, and dyd theyr people great worſhip: Jonathas in lyke maner, after that he had gouerned hys people & bene their hye prieſte: dyed, and lyeth buryed beſyde hys elders.

After that wold theyr enemyes haue troden their holy thinges vnder fote, deſtroyed their lande, and vtterly waſted their Sanctuary. Then Symon withſtode them, and fought for his people, ſpēt moch of hys awne money, weapened the valeaunt men of hys people, gaue them wages, made ſtronge the cyties of Juda, wyth Bethſura that lyeth vpon the borders of Jewry (where the ordinaunce of theyr enemies laye ſomtyme) and ſet Jewes there for to kepe it.

He made faſt Joppa alſo, which lyeth vpō F the ſee, & Gaza that bordreth vpon Azotus (where ꝑ enemies dwelt afore) & there he ſet Jewes to kepe it: and whatſoeuer was mete for the ſubduyng of the aduerſaries, ꝑ layed he therin. Now whē the people ſawe the noble actes of Symon, & what worſhyppe, he purpoſed to do for thē, his godly behauoure, & faithfulneſſe which he kepte vnto thē, and how he ſought by all wayes ꝑ wealth of his people, becauſe he dyd all this, therfore they choſe him to be theyr prīce & hye prieſte. And in his tyme they proſpered well by him, ſo ꝑ the heathen were takē out of theyr lande: & they alſo which were in ꝑ cytie of Dauid at Jeruſalem in the caſtel (where they wēt out and defyled all thinges that were about the Sanctuary, & dyd greate harme vnto clenlynes) and Symon put men of the Jewes in it, for the defence of the lande and cytie, and ſet vp the walles of Jeruſalem.

And kyng Demetrius confirmed hym in G his hye prieſthode, made him his frēde, & dyd him great worſhippe. For he herde that the Romayns called the Jewes theyr frendes, louers & brethrē: how honorably they receaued Symōs ambaſſitours: how the Jewes & prieſtes conſented that he ſhulde be theyr prīce & hye prieſt perpetually (tyll God rayſed vp the true prophet) & that he ſhulde be theyr captaine, to care for the Sanctuary, & to ſet officers vpon the workes therof, ouer ꝑ land, ouer the weapens, ouer the houſes of defence, to make prouiſion for the holy thinges, & to be obeyed of euery mā, & all ꝑ wrytinges of the land to be made in hys name: ꝑ he ſhulde be clothed in purple & golde, & that it ſhulde be laufull for none of the people nor preſtes to breake eny of theſe thynges, to withſtande his wordes, ner to call eny congregacion in the land without him: that he ſhulde be clothed in purple, & weare a colar of gold: And yf ther were eny which diſobeied or breake this ordinaunce, ꝑ he ſhulde be punyſhed.

So all the people conſented to alowe Simon, and to do accordynge to theſe wordes: Symon alſo him ſelf toke it vpon him, and was contente to be ꝑ hye prieſt, the captayne and prince of the Jewes and prieſtes, and to gouerne gouerne them all. And they commaſided to make this wrytinge in tables of braſſe, and faſten it vnto the compaſſe of the Sanctuary in an open place: and to laye vp a copy of the ſame in the treaſury, that Symon & hys poſterite myght haue it.

¶ The.xv. Chapter.

¶ Antiochus maketh a couenaūt of frendſhyp with Symon, & Triphō is perſequuted. The Romaynes wrote letters vnto kynges and nacyons in the defence of the Jewes. Antiochus refuſynge the helpe that Symon ſent hym, breaketh hys couenaunt.

A MOreouer, kyng Antiochus ꝑ ſonne of Demetrius ſent letters frō ꝑ Iles of the ſee, vnto Symon ꝑ hye prieſt and prince of the Jewes, and to all ꝑ people conteyninge theſe wordes: Antiochus ꝑ kynge ſendeth gretynge vnto Symō the hye prieſt and to the people of the Jewes. For ſo moch as certayne wicked mē haue gotten ꝑ kyngdome of oure progenitours, I am purpoſed to chalenge ꝑ realme agayne, and to reſtore it to the olde eſtate.

Wherfore I haue gathered a great hoſt, & made ſhippes of warre: ꝑ I maye goo thorow the countre, & be auenged of thē which haue deſtroyed oure land, and waſted many cyties i my realme. And therfore now I make the fre alſo frō all the tributes, wherof al kinges my progenitours haue diſcharged ꝑ and frō other cuſtomes (wher frō they haue releaſed ꝑ) whatſoeuer they be: Yee I geue ꝑ leaue to ſmyte money of thyne awne wīn thy lande. As for Jeruſalem, I wyll that it be holy and fre: & all the weapēs and houſes of defence which thou haſt buylded & kepeſt in thine hādes, ſhall be thyne. Where as eny thing is or ſhall be owynge vnto the kynge, I forgeue it ꝑ, frō this tyme forth for euermore. And whē we haue optayned our kingdome, we ſhall do ꝑ, thy people and the tēple great worſhippe: ſo ꝑ youre honoure ſhall be knowen thorow out the whole worlde.

In the. Clxxiii. yeare wente Antiochus into his fathers lande, & all the mē of warre came together vnto hym, ſo that fewe were left wᵗ Triphon. So ꝑ kynge Antiochus folowed vpō hī, but he fled vnto Doza, which lieth by the ſee ſyde: for he ſawe ꝑ there was miſcheke comming vnto him, & that his hoſt had forſakē him. Then cam Antiochus vnto Doza with an hundreth and twēty thouſande mē of armes vpon fote, & eyght thouſande horſmē. So he cōpaſed the citie roūde about, ād ꝑ ſhippes came by the See. Thus they vexed the citie by land & by water, in ſo moch ꝑ they ſuffred no mā to go in nor oute.

In the meane ſeaſon came * Numenius (& they that had bene with him) from ꝑ citie of Rome, hauinge lettres wrytten vnto the kynges and prouincies, wherin were cōteyned theſe wordes: Lucius ꝑ Mayre of Rome ſendeth greting vnto Ptolomy ꝑ kyng. The embaſſitours of the Jewes our frendes beyng ſent from Symon the hye prieſt and from the people of the Jewes, came vnto vs for to renue the olde frendſhippe, and bonde of loue, brought a ſhylde of golde weyeng a thouſande pounde, which we were contente to receaue of them. Wherfore we thought it good to wryte vnto the kynges and prouincies, to do them no harme, nor to take parte agaynſt them, theyr cityes ner coūtrees, nether to maintene their enemies agaynſt thē. If there be eny wycked perſonnes therfore, fled from their countre vnto you, deliuer thē vnto Symon the hye prieſt, that he maye puniſh them accordyng to theyr awne lawe.

The ſame wordes wrote the Romaynes alſo vnto Demetrius ꝑ kynge, to Attalus, Araba, Arſaces & to all regions: as Samſanes, to thē of Sparta, Delo, Mydo, Sicyō, Caria, Samos, Pamphilia, Lycia, Alicarnaſſum, & to the Rhodes, to Faſelis, Coo, Sida, Arado, Gortina, Gnydū, to Cyprees and to Cyzen. And of euery lettre they ſent D a copy to Simon ꝑ hye prieſt and to the people of the Jewes. So Antiochus the kynge brought his hoſt vnto Doza ꝑ ſeconde tyme to take it: where he made diuerſe ordinaunce of warre, & kepte Triphō in, that he ſhuld not come forth. Thē ſent Symon to Antiochus two thouſande choſen men to helpe him with gold, ſyluer and other plenteous geere: Neuertheleſſe, he wolde not receaue them, but brake all ꝑ couenaunt which he made wᵗ Symō afore, & withdrewe him ſelf frō him.

He ſent Athenobius alſo a frende of hys vnto Simō, for to reaſon with him, ſaying: Ye witholde frome Joppa & Gaza (with the caſtell that is at Jeruſalem) which are cyties of my realme, whoſe borders ye haue deſtroyed, & done greate euell in the lande, haupyng the dominacyon in many other places of my kyngdome. Wherfore delyuer now ꝑ cyties which ye haue taken, with ꝑ tributes of the places that ye haue rule vpō without ꝑ borders of Jewry: Or elſ geue my fyue hū dreth talentes of ſyluer, yee and for ꝑ harme that ye haue done in ꝑ cyties & for the tributes of ꝑ ſame, other fyue hundreth talentes. If no, we ſhall come and fyght agaynſt you.

So Athenobius the kynges frende came E to Jeruſalem, & whē he ſawe the great worſhyp and honoure of Symon in gold, ſyluer & ſo great plenty of ornamentes: he marueled, and tolde Symon as ꝑ kyng commaunded hym. Then anſwered Symon and ſayd vnto hym: * As for vs, we haue nether taken other mens lādes, ner withholdē thē, but onely oure fathers heritage, which oure enemyes had vnryghteouſly in poſſeſſion a certayne tyme. This heritage of oure fathers haue we chalenged in proceſſe of tyme. And where where as thou cõplaynest concernyng Joppa and Gaza, they dyd great harme to oure people and in oure lande, yet wyll we geue an. C. talentes for them.

Neuertheles Athenobius answered hym not one word, but turned agayne wrothfully vnto the kyng, & tolde him all these wordes, and the great dignite of Symon, with all that he had sene, and the kynge was very angrie. In the meane tyme fled Typhon by shippe vnto Dorhosaida. Then the kyng made Cendebeus captayne of the see coast, & gaue him an host of fote men and horsmen, commaundynge him to remoue the host towarde Jewry, and to buylde vp the cytie of Cedron, to make vp the portes, and to warre agaynst the people of the Jewes. As for ỹ kyng hym selfe, he folowed vpon Typhon. So Cendebeus came vnto Jamnia, and began to vexe the people, to treade downe Jewry, to take ỹ people presoners, to slaye them, and * to buylde vp Cedron: where he sett horsmen and other men of warre, that they myght come forth and go thorow the stretes of Jewry, lyke as the kyng had commaunded hym.

¶ The .xvi. Chapter.

¶ Cendebeus the captayne of Antiochus hoste is put to flight of the sonnes of Symon Ptolomeus ỹ sonne of Abobus kylleth Symon & his .ii. sonnes at a banket. Johan kylleth them that lye in wayte for hys lyfe.

A *1.mac.xvi.f Then came Jhon vp from *Gaza, and tolde Symon his father, what Cendebeus had done amonge theyr people. Upon thys called Symon two of hys eldest sonnes, Judas and Jhon, and sayd vnto them: I and my brethren and my fathers house, haue euer frõ our youth vp vnto this daye, foughten agaynst the enemyes of Israel, and God gaue vs good fortune to delyuer Israell oft tymes. And now for so moch as I am olde, be ye in steade of me & my brother, to go forth and fyght for oure people, & the helpe of God be with you. So he chose .xx. M. fighting men of ỹ countre, with horsmen also, which went forth agaynst Cendebeus, and rested at Modin.

In the mornyng they arose, and went into the playne felde: and beholde, a myghtye great host came agaynst them, both of fote men and horsmen. Now was there a water broke betwyxte them, and Jhon remoued ỹ host towarde them. And when he sawe that the people was afrayed to goo ouer the water broke, he went ouer fyrst hym selfe: and the men seinge this, folowed hym.

B Then Jhon set his horsmen and fote men in order, the one by the other, for theyr enemies horsmen were very many. But when they blewe vp the prestes trompettes, Cendebeus fled w̃ his hoste, wherof many were slayne, and the remnaunt gat them to theyr stronge holde. Judas also Jhons brother was wounded at the same tyme. And Jhon folowed styll vpon the enemyes, tyll he came to Cedrõ * which he buylded. The enemyes fled also vnto the towres that were in the feldes of Azotus, and those dyd Jhon burne vp. Thus there were slayne .ii. M. men of them, and Jhon turned agayne peaceably into Jewry. *1.mac.xvi.f

And in the feldc of Jericho was Ptolomy the sonne of Abobus made captayne: which because he had aboundaunce of syluer and golde (for he had maried ỹ daughter of Symon ỹ hye prest) waxed proude in hys mynde, and thought to conquere the lande, ymagening falsched agaynst Symõ and his sonnes, to destroye them. Now as Symon was goyng aboute thorow the cyties, that were in the countre of Jewry, and caring for thẽ: he came downe to Jericho with Mathatias and Judas his sonnes, in the .Clxxvii. yeare in the .xi. moneth called * Sabat. Thẽ Ptolomy the sonne of Abobus receaued thẽ (but with disceate) into a stronge house of hys called Doch, whych he had buylded, where he made them a bancket. C *January.

So when Symon and hys sonnes were mery and had drõcken well, Ptolomy stode vp with hys men (whom he had hyd there) and toke their weapens, entred into ỹ banket house, and slewe Symon with his two sonnes, and certaine of his seruaũtes. Soch great vnfaythfulnesse dyd Ptolomy in Israell, and recompensed euell for good. Then wrote this Ptolomy ỹ same vnto kyng Antiochus, requyringe him, that he shuld sende hym an host to helpe him: and so shuld he delyuer hym the lande, with the cyties and tributes of the same. He sent other men also vnto Gaza, for to take Jhon: and wrote vnto the captaynes to come to him, and he shulde geue them syluer, golde and rewardes. And to Jerusalem he sent other, to take it, & the Sanctuary. D

Then ranne there one before, and tolde Jhõ in Gaza, that his father & his brethren were slayne, & how that Ptolomy had sent to slaye hym also. When Jhon herde this, he was sore abashed, and layed handes of them that were come to destroye hym, and slewe them: for he knewe, that they went aboute to kyll hym.

As for other thynges concernyng Jhon: of hys warres, of hys noble actes (wherin he behaued hym selfe manfully) of the buyldinge of walles which he made, and other of his dedes: They are written in the cronicles of hys presthode, from the tyme forth that he was made hye prest after hys father.

¶ An epistle of the Jewes that dwelt at Jerusalem sent vnto them whych dwelt in Egipte, wher in they exhorte them to geue thankes for the deeth of Antiochus. Of the fyre that was hydde in ỹ pyt. The prayer of Nehemias.

A The brethrẽ of the Jewes which be at Jerusalem, and in the lande of Jewry, wysh vnto those brethren of the Jewes that are thorow out Egypte: good fortune, health and peace.

God be gracyous vnto you, and thyncke vpon his couenaũt that he made with Abraham, Isaac and Jacob his kaythfull seruaũtes: *and geue you all soch an herte, that ye maye loue and serue him, yee and perfourme hys wyll with an whole herte and ob a wyllynge mynde: He open youre hertes in hys lawe and in hys commaundementes, sende you peace: heare youre prayers, be at one with you, and neuer forsake you in tyme of trouble. This is here our prayer for you. *dm.xxx.b

What tyme as Demetrius raigned, in ỹ Clxix. yeare, we Jewes wrote vnto you in the trouble and violẽce that came vnto vs. In those yeares, after that Jason departed oute of the holy lande and kyngdome, they brent vp the portes, & shed innocent blonde. Then made we our prayer vnto the Lorde, and were heard: we offred: and lyghted the candels, setting forth cakes and bred. *And now come ye vnto the feaste of tabernacles in the moneth † Casleu. *Exod.xxviii.f †Nouember.

B In the. Clxxxviii. yeare, the people that was at Jerusalem and in Jewry, the councell and Judas hym selfe, sent thys wholsome salutacion vnto Aristobolus kyng Ptolomys master, which came of the generacio of the anoynted prestes: and to the Jewes that were in Egypte: In so moche as God hath delyuered vs from greate perels, we thancke hym hylye. In that we resysted so myghtie a kynge. And why? he brought mẽ out of Persis by heapes, to fyght agaynst vs and the holy citie. For as he was in Persis (namely, the Captayne wyth the greate host) he perysshed in the temple of Naneas, beynge disceaued thorow the deuice of Naneas prestes. For as he was purposed to haue dwelt there, Antiochus and hys frendes came thyther, to receaue moch money for a dowry. So whẽ Naneas prestes had layed forth the money, he entred with a small cõpany into the compasse of the temple, ãd so they shut the temple.

C Now whẽ Antiochus entred by opening the preuy intraunce of the tẽple, the prestes stoned the captayne to death, hewed thẽ in peces that were wyth hym, smote of theyr heades, and threwe them out. In al thinges God be praysed, whyche hath delyuered the wycked into our handes.

Where as we now are purposed to kepe the purificacion of the temple vpõ the .xxv. daye of the moneth Casleu, we thought necessary to certifye you therof: that ye also myght *kepe the tabernacles feast daye, ãd the daye of the fyre, whyche was geuen vs when Nehemias offred, after that he had set vp the temple and the aulter. For what tyme as oure fathers were led awaye vnto Persis, the prestes (whych then sought the honoure of God) toke the fyre preuely frõ the aulter, and hyd it in a valley, where as was a depe drye pyt: and therin they kepte it, so that the place was vnknowen to euery man. Now after many yeares when it pleased God that Nehemias shulde be sent from the kynge of Persia, * he sent the chylders chyldren of those prestes (which had hyd the fyre) to seke it. And as they tolde vs they founde no fyre, but thicke water. Thẽ commaunded he them to drawe it vp, & to bring it hym, and the offringes withal. Now whẽ the sacrifices were layed on and ordred, the prest Nehemias commaunded to sprynckle them and the wod wyth water. When thys was done, ãd the tyme come that the Sunne shone, which afore was hyd in the cloude: there was a great fyre kyndled. In so moch that euery man marueled. Now all the prestes prayed, whyle the sacrifyce was a makinge. Jonathas prayed first, and the other gaue answere. *Leui.vi.a *Leui.xxiii.f Nume.xxix.b iiii.Esd.v.e

And Nehemias prayer was after thys maner: O Lorde God maker of all thynges thou fearfull and stronge, thou ryghteous and mercyfull, thou that art onely a gracyous kynge, onely lyberall, onely iust, Almyghtye and euerlastynge, thou that delyuerest Israel from al trouble, thou that hast chosen the fathers and halowed them: receaue the offerynge for the whole people of Israel, preserue thyne awne pozcion, and halowe it, gather those together, that are scatred abrode from vs: delyuer them that are vnder the Heathens bondage, loke vpõ thẽ whych are despysed and abhorred, that the Heathen maye knowe and se how that thou art our God: Punysshe them that oppresse, and proudly put vs to dishonoure. Set thy people agayne in thy holy place * lyke as Moses hath spoken. Deut.xxx.a

And the prestes songe Psalmes of thankesgeuinge, so long as the sacrifice endured. Now when the sacrifice was brent, Nehemias commaunded the greate stones to be sprynckled wyth the residue of the water. *Which whẽ it was done, there was kyndled a *Judi.vi.d iii.Re.viii.c Eccl.xlviii.a

led a flamme of them also: but it was consumed thorowe ꝑ lyght, that shyned from the aulter. So when this matter was knowen, it was tolde ꝑ kynge of Persia, ꝑ in the place where ꝑ prestes, which were led awaye, had hyd fyre, there apeared water in steade of fyre, and that Nehemias & his company had purified the sacrifyces withall. Then the kynge consyderynge & ponderynge the matter dilygently, made hym a temple to proue the thynge that was done. And when he founde it so in dede, he gaue the prestes many gyftes & diuerse rewardes, yee, he toke them with his awne hād and gaue them. And Nehemias called ꝑ same place Nephthar, which is as moch to saye as a clensynge: but many men call it Nephi.

¶How Jeremy hydde the tabernacle, the Arke, and the aultare in the hyll. Of the.v. bokes of Jason contayned in one.

AIt is founde also in the writynges of Jeremy the prophet, that he cōmaūded them which where caryed awaye, to take fyre, * as it is sayde afore. ‡ He commaunded them also, that they shuld not forget the lawe and cōmaundemētes of the Lorde, and that they shulde not erre in theyr myndes, when they se ymages of syluer and golde with theyr ornamētes. These and soch other thynges cōmaunded he them, and exhorted them, that they shulde not lett the lawe of God go out of theyr hertes.

It is wrytten also, how the prophet (at the commaundemēt of God) charged them to take the tabernacle, & the arcke wᵗ them: and he wente forth vnto the mountayne, where Moses clymed vp, * & sawe the herytage of God. And when Jeremy came there he founde an open caue, wherin he layed the tabernacle, the arcke, & the aulter of incense, and so stopped the hole. There came certayne men together also folowyng hym, to marcke the place, but they coulde not fynde it. Which when Jeremy perceaued, he reproued them, saying: As for ꝑ place, it shalbe vnknowne, vntyll the tyme ꝑ God gather his people together agayne, & receaue them vnto mercy. Then shal God shew them these thynges, & the maiesty of the Lorde shall appeare, * and ꝑ cloude also lyke as it was shewed vnto Moses: and lyke as when Salomon desyred, that the place myght be sanctifyed, and it was shewed hym.

Now when Appolonius had shewed the B
kynge of the moneye, as it was tolde hym: ꝑ kyng called for Heliodorus his stewarde, & sent hym with a cōmaundement, to bring hym the same money. Immediatly Heliodorus toke hys iourney, but vnder a colourc, as though he wolde go thorow Celosyria and Phenices to vysed ꝑ cyties, but hys purpose was to fulfyll the kīges pleasure. So when he came to Jerusalem, ād was louyngly receaued of the hye prest into thē cyte: he tolde what was determyned concernynge the moneye, and shewed the cause of hys cōming: he asked also, yf it were so i dede. Thē the hye prest tolde him, that there was soch money layed vp for the vpholdinge of wyddowes and fatherlesse chyldren, & how that a certayne of it belonged vnto Hyrcan⁹ Tobias a noble man: and that of al the moncie (Whych ꝑ wycked Simon had bewrayed) there were.iiii.hundreth talētes of syluer, & vii.hundreth of golde: yee and that it were vnpossible for those mens meanynge to be disceaued, that had layed vp theyr money in ꝑ place and temple (whych is had in worshyp thorow the whole worlde) for the maynteynaunce and honoure of the same. Wher vnto Heliodor⁹ answered, that the kynge had commaunded hym in auy wyse, to bryngе hym the money.

So at the daye appoynted, Heliodorus C entred into the temple to ordre thys matter But there was no small feare thorow out ꝑ whole cytie. The Prestes fell downe before the aulter in theyr vestimētes, and called vnto heauen vpon hī, * whych had made a lawe concernynge stuffe geuen to kepe, that they shulde be safely preserued for soch as cōmitte thē vnto keppynge. Then who so had loked the hye preste in the face, it wold haue greued hys herte: For hys contenaunce and the chaungynge of his coloure, declared the inwarde sorowe of hys mīde. The mā was all in heyuynesse, and his body in feare: wherby they that loked vpō hym, myght perceaue ꝑ grefe of his herte. The other people also came out of theyr houses by heapes vnto ꝑ comon prayer because ꝑ place was lyke to come into confusyon. The wemē came together thorow ꝑ stretes, with hearrye clothes aboute theyr breastes.

The vyrgyns also that were kepte ī rāme to Onias, some in the walles, other some loked out of the wyndowes: yee they all held vp theyr handes towarde heauen, & prayed. A miserable thynge was it, to loke vpō the comen people, & the hye prest beynge in soch trouble. But they besought almighty God that the goodes whych were cōmytted vnto them, myght be kepte whole, for those ꝑ had delyuered thē vnto theyr keppynge. Neuertheles the thynge that Heliodorus was determyned to do, that perfourmed he ī the same place, he hym selfe personally beynge about the treasury with hys men of warre. But ꝑ spyrete of almyghty God shewed him selfe openly, so that all they which presumed to obeye Heliodorus, fell thorow the power of God into a greate fearfulnesse and drede.

* ii. mac.v.a and.x.b.

* For there appeared vnto them an horse, wᵗ a terrible man sytting vpon hym, decktin goodly arape, and the horse smote at Heliodorus wyth hys fore fete. Now he that sat vpon ꝑ horse, had harnesse of golde vpon hī.

Moreouer, there apeared .ii. fayre & beutyfull pōge mē in goodly aray, which stode by him, scourged hym of both the sydes, and gaue hym many strypes without ceassinge.

*ii.mac.b.c E *With that fell Heliodorus sodenly vnto ꝑ groūde. So they toke hym vp (beige compased aboute with greate darcknesse) & bare hym out vpon a bere. Thus he that came with so many rummers and men of warre in to the sayde treasury, was borne out, where as no man myght helpe hym: & so the power of God was manyfest and knowne. He laye styll domme also by the power of God destitute of all hope & lyfe. And they praysed the Lord, that he had the wed his power vpō his place ād tēple, whych a lytle afore was full of feare & trouble: and that thorow the reuelacyon of the almyghtie Lord, it was fylled with ioye and gladnesse.

Thē certayne of Heliodorus frēdes prayed Onias, that in all haste he wolde call vpon God, to graunte hī hys lyfe, whych was geuynge vp the goost. So the hye preest considered the matter, ād lest the kyng shuld suspecte that the Jewes had done Heliodorus some euell: he offred an healthofferynge for him. Now whē the hye Preest had optayned hys peticion, the same yonge men in ꝑ same clothinge appeared, & stode besyde Heliodorus, sayēge: Thancke Onias the hye preest, for* for his sake hath ꝑ Lord graūted ꝑ thy lyfe: therfore seing ꝑ God hath scourged the geue hym prayse & thākes, and shewe euery man hys myght & power. And whē they had spokē these wordes, they appeared nomore.

* Act.xxviii.c F

So Heliodorus offred vnto God, made great vowes vnto him, which had graūted him his lyfe, thācked Onias, toke his goost & wēte agayne to the kynge. Then testified he vnto euery man of the greate workes of God, that he had sene w̄ his eyes. And whē the kynge asked Heliodorus who were mete to be sent yet once agayne to Jerusalē, he sayde: yf thou hast any enemy or aduersary vnto thy realme, sende him thyther, & thou shalt haue hym punyshed, yf he escape wyth his lyfe: for in that place (no doute) there is a speciall power & worckīg of God. For he ꝑ dwelleth in heauen, visiteth & defendeth ꝑ place: ād all that come to do it harme, he punyssheth ād plageth them. Thys is now the matter concernynge Heliodorus, & the keppyng of the treasury at Jerusalem,

¶ The .iiii. Chapter.

¶ Simon reporteth euell of Onias. Jason desyrynge the office of the hye Preest corrupteth the kynge wyth rewardes. The wycked intent of Jason.

A ii.mac.iii.a THis Symon now (of whō we spake afore) beinge a dewrayer of the money & of hys awne naturall contre, reported ꝑ worst of Onias: as though he had moued Heliodorus vnto thys, & as though he had bene a bynger vp of euel. Thus was he not ashamed to call hym an enemye of ꝑ realme, that was so faythfull an ouerseer & defender of the cite & of his people: yee ād so feruent in the lawe of God. But whē ꝑ malice of Simō increased so farre, that thorow hys frendes there were certayne mūslaughters cōmytted: Onias considered the parell that myght come thorow this stryfe, & how that Appolonius (namely the chefe Lorde in Celosyria & Phenices) was all set vpon tyranny, and Symons malice increased the same: he gat him to the kynge, not as an accuser of the cytesins, but as one that by hī selfe intended ꝑ comon wealth of the whole multitude. For he sawe it was not possible to lyue in peace, nether Simon to leaue of from his folyshnesse, except ꝑ kynge dyd loke ther to. But after the deeth of Selecucus, when Antioch⁹ (which is called the noble) toke ꝑ kyngdome: Jason the brother of Onias laboured to be hye preest: For he came vnto the kynge, and promised him thre hūdreth & .lx. talentes of syluer, & of ꝑ other rentes. lxxx. talentes. Besides this he promised him yet an. C. & .L. yf he myght haue the scole of the chyldren, & that he myght call them of Jerusalem Antiochians. Which when the kinge had graunted, & he had gotte ꝑ superiorite, he begāne immediatly to draw his kynsmē to the custome of the Heathen, put downe ꝑ thynges that the Jewes had set vp of loue, by John ꝑ father of Eupolemi⁹ which was sent ambassitoure vnto Rome, for to make ꝑ bonde of frendshyppe & loue. He put downe all the Jewes & Lyberties of the Jewes, & set vp the wicked statutes. He durst make a fyghtynge scole vnder the castell, and set fayre yōge men to lerne the maners of whores and brothels.

This was now ꝑ begynnyng of the Heathenysh & straunge conuersacyō, brought in thorow the vngracious & vnheard wickednesse of Jason, which shulde not be called a Preest, but an vngodly personne. In so moch that the prestes were now nomore occupied about the seruyce of the aulter, but despysed the temple, regarded not the offrynges: yee gaue their diligence to lerne to fyght, to wraste, to leape, to daunce, & to put at ꝑ stone not settynge by ꝑ honour of ꝑ fathers, but lyked the glory of the Grekes best of all: for the which they stroue perlously, & were greedy to folowe theyr statutes, yee, theyr lust was in all thinges to be lyke thē, which afore were theyr enemyes & destroyers. Howbeit to do wyckedly agaynst ꝑ lawe of God shall not escape vnpunyshed: but of this we shall speake here after.

What tyme as the* Olympiades sportes were played at Tyrus (ꝑ kynge hym selfe beynge beinge presente) this vngracyo⁹ Jason sent wycked men, bearyng from them of Jerusalem (whych now were called Antiochians) iii. C. drachmars of syluer for an offerynge to Hercules. These had they ꝑ carryed them desyred vnder soch a fashiō, as though they shulde not haue bene offred but bestowed to other vses. Neuertheles, he that sent them, sent them to the intēt that they shulde be offred vnto Hercules. But because of those ꝑ were present, they were geuen as to the makynge of shyppes. And Appolonius the sonne of Nesteus was sent into Egypte, because of the noble men of kynge Ptolomy Philometor. Now when Antiochus perceaued, that he was put out from medlynge in ꝑ realme, he sought his awne profyte, departed from thence, came to Joppa, & then to Jerusalem: where he was honorably receaued of Jason, & of ꝑ cyte, & was brought in wyth torche lyght and with greate prayse: and so he turned his hooste vnto Phenices.

* These were kepte euery fyfte yeare.

*ii.mac.iii.b After .iii. yeare Jason sent Menelay⁹, the foresayde Simōs brother, * to beare ꝑ money vnto ꝑ kyng, & to bringe hym answere of other necessary matters. But he (whē he was praysed of the kyng for magnifying of his power) turned ꝑ preesthod vnto him selfe, layinge vp .iii. C. talentes of syluer for Jason. So whē he had gotten cōmaundemētes from the kyng (he came haupnge nothinge ꝑ becōmeth a preste) but bearinge ꝑ stomacke of a cruel tyraūt, & ꝑ wrath of a wilde brute beest. * Thē Jason (which had disceaued his awne brother) seinge that he him selfe was begyled also, was fayne to flee into the lande of the Ammonites, & Menelaus gat the dominion. But as for ꝑ money ꝑ he had promysed vnto ꝑ kyng, he dyd nothinge therin, when Sostratus the ruler of the castell requyred it of him. For Sostratus was ꝑ mā that gathered the customes: wherfore they were both called before ꝑ kyng. Thus was Menelaus put out of the preesthode, & Lysimachus his brother came in his steade. Sostratus also was made Lord of ꝑ Cyprias.

It happened in the meane season, that ꝑ Tharsiās & Mallasiās made insurreccion, because they were geuen for a present vnto kynge Antiochus cōcubyne. Then came the kynge in all the haste, to styll them agayne, & to pacyfie ꝑ matter, leauyng Andronicus there to be his debyte as one mete therfore. Now Menelaus supposing that he had gotten a ryght conuenient tyme, stole certayne vessels of golde out of the temple, and gaue them to Andronic⁹ for a present: & some he solde at Tyrus and in the cyties therby.

Which when Onias knewe of a suertye, he reproued him: but he kepte him in a Sanctuary beside Daphnis, that lieth by Antioche. Wherfore Menelaus gat hī to Andronicus, & prayed hī ꝑ he wold slaye Onias. So whē he came to Onias, he cōceled him craftely to come out of the Sanctuary geuynge hym his hande with an othe (how be it he suspecte hym) & then he slew Onyas, wythout any regarde of ryghtuousnesse.

For the whych cause not only the Jewes, but other nacyons also toke indignacyon, & were displeased for the vnryghtuous death of so godly a man.

And when the kynge was come agayne from Cilicia, the Jewes and certayne of ꝑ Grekes wente vnto hym, cōplayninge for the vnryghtuous death of Onias. Yee Antiochus him selfe was sory in hys mynde for Onias, so that it pitied him, & he wepte, remembringe his soberneste & manerly behauoure. Wherfore he was so kyndled in hys mynde, that he cōmaūded Andronicus to be stripped out of his purple clothinge, & so to be led thorow out the cite: yee, & the vngracio⁹ man to be slayne in the same place where he cōmitted his wickednes vpō Onias. Thus the Lorde rewarded him his punyshmēt, as he had deserued. Now when Lysymachus had done many wycked dedes in the temple thorow the councell of Menelaus, and the voyce came abrode: the multitude gathered them together agaynst Lysymachus: for he had carryed out now moch golde.

So when the people arose, and were full of displeasure, Lysymachus armed. iii. M vnthryftes to defende hym: a certayne tyrannte beyng theyr captayne, which was grow̄en both in age and woodnesse. But when the people vnderstode the purpose of Lysymachus, some gat stones, some good strōge clubbes, & some cast ashes vpō Lysimachus. Thus there were many of thē wounded, some beyng slayne, & al ꝑ other chaced away. But as for the wycked churchrobber hym selfe, they kylled hī besyde the treasury. Of these matters therfore there was kepte a courte agaynst Menelaus. Now when the kynge came to Tyrus, they made a complaynte vnto him of Menelaus, cōcerning this busynesse, and the ambassytours were thre. But Menelaus wēt & promised Ptolomy, to geue hym moch money, yf he wolde persuade ꝑ kyng. So Ptolomy wēt to the kig into a courte (where as he was sett to coole hym) & brought hym out of ꝑ mynde. In so moch that he discharged Menelaus frō the accusacyons, that not wythstandynge was cause of all myschefe: and those poore men, whych yf they had folde their cause, yee, before the Scitiās, they shulde haue bene iudged innocent, them he condemned to death.

Thus were they soone punyshed, whych folowed vpon the matter for ꝑ cytie, for the people, & for the holy vessel. Wherfore they of Tyrus toke indignacyō, and buryed the honorably. And so thorow ꝑ couetousnesse of them that were in power. Menelaus remayned styll in auctho3ite, increasyng i malyce, to the hurte of the citesyns.

¶ The.v. Chapter.

¶ Of the sygnes and tokens sene in Jerusalem. Of the ende and offence of Jason. The pursute of Antiochus agaynst the Jewes. The spoylynge of the temple.

A AT the same tyme Antioch⁹ made hym ready to go agaynst in to Egypte. Thē were there sene at Jerusalē. xl. dayes longe, horsmē, rumnynge to and fro in the ayre, whych had raymēt of golde, & spears. There were sene also whole hoostes of men weapened, and horses runnynge in an order, how they came together, how they helde forth theyr shyldes, how the harnessed men drew out theyr swerdes, and shott their dartes.

The shyne of the golden weapens was sene, and of all maner of armure. Wherfore euery man prayed, that those tokēs myght turne to good. Now when there was gone forth a false rumour, as though Antiochus had bene deed: Jason toke a. M. men, and came sodenly vpon the cytie. The citesyns rāwnto the walles, at the last was the citie taken, & Menelaus fled into the castell.

B As for Jason, he spared not his awne citesyns in the slaughter, nether cōsydered he what greate euell it were, to destroye ꝑ prosperite of his awne kynsmē: but dyd as one that had gotten the victory of his enemies, and not of hys frendes. For all this gatt he not the superiorite, but at ꝑ last receaued cō fusyon for hys malyce. * and fled agayne lyke a vagabunde into the lāde of the Ammonytes. *ii.mac.v.c

Finally, for a rewarde of his wyckednesse he was accused before Aretha the kynge of the Arabiās. In so moch that he was fayne to flee from cytie to cytie, beynge deppysed of euery man as a forsaker of the lawes, & an abhominable personne. And at the last (as an open enemy of hys awne natural countre and of the cytesyns) he was dryuen into Egypte.

Thus he that afore put many out of theyr awne natyue land, perysshed frō home hym selfe. He went to Lacedemō, thynckyge there to haue gottē succoure by reason of kynred. And he that afore had caste many one out vnburyed, was thrown out hym selfe, no man mournynge for hym, ner puttynge him in his graue: so that he nether enioyed ꝑ buriall of a straunger, nether was he partaker of hys fathers sepulcre.

C Now whē this was done, the kyng suspecte, that the Jewes wolde haue fallen from hym: wherfore he came in a greate displeasure out of Egypte, * & toke ꝑ cytie by violēce. He commaunded hys men of warre also, that they shuld kyll & not spare, but slaye downe soch as withstode them, or clymed vp vpon the houses. *i.mac.i.c.v

Thus was there a greate slaughter of yonge men, olde men, wemen, childzen and virgines. In. iii. dayes were there slayne. lxxx. M. fourty thousande put in preson, ād no lesse solde. Yet was he not contēt wt̄ thys but durst go into the mooste holy tēple (Menelaus that traytoure to the lawes & to his awne naturall countre, beyng his gyde) and with his wicked hādes toke the holy vessel, which other kynges & cyties had geuē thyther for the garnysshinge & honour of ꝑ place: them toke he in his hādes vnworthely, & defyled them.

D So madd was Antiochus, that he consydered not, how that God was a lytle wroth for the synnes of them that dwelt in ꝑ cytie, for the whych soch confusyō came vpō that place. * And why? yf it had not happened thē to haue bene lapped i many synnes, this Antiochus (as soone as he had come) had sodenly bene punysched, and shutt out for hys presūption, * lyke as Heliodorus was, whō Seleucus the kynge sente to robbe the treasury. Neuertheles, God hath not chosen the people for the places sake, but the place for the peoples sake: and therfore is the place become partaker of ꝑ peoples trouble, but afterwarde shall it enioye the wealth of thē. And lyke as it is now forsakē in the wrath of almyghty God, so when the greate God is reconcyled, it shall be sett vp in hye worshyp agayne. * ii.mac.iii.a

So when Antiochus had taken a M. and viii. C. talentes out of the temple, he gat hī to Antioche in all the haste, thynckyng i his pryde, that he myght make mē sayle vpon ꝑ drye land, and to go vpon ꝑ see, soch an hye mynde had he. He lefte debytes there, to vexe the people: At Jerusalem left he Philyppe a Phrygiā, in maners more cruell thē him selfe ꝑ set him there: At Garysim he left Andronic⁹ & Menelaus, which were more greuous to the cytesins thē other. * Now as he was thus set in malyce against the Jewes, he sent Appolonius an hated prynce, wyth xxii. M. commaunding him to slaye thole ꝑ were of perfect age, and to sell the wemen, maydens & childzē. Whē he cam now to Jerusalem, he fayned peace, & kepte hym styll vntyl the Sabboth daye. And then he commaunded his mē to take them to their weapens (for the Jewes kepte holy daye) & so he slew all them that were gone forth to ꝑ opē playe, rūnyng here & there thorow the cytie wyth hys men weapened, and murthured a great nōbre. * But Iudas Machabe⁹ which was the tenth, fled into the wylderneße, led hys lyfe there wyth hys company amonge wylde beastes and vpon the mountaynes, dwellynge *i.mac.i.b *i.mac.i.c *i.mac.i.d

dwellynge there and eatige grasse, lest they shuld be partakers of the fylthynesse.

¶ The.vi. Chapter.

¶ The Jewes are compelled to leaue the lawe of God. The temple is defyled. The readers are monysshed that they shall not abhorre the aduersyte wher wyth ꝑ Lord afflicteth them. The greuous payne of Eleazarus.

A NOt longe after thys, sent the kyng a messauger of Antioche, for to cō pel the Jewes, to altre the ordinaunces of the fathers and ꝑ lawe of God, to defyle the temple that was at Jerusalē, & to call it ꝑ temple of Jupiter Olympius: & that they shulde be in Gazarim, as those whych dwell at the place of Jupiter ꝑ herberous. Thys wycked sedycion of ꝑ vngodly was heuy vpon all the people: for the temple was ful of voluptuousnes, bybbynge & bollyng of the heathen, of rybaudes & harlottes together. The wemen went into the holy place, and bare in that was not lawfull. The aulter also was full of vnlaufull thynges, whych ꝑ lawe forbyddeth to laye vpon it. The Sabbothes were not kepte, ꝑ other solempne feastes of the lāde were not regarded. To be playne, there durst no man be a knowne that he was a Jewe. In ꝑ day of the kynges byrth they were cōpelled parforce to offre: and when the feast of Bachus was kepte, they were constrayned to weere garlandes of yuye, and so to go aboute the honoure of Bachus.

B Moreouer thorow ꝑ councell of Ptolomi, there went out a commaundement i the nexte cyties of the Heathen, that they shulde intreate ꝑ Jewes in lyke maner: namely, to compell them for to do sacrifyce after ꝑ lawes of the Gentiles: & who so wolde not, to put thē to death. A pyteous thynge was it to se. There were. ii. wemen accused to haue circumcised theyr sonnes, whom when they had led rounde aboute ꝑ citie (the babes hāgyng at their brestes) they caste thē downe headlinges ouer the walles. Some that were crepte in dēnes & had kepte the Sabboth were accused vnto Philyppe, & brent in the fyre: because that for the feare of God they kepte the commaundemēt so strytly, & wold not defende them selues. Now I beseche all those whych reade thys boke, that they refuse it not for these falles of aduersite: & iudge ꝑ thinges (that are happened) for no destruccyō, but for a chastenting of oure people. And why? Whē God suffreth not synners longe to folow theyr awne mynde, but shortly punysheth thē, * it is a token of hys greate louyng kyndnes. For this grace haue we of God more then other people, ꝑ he suffreth not vs long to synne vnpunished like as other nacyōs, ꝑ when ꝑ daye of iudgemēt cōmeth, he maye punysh them in the fulnes of theyr synnes. If we synne, he correcteth vs, but he neuer withdrawe th hys mercyes frō *Pro.iii.b vs: & though he punysh wyth aduersyte, yet doth he neuer forsake hys people. But lett thys that we haue spoken now wyth few wordes, be for a warnyng and exhortacyon of the Heathen.

Now wyll we come to the declarynge of ꝑ matter. Eleazar one of ꝑ principall Scrybes, an aged man & of a well fauored coūtenaunce, was constrayned to gape wyth opē mouth, * & to eate swynes flesh. But he desyrīg rather to dye gloryously then to lyue wyth shame, offred hym selfe wyllīgly to ꝑ martyrdome. Now when he saw ꝑ he must nedes go to it, he toke it paciētly: for he was at a poynte wyth hym selfe, ꝑ he wolde consente to no vnlaufull thyng for eny pleasure of lyfe. They ꝑ stode by beyng moued wt̄ pyte (but not aryght) for the olde frēdshyp of ꝑ man, toke hym aside pryuely, & prayed hym, that he wold let soch flesh be brought hym as were lauful to eate, & then to make a countenaunce, as though he had eaten of the flesh of the sacrifyce lyke as the kyng cō maunded, for so he myght be delyuered frō death & so for the olde frendshype of the mā, they shewed hym thys kyndnes. *Leui.xi.a

But he beganne to consyder hys discrete & honorable age, his noble and worshyppfull stock, & who ꝑ frō hys youth vp he had bene of an honest & good cōuersacyon: yee & how constantly he had kepte the ordinaūces and lawes cōmaūded by God, wherfore he gaue them this answere, & sayd: Yet had I rather fyrst be layed i my graue. * For it becōmeth not myne age (sayde he) in eny wyse to dissemble, wherby many yōg persones myght thyncke, that Eleazar beyng. lxxx. yere olde & x. were now gone to a straunge lyfe: & so thorow myne ypocrisy (for a lytle tyme of a trāsytory lyfe) they myght be disceaued: by thys meanes also shuld I defyle myne age, & make it abhominable. For though I were now delyuered frō the tormentes of men, yet shuld I not escape the hād of almyghty God, nether alyue ner deed. wherfore, I wil E dye manfully & do as it becōmeth myne age Wherby I maye paraduēture leaue an exāple of stedfastnes for soch as be yonge, yf I wyth a ready mynde & manfully dye an honest death, for ꝑ most worthy & holy lawes. *i.Thes.v.c *Amos.i.a

When he had sayde these wordes, immediatly he was drawen to ꝑ tormente. Now they that led hym & were mylde a lytle afore, begāne to take dysplesure because of ꝑ wordes ꝑ he sayd: for they thought he had spokē them of an hye mynde. But when he was i hys martyrdome, he mourned & sayd Thou (O Lord) which hast ꝑ holy knowlege, knowest opēly: that where as I myght be delyuered from death, I suffre these sore paynes of my body: but in my mynde I am wel content to suffre thē because I feare the

Thus this man dyed, leauynge the memorial of hys death for an example, not only vnto yonge men, but vnto all the people, to be stedfast and manly.

¶The. vii. Chapter.

¶The punyshment of the. vii. brethren and of theyr mother.

A It happened also, ỹ there were .vii. brethrē (wyth theyr mother) taken, & compelled by the kynge * agaīst ỹ lawe, to eate swynes flesh: namely wt scourges and lethren whyppes. And one of them whych was ỹ chefe, sayd: what seketh thou, and what requyrest thou of vs? As for vs, we are ready rather to suffre death, then to offende the lawes of God and the fathers. Then was the kinge angrye, and bad heate cauldrons and brasen pottes. Whych when they were made hote, imediatly he cōmaūded the tonge of hym that spake fyrst, to be cut out, to pul the skinne ouer hys heade, to pare of the edges of hys handes and fete: yee and that in the syght of his mother & the other of hys brethren. Now when he was cleane marred, he commaunded a fyre to be made, & so (whyle there was eny breath in hym) to be fryed in the caudrō: In the which whē he had bene longe payned the other brethrē with theyr mother exhorted him to dye manfully, sayēge: The Lord God shall regarde the treuth, and conforte vs, lyke as *Deu.xxxii.e Moses testifieth * & declareth in hys songe, sayenge: and he wyll haue compassyon on hys seruauntes.

So when the fyrst was deed after thys B maner, they brought the seconde to haue hī in derysyō, pulled the skynne wyth the heare ouer hys heade, & asked hym, yf he wolde eate swynes flesh, or he were payned in the other membres also thorow out hys body. But he answered boldly, and sayde: I wyll not do it. And so was he tormēted lyke as ỹ fyrst, and when he was euen at the geuynge vp the goost he sayde: Thou most vngracyous persone puttest vs now to death, but ỹ kyng of the worlde shal rayse vs vp (which dye for his lawes) in the resurrecciō of euerlastynge lyfe.

After hym, was ỹ thyrde had in derysyon and when he was requyred, he put out hys tonge, and that rycht soone, holdynge forth hys hādes mankully, and spake wyth a stedfast fayth: These haue I of heauē, but now for the lawe of God I despyse them: for my trust is, that I shall receaue them of hym agayne. In so moch that the kynge and they whych were wyth hym, marueled at ỹ yonge mans boldnelle, that he nothynge regarded the paynes.

Now when he was deed also, they vexed C the fourth wyth tormentes in lyke maner. So whē he was now at hys death, he sayed It is better that we beynge put to death of men, haue oure hope and trust i God for he shall rayse vs vp agayne. * As for the, thou *Iohn.v.d. shalt haue no resurrecyon to lyfe.

And when they had spoken to the fyfth. they tormented hym. Thē loked he vnto ỹ kyng, & sayd: thou hast power amonge men for thou art a mortall mā also thy selfe, to do what ỹ wylt, but thynke not, that God hath forsaken oure generacyon. Abyde the, tary styll a whyle, and thou shalt se ỹ great power of God, how he wyll punysh the and thy sede. After hym they brought the syxte, whych beynge at the poynte of death, sayd, Be not disceaued (O kyng) for this we suffre for our awne sakes, because we haue offēded our God, & therfore maruelous thynges are shewed vpon vs. But thynke not thou, whych takest in hande to stryue agaynst God, that thou shalt escape vnpunyshed.

This excellent mother (worthy to be well D reported of, and had in remembraūce) sawe her seuen sonnes dye in one daye, and suffred it pacientlye, because of the hope that she had in God: yee, she exhorted euery one of thē in especyall, and that boldly & stedfastly with parfyte wysdome, wakynge vp her wyuyly thought with a manly stomacke, and sayde vnto them: I can not tell howe ye came i my wōbe, for I nether gaue you breth ner soule, nonor lyfe. It is not I ỹ ioyned the membres of youre bodyes together, but the maker of the worlde, which fashyoned ỹ byrth of man, and beganne all thynges. Euen he also of hys awne mercy shall geue you breath and lyfe agayne, lyke as ye now regarde not your awne selues for his lawes sake.

Now thought Antyochus that she had despysed hym, therfore he let her go wyth her reproues, & beganne to exhorte the yongest sonne (which yet was left) not only wt wordes but swore vnto hym wyth an ooth. that he shuld make hym a rych and welthy man (yf he wolde forsake the lawes of hys fathers) yee, and that he shulde geue hym, whatsoeuer were necessary for hym. But E when the yonge man wolde not be moued, for all these thynges, he called hys mother, & counceled her to saue her sonnes lyfe. And when he had exhorted her wyth many wordes, she promysed hym ỹ she shulde speake vnto her sōne. So she turned her vnto hym (laughynge the cruell tyraunte to scorne) & spake wyth a bolde voyce: O my sonne, haue pytie vpon me, that bare the .ix. monethes in my wombe, that gaue the sucke, norished the & brought the vp vnto thys age.

I beseche ỹ (my sonne) loke vpon heauen & earth and all that is therin, and cōsydre, that God made them and mans generacyon of nought: so shalt thou not feare thys hangman, but suffre death stedfastly, lyke as thy brethren haue done: that I maye receaue the agayne i the same mercy with thy brethren.

Whyle she was yet speakynge these wordes, the yonge man sayd: whom loke ye for? Wherfore do ye tary? I wyll not obeye the kynges cōmaundement, * but the lawe that *Exod.xx.a. Deut.xiiii.a. God gaue vs by Moses. As for thou that F ymagynest all myschefe āgaynst the Jewes, thou shalt not escape the hande of God, for we suffre these thynges, because of oure synnes.

And though God be angrye wyth vs a lytle whyle (for oure chastenynge and reformacyon) yet shal he be at one agayne wyth his seruauntes. But thou. (O shamefull & most abhompnable persone.) Pryde not thy selfe thorow vayne hope, in beynge so malycyous vpō the seruauntes of God: for thou hast not yet escaped the iudgement of the God whych is almyghtye, and seyth all thynges. My brethren that haue suffred a lytle payne, are now vnder the couenaūt of euerlastynge lyfe: but thorow the iudgemēt of God, thou shalt be punished ryghteously for thy pryde.

As for me (lyke as my brethren haue done) I offre my soule & my body for the lawes of our fathers, callynge vpon God, that he wyll soone be mercyfull vnto our people: *1.Mac.ii.c. yee and wyth payne and punyshement * to make the graunte, that he only is God. In me now & in my brethren ỹ wrath of almyghty God is at an ende, whych ryghteously is fallen vpon all oure people.

Then the kynge beynge kyndled in anger, was more cruell vpon him then vpon all ỹ other, and toke indygnacyō, that he was so lyghtly regarded. So thys yonge man dyed vndefyled, & put hys trust styll in the Lord. Last of all after the sōnes, was the mother put to death also. Let this now be ynough spoken, concernynge the offerynges, and extreme cruelnesse.

¶The. viii. Chapter.

¶Judas gathereth together hys hoost. Nicanor is sent agaynst Judas. Judas exhorteth hys souldyars to constantnes. Nicanor is ouercome. The Jewes geue thankes after they haue put theyr enemyes to flyght, dyuydyng the spoyles vnto the fatherles and vnto the wydowes. Nicanor flyeth vnto Antiochus.

A Then Judas Machabe, and they that were wyth him, wente pryuely ito the townes, called theyr kynsfolkes & frendes together, toke vnto them all soch as cōtynued yet i the fayth and lawe of the Jewes and brought forth .vi. M. men.

So they called vpon the Lorde, that he wolde haue an eye vnto hys people, whych was trodden downe of euery man: to be gracyous vnto the temple that was defyled of the vngodly: to haue cōpassyon vpon the destruccyon of the cittie, whych was shortly lyke to be layed waste, to heare the voyce of ỹ blonde that cryed vnto him: to remēbre the most vnryghteous deathes of yonge innocent chyldrē, the blasphemyes also done vnto hys name, and to punysh them.

* Now when Machabeus had gathered *1.Mac.ii.a. thys multytude together, he was to myghtye for the heathen (for the wrath of ỹ Lorde was turned into mercy) he fell vpon the townes and cytyes vnwares, brent them, toke the most commodyous places, and slewe many of the enemyes. But specially he made soch chases by nyght, in so moch that hys manlynesse was spoken of euery where.

So when Philippe sawe that the man B increased by lytle and lytle, & that the matter prospered wyth hym for the most parte: he wrote vnto Ptolomy (which was a captayne in Celosiria & Phenices) to helpe him in the kynges busynes. Then sent he Nica- *1.Mac.iii.c nor Patrocly (a speciall frende of hys) in all the haste, and gaue him of the comen sorte of the heathen no lesse then .xx. M. harnessed men, to rote out the whole generacyon of ỹ Jewes, haupnge to helpe hym one Gorgias a man of warre, whych in matters concernynge battayls, had great experiēce. Nycanor ordened also the trybute (which the Romaynes shulde haue had) to be geuen vnto the kynge out of the captyuyte of the Jewes, namely .ii. M talentes. And immediatly he sent to the cities of the see coast, requyring them for to bye Jewes to be theyr seruauntes and bonde men, promysynge to sell them lxxx. and ten for one talente: but he consydered not the wrath of almyghty God, that was to come vpon hym.

When Judas knewe of thys, he tolde the C Jewes that were wyth hym of Nicanors cōmynge. Now were there some of them fearfull, not trustynge vnto the ryghteousnes of God, and fled theyr waye.

But the other that remayned, came together, and besought the Lorde, to delyuer thē frō that wycked Nicanor, which had solde them or euer he came nye them: and though he wolde not do it for theyr sakes, yet for ỹ couenaunt ỹ he made wyth theyr fathers, and because they called vpō hys holy & gloryous name. * And so Machabe called hys *1.Mac.v.b.b. men together, namely aboute .vi. M. exhortyng thē not to agree vnto their enemies, * *Deut.xx.a nether to be afraied for ỹ multitude of their ii. Para.xx.c aduersaries commynge agaynst them vnryghteously: but to fyght manly, consyderynge the reproke that they had done to the holy place wythout cause, how they had despyled and oppressed the cytye, yee, and destroyed the lawes of the fathers. * For they *Jere.xxxii.b Psal.lxxix.b.

(sayde he) trust in theyr weapens and boldnesse, but oure confidēce is in the almyghty Lorde, which in the twynckelynge of an eye maye both destroy them that come agaynst vs, and all the worlde.

He exhorted them also to cal to remembraunce ỹ helpe, that God shewed vnto theyr fathers: * as whē there perysshed an. C. & lxxv. M. of Sennacheribs people: And of the batayl that they had in Babylon agaynst the Gallacyans: how all the Macedonyans that came to helpe them, stode in feare: and how they beig but only vi. M. slewe an. C. & xx. M. thorow ỹ helpe that was geuen them from heauē, wherby they also had receaued many benefytes.

Thorow these wordes the mē toke good hertes vnto them, ready to dye for the lawe and the countre. So he set vpon euery company a captayne, one of hys awne brethren: Simon, Joseph & Jonathas: geuynge eche one. xv. C. men. He caused Esdras also to rede the holy boke vnto them, & to geue them a token of the helpe of God.

*1.mac.iiii.b *Then he hym selfe beynge captayne in the fore front of the battayll, buckled wyth Nicanor. And God was theyr helpe, in so moch that they slewe above ix. M. men & compelled the more parte of Nicanors hoost to flie, they were so woūded and feable. Thus they toke the money frō those that came to bye them, and folowed vpon thē on euery syde. But when the tyme came vpon them, they returned, for it was the Sabboth, and therfore they folowed nomore vpon them. So they toke theyr weapens & spoyles and kepte the Sabbath, geuynge thanckes vnto ỹ Lord, which had delyuered them that daye, and shewed thē hys mercy. After the Sabboth * they distributed the spoyles to the sycke, to ỹ fatherlesse and to wyddowes, and the residue had they them selues wyth theyrs. When thys was done, and they all had made a generall prayer: they besought the mercyfull Lorde to be at one wyth hys seruauntes.

Of those also that were wyth Timothe and Bachides, which fought agaynst them they slewe. xx. M. wanne hye and stroge holdes, and deuyded moo spoyles: euer geuinge an equal porcyon vnto ỹ sycke, to ỹ fatherles, to wyddowes and to aged persons. And when they had dylygently gathered theyr weapens together, they layed thē all in conuenyente places, & the remnaunt of the spoyles brought they to Jerusalem. They slewe also Philarches ỹ wycked personne, which was with Timotheus, and had vexed many Jewes. And when they helde the thankesgeuynge at Jerusalem for the victory, they brēt those that had set fyre on ỹ portes of ỹ tēple: namely Calysthenes, whych was fled into an house: & so they gat a worthy rewarde for theyr wyckednesse. As for that most vngracyous Nicanor, whych had brought a thousande marchauntes, to bye the Jewes, he was thorow the helpe of the Lorde brought downe euen of them whom he regarded not: in so moch that he put of hys gloryous raymēt, fled by see, and came alone to Antyoche, wyth greate shame and dyshonour, whych he gat thorow the destruccyon of hys hoost. Thus he that promysed the Romaynes to paye thē theyr tribute, when he toke Jerusalem: beganne now to saye playnely, that God was the defēder of the Jewes, & therfore not possible to wounde them, because they folowed the lawes whych God had made.

¶ The. ix. Chapter.

¶ Antiochus wylyng to spoyle Persepolis is driuen to flyght. As he persecuteth the Jewes, he is strycken of the Lord. The fayned repentaunce of Antiochus & his dyeth.

*i.mac.viii.a At ỹ same tyme came * Antyochus agayne wyth dyshonoure out of Persys. For when he came to Persepolys, ād vndertoke to robbe the tēple and to subdue the cytie, the people ranne together and defended them selues, & so moch that he and hys were fayne to flē wyth shame.

And so after that flyght, it happened that Antyochus came agayne wyth dyshonoure. But when he came to Egbathana, he gat knowlege what was happened vnto Nycanor and Tymotheus. Now as he was anaūcinge him selfe i his wrath, he thought he was able to auenge the iniury that was done to them, vpon the Jewes: and therfore commaunded to make ready hys charet, hastynge on hys iourney wythout ceassynge, the iudgement of God prouokynge hym because he had spoken so proudly, ỹ he wolde come to Jerusalem, and make it a graue of the Jewes. But the Lorde God of Israell, that seyth all thynges, smote hym wyth an inuysyble plage, whych no man coulde heale.

For as soone as he had spoken these wordes, there came vpō hym an horrible payne of hys bowels, and a sore greke of ỹ armes.

And that was but ryght: for he had martyred other mens bowels wyth dyuerse and straunge tormentes, howbeit he wolde in no wyse ceasse from his malice. Yee, he was yet the prouder & more malycious agaynst the Jewes: But whyle he was commaundynge to make haste in the matter, it happened that he fell downe violently from the charet so that it brosed hys body, and dyd hi greate payne.

And

And so he that thought he myght commaūde the floudes of the see (so proude was he beyonde the condicyon of man) & to weye the hye mountaynes in a payre of balaunce, was now brought downe to the grounde, & caried vpon an horslytter, knowlegynge the manyfolde power of God vpon hym: so that *Actes.xiii.d ỹ wicked body of hys * was full of wormes, whych in hys payne fell quycke out of hys flesh: In so moch that hys hoost was greued with the smell and stynck of hym. Thus he that a lytle afore thought he myght reache to the starre of heauen, hym myght no man now abyde ner beare, for the vehemence of stynche.

¶ Therfore, he beynge brought from hys great pryde, begāne for to come to ỹ knowledge of hym selfe: for the punishemēt of God warned hym, and his payne increased euermore and more. And whē he hym selfe might not abyde hys awne stynche, he sayde these wordes: It is reasō to be obedīēt vnto God, and that a man desyre not to be lyke vnto hym. Thys wycked personne prayed also vnto the Lorde, of whom he shulde haue optayned no mercy. And as for ỹ cytye that he came vnto so hastely, to bryngе it downe to the grounde, and to make it a graue for dead men: now he declareth to deliuer it fre.

And as touchyng ỹ Jewes, whom he had iudged not worthy to be buryed, but wolde haue cast them out for to be deuoured of the foules & wylde beastes, sayeng, that he wolde haue destroyed both olde & ponge: Now he promysed, to make thē lyke the cytesins of Athens. And where as he had spoyled the holy temple afore, now he maketh promyse to garnysh it with greate giftes, to increase the holy ornamentes, and of his awne rētes to beare the costes, and charges belonginge to the offeringes: yee, and that he wolde also become a Jewe him selfe, to go thorow euery place of the worlde, and to preach the power of God.

But when his paynes wolde not ceasse, (for ỹ ryghteous iudgemēt of God was come vpō him) out of a very despayre he wrote vnto the Jewes a lettre of intercessiion, conteyninge these wordes: The kynge and prince Antiochus wisheth vnto ỹ vertuous cytesins of the Jewes, moch health ād good prosperite.

If ye and youre chyldren fare well, and yf all thinges go after youre mynde: we geue greate thankes. In my sycknesse also do I remembre you louyngly: for as I came out of Persia, and was taken with sore dysease: I thought it necessary to care for the comē wealth. Nether despayre I in my selfe, but haue a good hope to escape this sickenes.

But consyderinge that my father led an hoost sometyme in the hyer places, and shewed who shulde raygne after hym, that (yf there happened any cōtrouersy, or eny harde thyng were declared) they in ỹ lande myght knowe theyr chefe Lord, that there shuld be no insurrection: Agayne: when I ponder by myself, how that all the myghtie men and neyghbours roūde about, are layēg wayte, and loke but for opportunyte to do harme: I haue ordened that my sonne Antiochus shal raygne after me, whom I oft commended to many of you, when I was in the hyer kyngdomes, and haue wrytten vnto him as it followeth herafter. Therfore I praye you & require you, to remembre the benefytes that I haue done vnto you generally, and in especiall (and that euery mā wylbe faythfull to me & my sōne) For I hope that he shal be of sober and louinge behauoure, & yf he folowe my deuyce, he shall be indifferent vnto you.

*Thus, that murthurer & blasphemer of God was sore smytten: & lyke as he had intreated other men, so he dyed a myserable death in a straunge countre vpon a mountayne. And hys body dyd Philippe (ỹ went with hym) carry awaye: whych fearynge the sonne of Antiochus, wente into Egypte to Ptolomy Philometor. *Dan.viii

¶ The. x. Chapter.

¶ Judas Machabeus taketh the cītye & the temple. He beginneth to shewe ỹ actes of Eupator. The Jewes fyght agaynst the Idumeans: Timotheus inuadeth Jewry, wyth whom Judas Jopneth battell. v. men apeare in the ayre to the helpe of the Jewes. Timothy is slayne.

*i.mac.xiii.a Machabeus now and his company (thorow the helpe of the Lorde) wanne the temple and the cytye agayne, destroied the aulters and chapels that ỹ heathen had buylded thorow the stretes: clensed ỹ temple, *made another aulter of brycke stone, and after two yeares they offered sacrifices, set forth the incense, the lyghtes and shewe bred. When that was done, they fell downe flat vpon the grounde, and besought the Lorde, that they myght come nomore into soch trouble: but yf they synned eny more agaynst hym, he hym selfe to chasten them wyth mercy, and not to come in the handes of those alcaūtes and blasphemous men. *Exod.xx.b

Now vpon the same daye that ỹ straungers poluted ỹ temple, it happened that on the very same daye it was clensed agayne: namely, *the. xxii. daye of the moneth called Casleu. They kepte. viii. dayes in gladnesse lyke as in the feast of the tabernacles: remēbryng that not longe afore, they helde the feast of the tabernacles vpon the mountaynes and in dennes lyke beastes. And to the same token they bare grene bowes, braunches and palmes, before him that had geuen them good fortune to clense his place. They *i.mac.xiii.b

agreed also together, and made a statute, ꝑ euery yeare those dayes shulde be solemply kepte of all the people of the Jewes.

How Antiochus then (that was called the noble) dyed, it is sufficiently tolde. Now will we speake of Eupator the sonne of that wycked Antiochus, how it happened wyth him: & so with fewe wordes to comprehende the aduersyte that chaunsed in the warres. When he had taken in ꝑ kingdome, he made one Lysias (which had bene captayne of the host in Phenices and Syria) ruler ouer the matters of the realme. For Ptolomy that was called Macron, beynge a ruler for the Jewes (and specially, to syt in iudgemēt for soch wrōge as was done vnto them) vndertoke to deale peaceably wyth them. For the wheche cause he was accused of the frendes before Eupator: and when he was suspecte to be a traytour (because he had left Cyprres that Philometor had cōmytted vnto him: and because he departed from noble Antiochus, that he was come vnto) he poysoned hym selfe, and dyed.

Now when Gorgias was gouernoure of the same places, he toke straungers and vndertoke oftymes to warre with the Jewes. Moreouer, the Idumeans ꝑ held the stroge holdes, receaued those that were dryuen frō Jerusalem, and toke in hande to warre also
*1.mach.v.a *But they that were wyth Machabeus besought and prayed vnto the Lorde, that he wolde be their helper: and so they fell into ꝑ stronge holdes of the Idumeans, and wanne many places by strength: Soch as came agaynst them they slewe, and kylled no lesse of all together (then twētye thousande. Neuertheless some, no lesse then nyne thousande, were fled into twoo stronge towres, hauynge all maner of ordinaunce to withstande them.

D Then Machabeus leauing Symon, Josephus, zacheus, and those that were wyth them (which were very many) wente to besege them, & to fyght where most nede was, Now they that were wyth Symon, beynge led wyth couetousnesse, were intreated for money, thorow certaine of those that laye in the towres: toke. lxx. M. drachmas: & let some of them escape. But when it was tolde Machabeus what had happened, he called ꝑ captaynes of the people together, accusinge those personnes, ꝑ they had solde the brethrē for money, and let their enemyes go. So he slewe those traytours, and immediatly wēte in hande wyth the. ii. towers. And whē they had ordred thē selues manly with their weapens and handes, they slewe in the two castels moo then twentye thousande.

*1.mach.v.d & ii. Machab. viii.c Now Timotheus whom ꝑ Jewes had ouercome afore, gathered a multytude of straunge people, brought an hoste also of horsmen of the Asians, to wynne Jewry by E strength. But when he drewe nye, Machabeus & they ꝑ were wyth hym * fell to theyr *ii.mac.xi.b prayer, syprynckled asches vpō their heades, being gyrded with hearrie cloth about their loynes, fell downe before the aulter, and besought the Lord that he wolde be mercyfull to them, but an enemye vnto their enemyes, & to take parte agaynst their āduersaryes, * accordynge as it is promysed in the lawe. *de. xxviii.a So after ꝑ prayer, they wēte on further frō the cyte: and whē they came nye ꝑ enemyes, they prepared them selues agaynst them.

And by tymes in ꝑ mornyng at the breake of the daye, both the hostes buckled together. * The one parte had the Lord for their *Jer.xxii.b & ii.Par.xiii.b refuge, which is ꝑ geuer of prosperite strēgth and victory. The other had a māly stomack which is a captayne of warre.

The battayll now beyng greate, * there *iiii.re.xi.a & i.Mach.iii.a and.xi.b appeared vnto the enemyes from heauen. v. men vpō horsbacks wyth brydels of golde, ledynge the Jewes, & two of them haupng Machabeus betwixte them, that kepte him safe on euery syde wyth their weapens, but shot dartes and lightenynges vpon the enemyes: where thorow they were confounded wyth blyndnesse & so sore afrayed, that they fell downe. There were slayne of fote men twentye thousande and fyue hundreth, and fyre hundreth horsmen. As for Timotheus him selfe, he fled vnto Gazar a very stronge holde, wherin Cereas was captayne. But Machabeus and his company layed sege to it chearfully. iiii. dayes.

Now they that were wythin trustynge to the strength of the place, cursed and banned exceadyngly, and made great crakynge wyth wycked wordes. Neuertheless, vpon the fyft daye in the mornyng. xx. yong men of Machabeus company, beyng set on fyre in their myndes (because of the blasphemy) came mānfully vnto the wall, and wyth bolde stomackes they and theyr other companyons clymmed vp vpon the towres, vndertakyng to set fyre vpon the portes, & to burne those blasphemous personnes quicke Two dayes were they destroying ꝑ castell, wheche when they founde Timotheus (that was crept into a corner) they kylled hym, & slew Cereas his brother in lyke maner with Appollophanes. When this was done, they songe Psalmes, wyth prayses and thankesgeuynge vnto the Lorde, which had done so great thynges for Israel, and gyuē them the victory.

¶ The. xi. Chapter.

¶ Lysias goeth about to ouercome ꝑ Jewes. Succour is sent from heauen vnto the Jewes. The letter of Lysias to the Jewes. The letter of kynge Antiochus vnto Lysias. A letter of the same vnto the Jewes. A letter of the Romaynes to the Jewes.

Not

NOt longe after this, Lysias ꝑ kynges stewarde & a kynsman of hys (which had the gouernaūce of hys matters) toke sore displeasure for ꝑ thynges that had happened: ād whē he had gathered. lxxx. M. men of fote wyth all the hoste of ꝑ horsmen, he came agaynst the Jewes, thynckynge to wynne ꝑ cytie, to make *Iohn.ii.b it an habitacyon for the Heathen, * and ꝑ tēple wolde he haue to be an house of lucre, lyke as the other goddes houses of the heathē are, & to sell the prestes office euery yeare: Not cōsydering the power of God, but was *eſa.xxvi.b wylde in his mynde, * trustynge in ꝑ multitude of fote men, in thousandes of horsmen, and in his. lxxx. Elephantes.

B So he came into Jewry & then to Bethsura (a castell of defence) lyinge in a narow place. v. furlonges from Jerusalem, & wāne it. Now when Machabeus and hys cōpany knewe that the stronge holdes were taken,
*ii.mac.xi.e * they fell to their prayers with weppynge & teares before the Lorde. And all ꝑ people in lyke maner besought him, ꝑ he wolde send a good angell to delyuer Israel. Machabeus hym selfe was the fyrst that made him ready to the battayll, exhorting ꝑ other that were wyth hym, to ieoperde thē selues, & to helpe their brethren. And when they were goynge forth of Jerusalem together wyth a redy &
*ii.mac.xii.d wylling mynde, * there appeared before thē vpon horsbacke a man in whyte clothynge wyth harnesse of golde, shakyng his speare. Then they praysed the Lorde all together, which had shewed them mercy, & were comforted in their myndes: in somoch that they were ready, not only to fyght with men, but wyth the most cruell beastes, yee & retourne thorow walles of yron.

Thus they wente on willyngly haupnge an helper frō heauen, and ꝑ Lorde mercyfull C vnto thē. They fell myghtely vpō their enemyes lyke lyōs, brought downe. xi. M. fote men. xvi. C. horsmē, put all ꝑ other to flight many of thē beyng wounded, and some gat awaye naked. Yee Lysias hi selfe was fayne to flee shamefully, and so to escape. Neuertheless, ꝑ mā was not without vnderstanding, but cōsydered by hym selfe ꝑ hys power was mynished, and pōdred how the Jewes being defended by ꝑ helpe of Almighty God, were not able to be ouercome: wherfore he sent thē wordes, & promysed, ꝑ he wolde cōsente to all thynges which were reasonable, and to make ꝑ kyng their frēde. To ꝑ which prayer of Lysias Machabeus agreed, settynge in all thynges ꝑ comen wealth & whatsoeuer Machabeus wrote vnto Lysias concerning the Jewes, the kyng graunted it. For there were letters wrytte vnto the Jewes from Lysias, conteynynge these wordes.

Lysias sendeth gretynge to the people of the Jewes. Jhon and Absalon whych were D sent from you, delyuered me wrytynges, & requyred me to fulfyll the thynges concernynge theyr earande. Therfore loke what might be graūted, I certified ꝑ kyng therof: & whatsoeuer was cōuenient. I agreed therto. If ye now will be faythfull in ꝑ matters I shall endeuer my selfe herafter also to do you good. As concernynge other thinges by euery article therof: I haue cōmytted thē to youre messaungers, & to those whom I sent vnto you, to comē wyth you of ꝑ same, fare ye well. In the. C. and. xlviii. yeare, the. xxiiii. daye of the moneth Dioscorinthius.

Now ꝑ kynges lettre cōteyned these wordes. Kyng Antiochus sendeth gretige vnto his brother Lysias. For so moch as oure fa-
*ii.mac.xi.f ther, * is now deed, oure wyll is, that they which are in oure realme, lyue wythout eny insurreccion, & euery mā to be diligēt in hys awne matters. We vnderstāde also, ꝑ ꝑ Jewes wolde not consent to oure father, for to be brought vnto ꝑ custome of the Gētyles, but stedy to kepe their awne statutes: for ꝑ wheche cause they requyre of vs also, to lett them remayne styll by their awne lawes.

Wherfore, oure mynde is, ꝑ this people E shalbe in rest: we haue concluded & determyned also, to restore them their tēple agayne: that they maye lyue accordyng to the vse & custome of their forefathers. Thou shalt do vs a pleasure therfore, yf ꝑ sende vnto them and agree with thē: that when they are certifyed of oure mynde, they maye be of good chere, and loke to their awne wealth.

And this was the lettre, that the kynge wrote vnto ꝑ Jewes: kyng Antiochus sendeth gretyng vnto the councell and ꝑ other people of ꝑ Jewes: If ye fare well, we haue our desyre: as for vs, we are in good health. Menelaus came and tolde vs, how & youre desyre was to come downe to youre people, whych are wyth vs.

Wherfore those that wyll come, we geue thē fre lyberte, vnto the. xxx. daye of the mo-F neth of Aprill, ꝑ they may vse ꝑ meates of ꝑ Jewes and their awne lawes, like as afore: & none of thē by eny māner of wayes to haue harme, for thynges done ī ignorauce. Menelaus who we haue sēt vnto you, shal comē wyth you at large, fare ye wel. In the. Cxlviii. yeare, the. xv. daye of the moneth of Aprill.

The Romaynes also sent a lettre, cōteynynge these wordes: Quintus Mennius & Titus Manilius embassitours of the Romaynes, sende gretinge vnto the people of the Jewes. Loke what Lysias the kynges kynsman hath graunted you, we graunte you the same also. But as concernynge the thynges whych he referred vnto the kynge, sende hyther some with spede, and pōdre the matter diligently amonge your selues, that we maye cast þ best to youre profyte, for we must departe now vnto Antioche. And therfore write shortly agayne, þ we maye know your minde: Fare well. In þ hundreth. xl viii yeare, the. xv. daye of the moneth of Aprill.

¶ The. xii. Chapter.

¶ Timotheus troubleth the Jewes. The wycked dede of the Jeppes agaynst the Jewes. Judas is auenged of them. He setteth fyre on þ gate of Jamnia. The pursute of the Jewes agaynst Timothye. Timothye is taken and let go vnhurt. Judas purseueth Gorgias. Judas offring sacrifyce for the dede, sheweth the hope of the resurrection.

A When these couenaūtes were made Lysias went vnto the kyng, & the Jewes tylled their grounde. But Timotheus, Apollonius þ sonne of Genet, Jerome & Demophon þ proude, Nicanor þ captayne of Cypers, & they that laye in those places: wolde not lett thē lyue in rest & peace. They of Joppa also dyd euen soche a shamefull dede. They prayed the Jewes þ dwelt amonge them, to go with their wyues & childrē into þ shyppes whych they had prepared, and dyd wyth thē, as though they had ought them no euell wyll. For so moch thē as there was gone forth a generall proclamacyon thorow the cytye because of peace, they cōsēted therto, & suspecte nothīg: but when they were gone forth into þ depe, they drowned no lesse then. ii. C. of them.

Whē Judas knew of this cruelte shewed vnto his people, he commaunded those that were with hī to make thē ready, exhortyng them to call vpō God the ryghteous iudge: went forth agaynst those murthurers of his B brethren, set fyre in the haue by nyght, brent vp the shyppes, and those that escaped from the fyre, he slewe with þ swearde. And when he had done thys, he departed as though he wolde come agayne, and rote out all thē of Joppa. But when he had gottē worde, that þ Jamnites were mynded to do in lyke maner vnto þ Jewes whych dwelt amōge thē, he came vpon the Jamnites by nyght, & sett fyre on the hauen wyth the shyppes: so that the lyght of the fyre was sene at Jerusalem vpon a. ii. C. and. xl. furlonges.

Now when they were gone from thence ix. furlonges, in their iourney towarde Timotheus. v. thousande men of fote and. v. hundreth horsmen of the Arabians, fought with him. So when þ battell was earnest, & prospered wyth Judas thorow the helpe of God: the residue of the Arabiās beynge ouercome, besought Judas to be at one with them, & promysed to geue hym certayne pastures, and to do him good in other thinges. Judas thinckynge that they shulde in dede be profytable concernynge many thynges, promised them peace: wher vpon they shoke handes, and so they departed to their tentes Judas wente also vnto a cytie, whych was very fayre kepte with bydges, fensed round about with walles, and dyuerse kyndes of people dwellinge therin, called Caspin.

They that were within it, put soch trust C in the strēgth of the walles, & in their stoare of vitailes: that they were þ slacker in their doynges, cursynge and reuylinge Judas wt blasphemyes, and speakynge soch wordes as it becommeth not. But Machabeus cailynge vpon the great Prynce of the worlde (which without any battayll rāmes, or ordynaunce of warre, dyd* cast downe þ walles of Jericho, in þ tyme of Josue) fell manfully vpō þ walles, toke the cyte, (& thorow the helpe of the Lord) made an exceadynge greate slaughter: In so moch þ a lake of two fourlonges brode whych laye therby, semed to flowe wyth the blonde of the slayne. * Josue. vi.

Then departed they from thence. vii. C. & L. furlonges, and came to Taraca vnto the Jewes that are called Tubianei. But as for Timotheus, they coulde not get him there: for (not one matter dyspatched) he was departed from thence, and had lefte certayne men in a very strong holde. But Dositheus & Sosipater, whych were Captaynes with Machabeus, slewe those þ Timotheus had lefte in the house of defence, euen. x. M. men. And Machabeus prepared him with the. vi M. men þ were about hym, set thē in ordre by companyes, and wēte forth agaynst Timotheus, whych had wyth hym an. C. & xx. M. men of fote. ii. M. and. v. C. horsmen.

When Timotheus had knowledge of Ju D das cōmynge, he sent þ women, chyldrē and the other baggage vnto a castell called Carnion. (For it coulde not be wōne, & was harde to come vnto, the wayes of þ same places were so narow) & whē Judas cōpany came firste in syght, þ enemyes were smytten with feare, thorow the presence of God, whych seyth all thynges: In so moch þ they fleynge one here, another there, were rather discōfyted of their awne people, * and woūded wt þ strokes of their awne sweardes. Judas also was very earnest in folowynge vpō them, punishinge those vngodly, & slewe. xxx. M. mē of thē. Timotheus also him self fell into þ handes of Dositheus and Sosipater, whō he besought with many prayers, to let hym go with his lyfe: because he had many of the Jewes fathers & brethrē in preson, whych (yf they put hī to death) myght be disapointed. So whē he had promysed faythfully to deliuer thē agayne accordyng to þ cōdicion made, they let hym go wythout harme, for the health of the brethrē. And when Judas had slayne. xxv. M. he wente from Carnion. * Iudi. viii. c. 1. Reg. xiiii. c. ii. Para. xx. d

Now after þ he had chased awaye & slayne his enemyes, he remoued þ hoste towarde E * Ephrō a stroge cytie, wherin dwelt many diuerse people of the heathen, & the stronge ponge men kepte the walles, defendyng thē mynghtely. * i. mach. v. d

mynghtely. In this cytie was moch ordinaūce and prouision of dartes. But whē Judas and his cōpany had called vpon Almyghty God (whych wyth hys power breaketh the strength of the enemyes) they wāne the cytie, and slewe. xxv. M. of thē, þ were within From thence wente they to the cytye of the Scythiās, whych lyeth. vi. C. furlonges frō Jerusalem. But when þ Jewes whych were in the citye tellifyed, that the cytezyns dealte louyngly with them, pee, and intreated them kyndly in the tyme of their aduersyte, Judas and hys cōpany gaue them thāckes, desyringe them to be frēdly still vnto them: and so they came to Jerusalem the hye feaste of the weekes beynge at hande. And after the feaste of pentecost they went forth agaynst Gorgias the gouernoure of Idumea, wyth iii. M. men of fote & iiii. C. horsmen. Which when they met together, it chaunsed a fewe F of þ Jewes to be slayne. And Dositheus one of þ Bachenors a mighty horsmā toke hold of Gorgias, & wolde haue takē him quycke. But an horsman of Thracia fell vpon him, and smote of his arme, so þ Gorgias escaped & fled into Maresa. When they now þ were of Gorgias side, had foughten longe & were weary: Judas called vpō the Lorde, that he wolde be their helper, & captayne of the felde: and with that, he beganne with a manly voyce to take vp a songe of prayse, & a crye: In so moch þ he made the enemyes afrayed, and Gorgias mē of warre toke their flight. So Judas gathered his hoste, & came into þ cytie of Odolla. And when the seuēth daye came vpon thē, they clensed them selues (as the custome was) & kepte the Sabboth in þ same place. And vpon the daye folowynge, Judas & his cōpany cam to take vp the bodies of thē that were slayne, and to bury thē in the fathers graues. Now vnder the cotes of certaine Jewes whych were slayne, they founde Jewels that they had taken out of þ * Vinct. bili. c Deliu. bili. a. tēples & from the Idols of the * Jamniters: whych thynge is forbydden the Jewes by þ lawe. Then euery man sawe, þ this was the cause, wherfore they were slayne.

G And so euery man gaue thanckes vnto þ Lorde for hys ryghtuous iudgement, which had opened the thynge that was hyd. They fell downe also vnto theyr prayers, and besought God, þ the sawte whych was made, myght be put out of remēbraunce. Besydes that, Judas exhorted þ people earnestly, to kepe thē selues from soch synne: for so moch as they sawe before their eyes: þ these men were slayne for the same offence. So he gathered of euery one a certayne, in so moch þ he brought together two thousande drachmas of syluer, which he sent vnto Jerusalē, that there myght a sacrifice be offred for the misdede. In the which place he dyd well and ryght: for he had some consideracyon & ponderyng of the lyfe that is after this time. For yf he had not thought that they, which were slayne, dyd yet lyue, it had bene superfluous and vayne, to make eny vowe or sacrifyce, for thē, that were deed. But for so moch as he sawe, that they whych dye in the fauoure & beleue of God, are in good rest and ioye, he thought it to be good & honorable for a recōcilynge, to do the same for those which were slayne, that the offence myght be forgeuen.

¶ The. xiii. Chapter.

¶ The cōminge of Eupator into Jewry. The death of Menelaus: Machabeus going to fyght agaynst Eupator, moueth his soudyars vnto prayer. He kylleth. xliii. thousande men in the tentes of Antiochus. Rhodocus the betrayer of the Jewes is taken. Antiochus retayneth frendship with the Jewes.

IN þ. C. xlix. yeare gatt * Judas knowledge, þ Antiochus Eupator was A * i. mac. vi. d commyng with a greate power into Jewry, & Lysias the stewarde and ruler of his matters with him hauinge an. C. and. x. M. men of fote. v. M. horsmen. xxii. Elephātes, and. iii. C. charettes. Menelaus also ioyned him self with them (but with greate dysceate) and spake fayre to the kynge, not for eny good of þ coūtre, but because he thought to haue bene made some greate man of auctorite. But þ kynge of kynges moued Antiochus mynde agaynst thys vngodly personne, & Lysias infourmyd the kyng, * that this Menelaus was þ cause of all myschefe: so that the kyng commaunded to take him, and (as the maner of thē is) to put hym vnto death in the same daye. * ii. Machab. xiii. c.

There was also in the same place a tower of. L. cubytes hye, heapped with asshes: but aboue it was so made, that mē myght loke downe on euery syde. Where into the kyng cōmaunded that shamefull person to be cast amonge the asshes, as one that was cause of all vngraciousnesse. And reasō it was that the vnthryft shulde dye soch a death, and not to be buryed: for he had done moch myschefe vnto the aulter of God (whose fyre & asshes were holy) therfore was it right, þ he hym selfe also shulde be destroyed wyth asshes.

But the kynge was wood in hys mynde, and came to shewe him selfe more cruell vnto the Jewes, then hys father was. Whych B when Judas perceaued, * he cōmaunded the people to call vpon þ Lord nyght and daye: that he wolde now helpe thē also, lyke as he had done alwaye: For they were afrayed to be put from their lawe, from their naturall countre and from the holy temple: and not to suffre the people (which a lytle whyle afore beganne to recouer) to be subdued agayne of the blasphemous nacyons. * ii. Machab. xiii. c.

So when they had done thys together, C and besought the Lord for mercy, wyth weppynge and fastynge thre dayes longe, flatt vpon the grounde: Judas exhorted them, to make make them selues ready. But he and the elders together deuised, to go forth fyrst with their people, afore the kynge brought hys hoost into Jewry, and afore he beseged ꝑ cytie, & to commytte the matter vnto God.

Wherfore he ascryped the power of all thynges vnto God the maker of the worlde exhortinge his people to fight mãtully (yee, euen vnto death) for the lawes, the temple, the cytye, their awne natyue countre, and to defende the citesyns: and set his hoost before Modyn. He gaue them also that were wyth him, a token of the victory of God, chosinge out the mãlyest yonge men, wente by nyght into the kynges pauylyõ, slewe of the hoost xiiii. M. men, * & the greatest Elephantes, wyth those that satt vpon them.

D Thus when they had brought a greate feare and rumour amonge ꝑ tentes of theyr enemyes, & all thynges went prosperously wyth thẽ, they departed in the breake of the daye, God beinge their helper and defender. Now whẽ the kynge perceaued the manlynesse of the Jewes, he wente aboute to take the stronge places by craft, and remoued his hoost * vnto bethsura, which was a well kepte house of defence of the Jewes: but they were chaced awaye, hurte, and discomfited.

And Judas sent vnto thẽ that were in it soch thinges as were necessary. In ꝑ Jewes hoost also there was one Rhodocus, whych tolde the enemyes theyr secretes: but they sought hym out, & whẽ they had gottẽ hym, they put hi in preson. After this dyd ꝑ kyng cõmẽ with thẽ that were in Bethsura, toke truce with them, departed, and stroke a battayll wyth Judas, whych ouer came hym.

E But when he vnderstode, that Philippe (whom he had left to be ouerseer of his businesses at Antioche) begãne to rebel agaynst him, he was astonnyed in his mynde: so ꝑ he yelded hym selfe to the Jewes, & made thẽ an othe, to do whatsoeuer they thought ryght.

Now when he was reconcyled wyth thẽ, he offred, made moch of the tẽple, gaue greate gyftes vnto it, embraced Machabey, makynge hym captayne and gouernour from Ptolomays vnto the Gerrenes.

Neuertheless when he came to Ptolomays, ꝑ people of the cytie were not content with the bonde of frendshype: for they were afrayed, that he wolde breake ꝑ couenaunt. Then wente Lysias vp into the seate, and enfourmed the people, shewed thẽ the cause why, and pacifyed thẽ. So he came agayne to Antioche. This is now the matter cõcernynge the kynges iourney, and his returne.

¶The.xiiii.Chapter.

¶By the mocyon of the Lorde, Demetrius sendeth Nicanor to kyll the Jewes. Nicanor maketh a compact with the Jewes, whych he yet breaketh through the mocyon of the kynge. Nicanor commaundeth Mazia to be taken. The boldnes of Mazia.

AFter thre yeares was Judas informed, how that Demetrius the sonne of Seleucus was come vp with a greate power and shyppes, thorow the hauen of Tripolis, to take certayne commodyous places and countrees, agaynst Antiochus & his captayne Lysias. Now Alcimus (which had bene hye Prest, & wylfully defyled him selfe, in the tyme of the myxtynge) seyng, ꝑ by no meanes he coulde be helped, ner haue any more intraũce to the aultare: he came to kynge Demetrius in the hũdreth and one & fyfty yeare, presentynge vnto hym a crowne of Golde, a palme & an olyue tree: which (as mẽ thought) belonged to the temple, and ꝑ daye he helde his tonge. But when he had gotten oportunyte for his madnesse, Demetrius called him to coũcell, and asked hym, what thynges or councels ꝑ Jewes leaned vnto? He answered: The Jewes that be called Assidei (whose captayne is Judas Machabeus) mayntayne warres, make insurrecyons, and will not let the realme be in peace.

For I beynge depryued of my fathers honoure (I meane the hye prestlode) am come hyther: partly because I was faithfull vnto the kyng, and partly because I sought ꝑ profyt of the cytesyns. And why? all oure people, thorow the wickednesse of them, are not a litle troubled. Wherfore I beseche the (O kynge) consydre all these thynges dylygently, and then make some prouision for ꝑ lande & the people, accordynge to the kyndnesse that thou hast offred vnto thẽ. For as lõge as Judas hath the vpperhãde, it is not possible that men can lyue in peace.

When he had spoken these wordes, other frendes also hauynge euell wyll at Judas, sett the kynge Demetrius onfyre agaynst hi. * Which immediatly sent Nicanor (ruler of the Elephantes) a captayne, into Jewry, cõmaundynge him, to take Judas him selfe alyue, but to slaye thẽ ꝑ were with hym, and to make Alcimus hye prest of ꝑ great tẽple.

C Then the heathen which fled oute of Jewry from Judas, came to Nicanor by flockes, thynckige the harme and decaye of the Jewes to be their welfare. Now when the Jewes herde of Nicanors commynge, and the gathering together of the heathen: they sprẽckled thẽ selues with earth, * & besought hym, which made them hys people, and euer defended his awne porcion with euydent tokens, that he wolde preserue them styll. So at the commaundemẽt of the captayne, they remoued frõ thẽce, & came to a towne called Dessalan. And Symõ Judas brother fell in hãds wt Nicanor, but thorow ꝑ sodayne commyng of the enemyes, he was afrayed.

Neuertheles, Nicanor hearinge the manlynes of them that were wyth Judas, & the bolde holde stomaches that they had to fyght for their naturall countre, durst not proue the matter with bloudshedynge. Wherfore he sent Posidonius, Theodocius & Mathias before, to geue and to take peace. So when they had taken longe aduisement there vpõ and the captayne shewed it vnto the multitude, they were agreed in one minde: to haue peace. And they apoynted a daye to syt vpõ these matters quyetly among them selues, the stoles also were brought and set forth.

Neuertheless, Judas commaũded certaine men of armes to wayte in cõuenient places, lest there shulde sodenly aryse any euell thorow the enemyes. And so they cõmoned reasonably together.

D Nicanor, whyle he abode at Jerusalem, ordred him selfe not vnreasonably, but sent awaye the people that were gathered together. He loued Judas euer wyth hys herte, & fauoured him. He prayed hym also to take a wyfe, and to bringe forth chyldren. So he maryed, lyued in rest, and they led a comen lyfe. But Alcimus perceauige the loue that was betwyxte them, and how they were agreed together, came to Demetrius, & tolde him that Nicanor had taken straunge matters in hande, and ordened Judas (an enemy of the realme) to be the kynges successoure. Then the kynge was sore displeased, & thorow ꝑ wycked accusacyons, which Alcimus made of Nicanor, he was so prouoked, that he wrote vnto Nicanor, sayng: that he was very angrye for the frendshyppe and agrement, whych he had made wt Machabeus. Neuertheles he commaunded him in all the haste, that he shulde take Machabeus prisoner, and sende hym to Antioche.

E Whych letters whẽ Nicanor had sene, he was at hys wyttes ende, & sore greued, ꝑ he shulde breake the thynges wherin they had agreed: specially, seynge Machabeus was ꝑ mã, ꝑ neuer dyd him harme. But because he myght not withstande the kyng, he sought oportunite to fulfil his cõmaundemẽt. Notwithstanding when Machabeus sawe that Nicanor beganne to be churlysh vnto him, & ꝑ he intreated him more rughly then he was wonte, he perceaued ꝑ soch vnkyndnes came not of good, and therfore he gathered a few of hys men, & withdrewe him selfe frõ Nicanor. Which whẽ he knewe that Machabeus had manfully preuented him, he came into ꝑ great and most holy tẽple: and cõmaunded ꝑ prestes (which were doynge their vsuall ofᵗ.mac.vii.c fringes) to deliuer him ꝑ mã. And whẽ they sware ꝑ they coulde not tel where ꝑ mã was whõ he sought, he stretched out his hãde, * & made an othe, sayinge: If ye wyll not delyuer me Judas captyue, I shall remoue thys tẽple of God ito ꝑ playne felde, I shall breake downe ꝑ aulter, & cõsecrate this tẽple vnto Bachus. After these wordes he departed

Then the prestes lyft vp their handes toward heauen, & besought hym ꝑ was euer ꝑ defender of their people, sayng: Thou O Lorde of all, whych hast nede of nothynge, woldest ꝑ the tẽple of thy habitacyon shulde be amonge vs. Therfore now O moost holy Lorde, kepe thys house euer vndefyled, * whych lately was clẽsed. Now was there accused vnto Nicanor, one Razis an Alderman of Jerusalẽ, a louer of the whole cyte, & a man of good reporte: whych for ꝑ kynde herte ꝑ he bare vnto ꝑ people, was called a father of ꝑ Jewes. This mã oft tymes, whẽ the Jewes were mynded to kepe thẽ selues vndefyled, defended & delyuered thẽ, beynge content stedfastly to spẽde his body and his lyfe for hys people.

So Nicanor wyllynge to declare ꝑ hate that he bare to the Jewes, sent fyue hũdreth men of warre to take him: for he thought, yf he gat him, he shulde brige ꝑ Jewes in great decaye. Now when ꝑ people begãne to rushe ī at his house, to breake ꝑ dores, & to set fyre on it: he beinge now take, wolde haue defended him selfe with hys swearde: chosynge rather to dye manfully, then to yelde hym selfe to those wicked doers: & because of his noble stocke, he had rather haue bene put to extreme cruelte. Notwythstãding what time as he missed of his stroke for haste, & ꝑ multitude fell in violẽtly betwixte ꝑ dores: he ranne boldly to the wal, & cast him selfe downe mãfully amonge the heape of them, which gaue soone place to his fall, so ꝑ he fel vpõ hys bely. Neuertheles, while there was yet breath within hym, he was kyndled in hys mynde, & whyle his bloude gusshed out exceadingly (for he was very sore woũded) he rãne thorow the myddest of the people, and gat hym to the toppe of a rocke. So when his bloude was now gone, he toke out his awn bowels wt both his hãdes, & threw thẽ vpon ꝑ people callynge vpon ꝑ Lord of lyfe & spyrite to reward him this agayne, and so he dyed.

¶The.xv.Chapter.

¶Nicanor goeth aboute to come vpõ Judas on ꝑ Sabboth daye. The blasphempe of Nicanor. Machabeus expoundynge vnto ꝑ Jewes ꝑ vysyon, boldreth their hertes. The prayer of Machabeus. * Exod. xx. d

Nicanor had deuysed with great pryde to ouercome Judas, & to bringe awaye the victory. But Machabeus had euer a fast confidence and a parfecte hope in God, that he wolde helpe hym, & exhorted hys people, not to be afrayed at the cõminge of the Heathen: but alwaye to remembre the help that had bene shewed vnto them from heaue, pre & to be sure now also, that almyghtye God wolde geue them the victory. He spake vnto them out of the lawe and prophetes, putting them in remembraunce of the battayls that they had stricken afore, and made them to be of a good corage.

So when their hartes were plucte vp, he shewed them also the disceatfulnesse of the Heathen, and how they wolde kepe no couenaũt nor othe. Thus he weapened them not wyth the armoure of shylde and speare, but with wholsome wordes and exhortacyons. He shewed thẽ a dreame also, wherthorowe he made them all glad, whych was thys: he thought that he sawe Onias (which had bene hye prest, a vertuous and louynge man, sad and of honest cõuersacyon, well spoken, & one that had bene exercysed in Godlynes from a chylde) holdyng vp hys handes towarde heauen, and prayenge for his people. After this there apeared vnto him another man, which was aged, honorable and glorious. And Onias sayde: This is a louer of the brethren, and of the people of Israell. This is he that prayeth mochfor the people and for all ỹ holy citye: Jeremy ỹ prophete of God. He thought also that Jeremy helde out hys ryght hande, and gaue vnto Judas a swearde of Golde, saynge: Take this holy swearde, a gyfte from God, wherwith thou shalt smyte downe the enemyes of the people of Israell.

And so they were well comforted thorow the wordes of Judas, and toke corage vnto them, so that the yonge men were determyned in their myndes to fyght, & to byde stylly at it: In so moch ỹ in the thynges whych they toke in hande, their boldnesse shewed ỹ same, because the holy citye and the temple were in parell: for the which they toke more care, then for their wyues, chyldren, brethre and kynsfolckes. Agayne, they that were in the citye, were most carefull for those which were to fyght. Now when they were all in a hope that the iudgement of the matter was at hãde, and the enemyes drewnye, the host beynge set in araye, the Elephãtes and horsmen euery one standynge in hys place, Machabeus consydered the cõmyng of the multitude, the ordynaunce of dyuerse weapens, the cruelnes of the beastes, and helde vp his handes towarde heauen, callyng vpon the Lorde ỹ doth wonders, * whych geueth not the victory after the multitude of weapens and power of the host (but to thẽ that please hym) accordynge to hys awne wyll. Therfore in hys prayer he sayd these wordes,

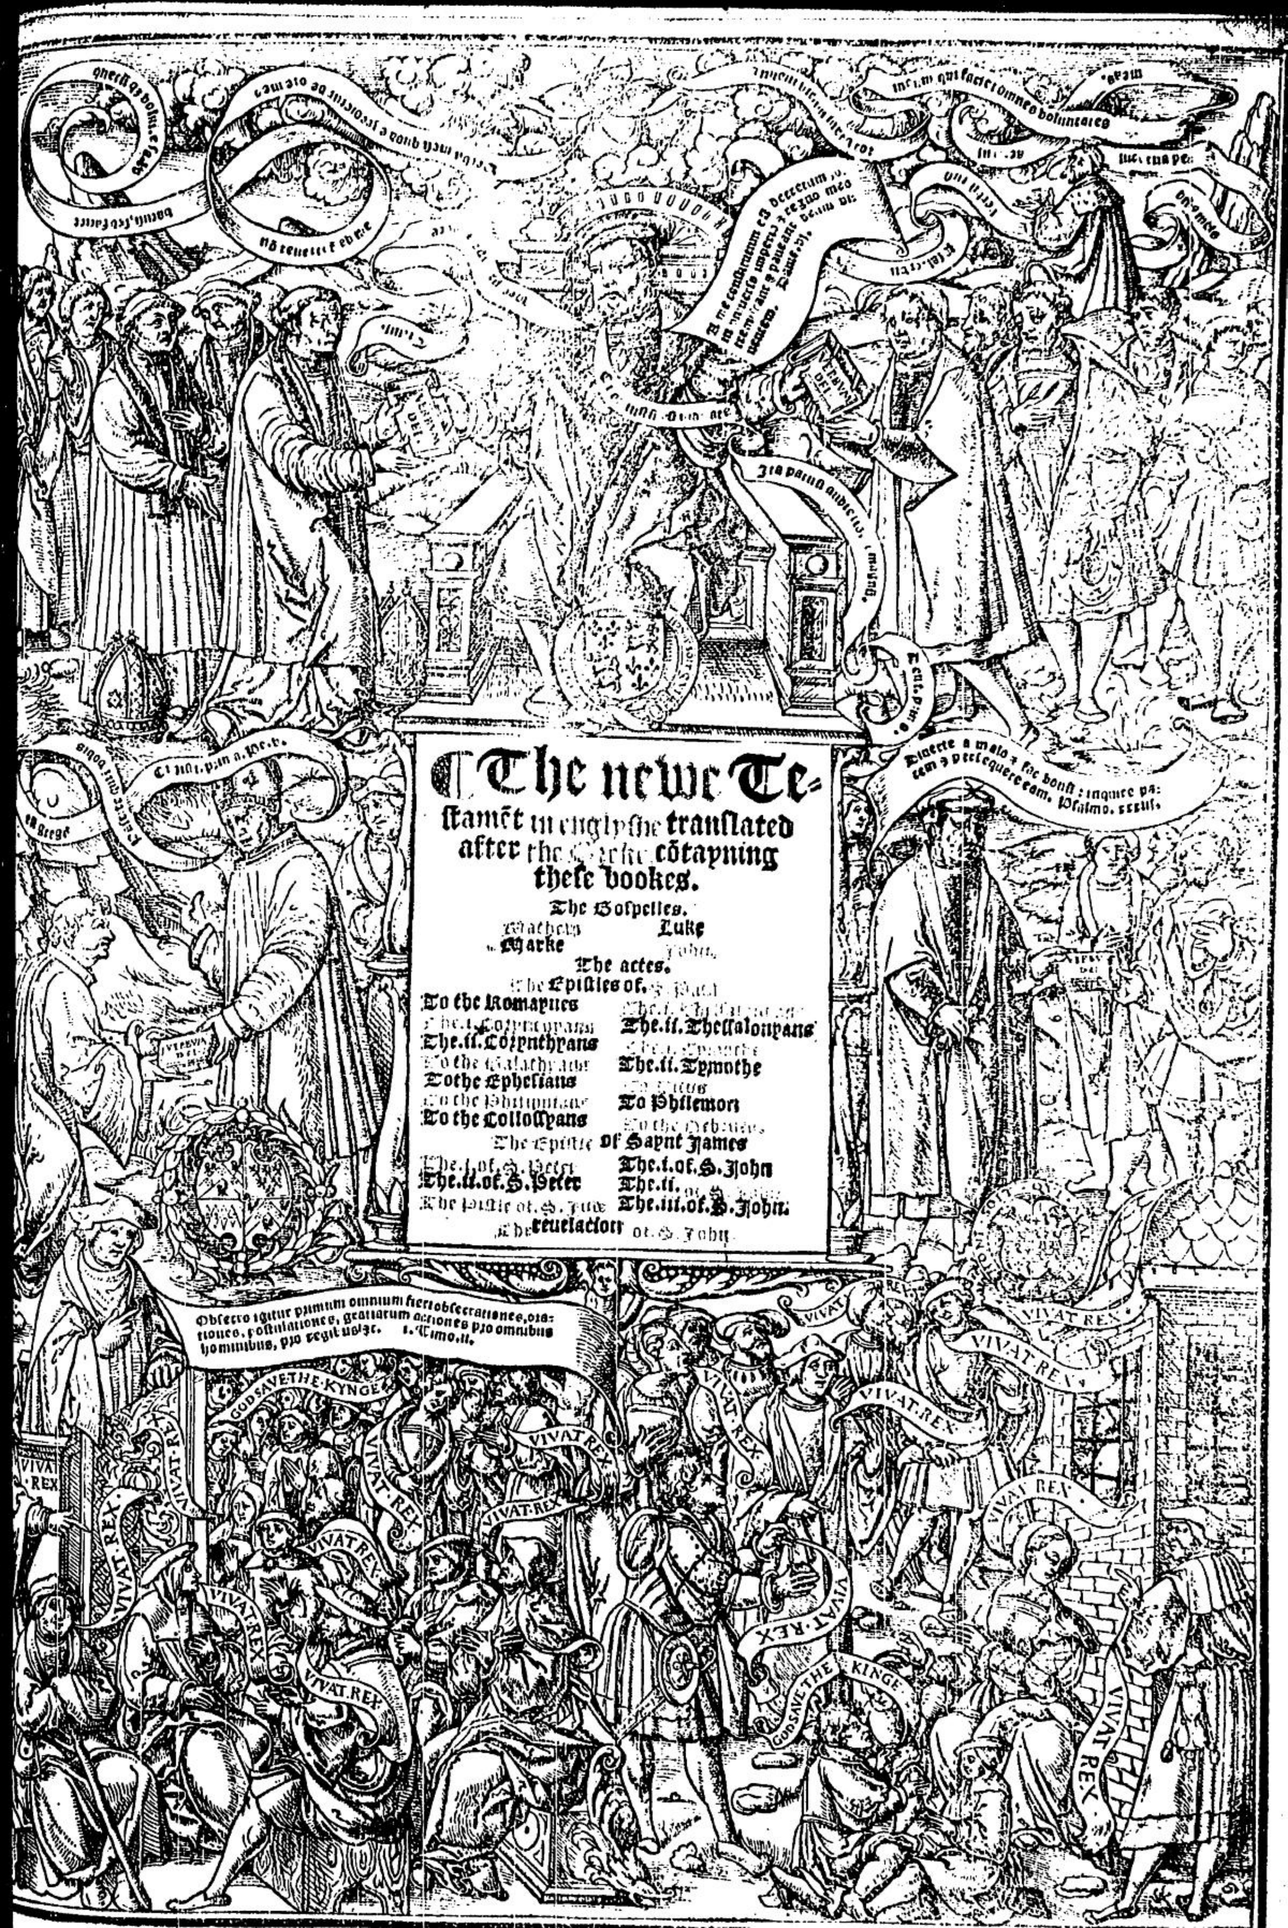
* 11. par. Judi. vi.

O Lorde, * thou ỹ diddest sende thyne Angell in the tyme of Ezekyah kyng of Juda, and in the hoste of Sennaherib slewest anhũdreth foure score & fyue thousand: sende now also thy good angell before vs (O Lorde of heauens) in the fearfulnesse and drede of thy myghtie arme, that they which come against thy holy people to blaspheme them, maye be afrayed. And so he made an ende of his wordes. Thẽ Nicanor & they that were with hym, drewe nye wyth shawmes and songes: but Judas and hys company wyth prayer and callynge vpon God.

* 111. Reg. xix. Esa. xxxvii. 1. Esd. iv. 11. Mach. viii.

With their handes they smote, but wyth theyr hertes they prayed vnto the Lorde, & slew no lesse then. xxxv. M. mẽ: For thorow ỹ present helpe of God they were gloriously comforted.



Now when they left of, & were turnynge agayne with ioye, they vnderstode that Nicanor hym selfe was slayne wyth the other. Then they gaue a greate shoute and a crye, praysynge the Almighty Lord with a loude voyce. And Judas (whych was euer ready to spende hys body & lyfe for hys cytesyns) cõmaunded to smite of Nicanors head, with hys arme & hande, & to be brought to Jerusalem. When he came t, ere, he called all the people, & the prestes at ỹ aulter wyth those that were in the castell, & shewed thẽ Nicanors head, and his wycked hande, whych he had presumptuously holden vp agaynst the tẽple of God. He caused ỹ tonge also of ỹ vngodly Nicanor to be cut i lytle peces, & to be cast to the fowles, & the cruel mans hande to be hanged vp before the temple.

So euery man gaue thanckes vnto the Lord, sayinge: blessed be he, that hath kepte hys place vndefyled.

As for Nicanors head, he hanged it vp vpon the hye castell, for an euident & playne token of ỹ helpe of God. And so they agreed all together, to kepe that daye holy, namely the. xiii. daye of the moneth Adar, which in ỹ Syrians language is called the nexte daye before Marhocheus daye. Thus was Nicanor slayne, and from that tyme forth the Jewes had the citye in possessiõ. And here will I now make an ende.

¶ The genealogye of Chryst, and maryage of hys mother Mary. The angel satysfieth Josephs mynde.

Hys ys ỹ booke of the generacyon of Jesus Chryst, ỹ sonne of Dauid, the sonne of Abrahã.
*Gene.xxi.a *Abraham begat Isaac. ǂ Isaac begat Jacob. * Jacob begat Judas and hys brethren.
*Gen.xxv.d ǂ Judas begat Phares and zaram of Thamar. * Phares begat Esrom. ǂ Esrom begat
*Gen.xxxviii.g Aram. * Aram begat Aminadab. ǂ Aminadab begat Naasson. * Naasson begat Salmon. ǂ Salmon begat Boos of Rahab.
*Ruth.iiii.d * Boos begat Obed of Ruth. ǂ Obed begat Jesse. * Jesse begat Dauid the kynge.
*Ruth.iiii.d ǂ Dauid the kynge begat Salomon, of her that was the wyfe of Vrye. * Salomon begat Roboam. ǂ Roboam begat Abia.
*Ruth.iiii.d * Abia begat Asa. ǂ Asa begat Josaphat.
*Ruth.iiii.d * Josaphat begat Joram. ǂ Joram begat Ozias. * Ozias begat Joatham. ǂ Joatham
*Ruth.iiii.d begat Achas. * Achas begat Ezechias.
*Ruth.iiii.d ǂ Ezechias begat Manasses. * Manasses begat Amon. ǂ Amon begat Josias.
*Ruth.iiii.d * Josias begat Jeconias and hys brethren about the tyme they were caryed awaye to Babylon. And after they were brought to Babylon, ǂ Jechonias begat Salathiel.
*Ruth.iiii.d * Salathiel begat zorobabel.
*Ruth.iiii.d ǂ zorobabel begat Abiud.
*Ruth.iiii.d * Abiud begat Eliachim.
*Ruth.iiii.d Eliachim begat Azor.
*Ruth.iiii.d Azor begat Sadoc.
*Ruth.iiii.d Sadoc begat Achin. Achin begat Eliud.
*Ruth.iiii.d Eliud begat Eleasar.
*Ruth.iiii.d Eleasar begat Matthan.
*Ruth.iiii.d Matthan begat Jacob.
*Ruth.iiii.d Jacob begat Joseph the husbande of Mary, of whom was borne Jesus, euen he that is called Chryst.

And so all the generacyons from Abrahã to Dauid, are fourtene generacyõs. And frõ Dauid vnto the captyuyte of Babylon, are fourtene generacyõs. And from the captyuyte of Babylon vnto Chryst, are fourtene generacyons.

¶ The byrth of Jesus Chryst was on this wyse. When his mother Mary was maryed to Joseph (before they came to dwell to geather) she was founde with chylde by the holy ghoost. Then Joseph her husbande (because he was a ryghteous man, and wolde not put her to shame) he was mynded preuely to departe from her. But whyll he thus thought, beholde, the aungell of the Lorde appeared vnto hym in slepe, saying: Joseph, thou sonne of Dauid: feare not to take vnto the Mary thy wyfe. For that which is conceaued in her, cometh of the holy ghost. She shall bryng forth a sonne, and thou shalt cal hys name * Jesus. For he shall saue his people from theyr synnes. * Mathew.ii.b Luce.iii.b

All this was done, ỹ it might be fulfilled, which was spokẽ of the Lord by ỹ prophet, saying: * Behold, a mayd shalbe wt chylde, ǂ shall bring forth a sonne, ǂ they shall call his name Emanuel, which yf a man interpret, it is asmoch to say as God with vs. * Esa.vii.e

And Joseph as sone as he awoke out of slepe, dyd as the angel of the Lorde had bydden hym: and he toke hys wyfe vnto hym, ǂ knewe her not, tyll she had brought forth * her fyrst begotten sonne, and called his name Jesus. * Luke.ii.a

¶ The.ij. Chapter.

¶ The tyme and place of Chrystes byrth. The wyse mẽ offre theyr presentes. Chryst fleeth into Egypte, the ponge chyldren are slayne, Chryst turneth into Galile.

Whẽ Jesus was borne at Bethleẽ a cytie of Jewry, in the tyme of Herode the kynge. Beholde, there came wyse men frõ the east to Jerusalem, sayinge: Where is he that is borne king of Jewes? For we haue sene hys * starre in the east, and are come to worshyppe hym. * Nu.xxiiii.c

When Herode the kyng had hearde these thynges, he was troubled, and all the cyte of Jerusalem with hym. And whan he had gathered all the chefe prestes and scrybes of the people togeather, he demaunded of them, where Chryst shulde be borne. And they sayd vnto hym: At Bethleem in Jewry. For thus it is wrytten by the prophet: * And ỹ Bethleem in the lande of Juda, art not the leest among the princes of Juda. For * oute of the shal there come vnto me the captayne, that shall gouerne my people Israel. * Micha.v.a * Johñ.vii.g

Then Herode (whẽ he had preuely called the wyse men) he enquyred of thẽ diligently what tyme the starre appered, ǂ he bad them go to Bethleem, & sayd: Goo your waye thi ther, & searche diligētly for ỹ childe. And whē ye haue foūde him, bryng me word agayne, that I maye come and worshyp hym also.

✠ Whē they had heard ỹ kyng, they departed: and lo, the starre which they sawe in the easte, wēt before thē, tyll it came, & stode ouer the place, wherin the chylde was. Whē they sawe the starre, they were exceadynge glad: and went into the house, and found the chylde with Mary his mother * & fell downe * Wsal.lxxii.d Esa.lx.b flatt and worshipped hym, and opened their treasures & offered vnto hym gyftes, golde, franckincense, & myrre. And after they were warned of God in slepe (that they shuld not go agayne to Herode) they returned into their awne countre another waye. ✠

Whē they were departed, behold, the angel of the Lord appered to Joseph in slepe saying, aryse, & take the chyld and his mother, and flye into Egipt: and be thou there tyll I bryng the worde. For it wyll come to passe
C that Herode shall seke the chylde, to destroye
hym. So whan he awoke, he toke the childe and hys mother by night, and departed into Egipt, and was there vnto the deeth of He-rode, that it myght be fulfylled, which was spoken of ỹ Lorde by the prophete, sayenge:
* Osee.xi.a Nu.xxiiij.c * out of Egypt haue I called my sonne.

Then Herode whā he sawe ỹ he was mocked of ỹ wyse mē, he was exceading wroth, & sent forth mē of warre, & slue all ỹ chyldrē that were in Bethleem, and in all ỹ coastes, (as many as were two yeere olde or vnder) accordynge to the tyme, whych he had dilygently knowe out of the wyse men.

Then was fulfylled that, which was spokē by the prophet Jeremy: where as he sayd:
* Hier.xxxi.c in Rama was there a voyce herde * lamen-tacyon, weping, and great mourninge. Rachel weping for her chyldren, & wolde not be ☞ cōforted ☜ because they were not. ✠ But when Herode was deed: beholde, ✠ an an-D gell of the Lorde appeared in a slepe to Joseph, in Egypte, sayenge: aryse, and take the chylde of hys mother, and go into the lande
* Exo.iiij.e of Israell. * for they are deed which sought the chyldes lyfe. And he arose, and toke the chylde and hys mother, & came into the land of Israell. But when he hearde that Archelaus dyd raygne in Jewry, in the rowme of his father Herode, he was afrayde to go thither. Notwithstandinge, after he was warned of God in a slepe, he turned a syde into ỹ parties of Galile, and went and dwelt in a cyte which is called Nazareth: that it might be fulfylled which was spoken by the prophetes: he shalbe called a Nazarite. ✠

¶ The.iij. Chapter. ✠

¶ The baptyme, preachynge and office of John, and how Christ was baptysed of hym in Jordane.

IN those dayes came John ỹ * Baptist, preachyng in the wyldernesse of Jewry, and sayeng: ✠ ☞ Repēt of the life that is past, for the kingdome of heauen is at hand. * For this is he, of whom the Prophete Esaye spake, which sayeth: ✠ The voyce of a cryer in the wyldernes, prepare ye the waye of the Lorde: & make hys pathes streyght. Thys John had hys rayment of camels heer. * And a gyrdell of a skynne about hys loynes. ✠ His meat was locustes and * wylde hony. Then went out to hym Jerusalem and all Jewrye, and all the regyon rounde about Jordan, and were baptysed of hym in Jordan, confessyng their synnes.

✠ But when he sawe many of the Pharises and Saduces come to hys baptyme, he sayd vnto them: * O generacion of vypers, who hath taught you to flē from the venge-aunce to come? Bring forth therfore the fru-tes that belong to repentaunce. And be not of soch mynde that ye wolde saye wīn your selues: we haue Abraham to oure father.
For I saye vnto you: that God is able to bryng to passe, that of these stones ther shall ryse vp childrē vnto Abraham. Euen now is the axe also put vnto the rote of the trees:
so that * euery tree which bringeth not forth good frute, is hewen downe, and cast into the fyre.

I baptyse you in water * vnto repētaunce: but he ỹ shall come after me is myghtyer then I, whose shoes I am not worthy to beare. He shall baptise you with the holy ghost and with fyre: * whose fan is in hys hand, & he wyll purge hys flooze, & gather his wheat into the barne, but wyll burne the chaffe wt
vnquencheable fyre. ✠

✠ Then commeth Jesus from Galile to Jordan vnto John * to be baptysed of hym.
But John forbade hym, sayinge: I haue nede to be baptised of the: and commest thou to me? Jesus answered & said vnto him: Let it be so now. For thus it becometh vs to fulfyll all ryghteousnesse. Then he suffred hym. And Jesus when he was baptised, came straight waye out of the water. And lo * heuen was open vnto him: and he sawe ỹ spyrete of God descendynge lyke a doue, and lyghtyng vpō hym. And loo, there came a voyce from heauen sayenge. * Thys is my beloued sonne, in whō I am well pleased. ✠

Do not also the publicans lyke wise? * ye shall therfore be perfecte, euen as your father which is in heauen is perfecte. ✠

¶ The. vj. Chapter. ✠

¶ Of Almes, prayer and fastynge. He forbyddeth the carefull styrynge of worldly thynges.

Take heade, ỹ ye geue not your almose in the sight of men, to the intent that ye wold be sene of them. A Or els ye haue no reward with youre father which is in heauen. Therfore, whā thou geuest thyne almes, let not trōpetes be blowē before the, as ỹ ypocrites do in the synagoges and in the stretes: for to be prayed of men. Verely, I saye vnto you: they haue their reward. But when thou wylt geue almes, let not thy left hande knowe what thy ryghte hande doth, that thyne almes maye be in secrete: and thy father which seeth in secrete, shall reward the openly. ✠

And when thou prayest * thou shalt not be as the ypocrytes are. For they vse to stād prayeng in the synagoges, and in the corners of the stretes, that they maye be sene of men. Verely, I saye vnto you: they haue their reward. But when thou prayest * entre into thy chamber, & when thou hast shut thy doze praye to thy father which is in secrete: & thy B father which seeth in secrete, shall reward the openly.

But when ye praye * bable not moch, as the heathen do: for they thincke it will come to passe, that they shalbe herd for their moch bablynges sake. Be not ye therfore lyke vnto them. * For youre father knoweth what thynges thinges ye haue neade of before ye aske of hi: after thys maner therfore praye ye.

* Oure father which art in heauen, halowed be thy name. Lett thy kyngdome come. Thy will be fulfylled, as well in earth, as it is in heauen. Geue vs this daye oure daylye bread. And forgeue vs our ☞ dettes, as we forgeue oure detters. And leade vs not into temptacyon: but delyuer vs from euyll. For thyne is the kyngdome and the power, and the glorye for euer. Amen. Therfore, * yf ye forgeue other mē theyr trespasses, your heuēly father shall forgeue you. (youre trespasses.) But yf ye wyll not forgeue men theyr trespasses, nomore shall your father forgeue you youre trespasses.

✠ Moreouer, * when ye fast, be not sad as the ypocrites are. For they disfigure their C faces, that it maye appeare vnto men, how that they fast. Verely, I saye vnto you, they haue theyr reward. But thou, whē thou fastest, anoynte thyne heed, and wash thy face, that it appere not vnto men, how that thou fastest: but vnto thy father, which is i secret: and thy father which seeth in secrete, shall reward the openly.

Laye not vp for your selues treasure vpō earth, where the rust and mothe doth corrupte, and where theues breake through, and steale. * But laye vp for you, treasures i heuen, where nether rust nor mothe doth corrupte, and where theues do not breake thorow nor steale. For where your treasure is, there will youre hert be also. ✠

* The light of the body is the eye. Wherfore, yf thyne eye be single, all thy body shall be full of light. But and yf thyne eye be wicked, all thy body shalbe full of darcknesse. Wherfore, yf the lyght ỹ is in the be darcknes, how greate is that darcknes?

✠ * No man can serue two masters. For ether he shal hate the one and loue the other, or els leane to the one, and despyse the other: ye cannot serue God and Mammon. Therfore I saye vnto you: * be not carefull for youre lyfe, what ye shall eate or drincke, nor yet for youre bodye, what rayment ye shall put on. Is not the lyfe more worth thē meate: and the body more of value then rayment? Behold, the foules of the ayer: for they sowe not, nether do they reape, nor cary into the barnes: and youre heuenly father fedeth thē. Are ye not moch better then they?

* Whych of you (by takynge carefull thought) can adde one cubyte vnto hys stature? And why care ye for rayment? Consyder the lylies of the felde, how they growe. They laboure not, nether do they spynne. And yet I saye vnto you, that euen Salomon in all hys royalte was not arayed lyke one of these. Wherfore, yf God so cloth the grasse of the felde (which though it stande to daye, is to morow cast into ỹ fornasse) shall he not moch more do the same for you, O ye of lytle fayth?

Therfore, take no thought, saying: what shall we eate, or what shall we drynke, or wherwith shall we be clothed? after all these thynges do the gentyls seke. For youre heuenly father knoweth, that ye haue nede of all these thynges. But rather seke ye fyrst ỹ kyngdome of God, and the ryghteousnesse therof, and al these thinges shalbe ministred vnto you. ✠

Care not then for the morow, for the morowe daye shall care for it selfe: sufficient vnto the daye, is the trauayle therof.

¶ He forbyddeth foolysh and rasshe iudgment, reproueth ypocrysye, exhorteth vnto prayer, warneth to be ware of false prophetes and wylleth the hearers of hys worde to be doers of the same.

Iudge not, that ye be not iudged * (condempne not, and ye shall not be condempned.) * For as ye iudge, so shall ye be iudged. * And with what measure ye meate, with the same shall other men measure to you. * Why seest thou a mote in thy brothers eye, but consydrest not the beame that is i thyne awne eye? Or how sayest thou to thy brother * (Brother) suffre me, I wyll plucke oute a moate out of thyne eye, and beholde, a beame is in thyne awne eye. ## ¶ The. xiij. Chapter.

¶ The parable of the sede, of the tares, of the mustardesede, of the leuen, of the treasure hyd in the felde, of the perles, and of the nett.

A * Mar. iii. a. The same daye wēt Jesus out of the house, * and sat by the see syde, and moche people were gathered together vnto him, so gretly ỹ he went, and sat in a shippe, and all the people stode on the shore. And he spake many thynges to thē by similitudes, sayinge: Beholde, the sower went forth to sowe. And whan he sowed, some sedes fell by the wayes syde, and the fowles came, and deuoured them vp. Some fell vpon stony places, where they had not moche erth, and anone they spronge vp, because they had no depnesse of erth: and when the sonne was vp, they caught heat, & because they had no rote, they wyddred awaye.
Agayne, some fell amonge thornes, and the thornes spronge vp & choaked them. But some fell into good ground, & brought forth frute: some an hundred folde, some syrtie folde, some thyrtie folde. Whosoeuer hath eares to heare, let him heare.

B And the disciples came, & sayde vnto him:

sower. Whā one heareth ỹ word of the kingdome, & vnderstandeth it not, then cōmeth ỹ euyll man, & taketh awaye that which was sowen in hys hert: thys is he, which was sowne by the waye syde. But he that receaued the sede which was cast into stony places, ỹ same is he that heareth the worde, and anone with ioye receaueth it, yet hath he no rote in hym selfe, but dureth for a season: for whā tribulacyon or persecucyon happeneth because of the worde, by and by he falleth. He also that receaued sede into ỹ thornes, is he ỹ heareth the worde: and the care of this worl-de, and the dissaytfulnes of ryches, choke vp the worde, and so is he made vnfrutefull.
But he that receaued sede into ỹ good groūd is he that heareth the worde, and vnderstandeth it: which also beareth frute, & bringeth forth, some an hundred folde, some syrtie folde, some thyrtye folde.

Another similitude put he forth vnto thē, D
sayinge: ✠ * The kyngdome of heauen is * Mar. iiii. c. lykened vnto a man, which sowed good seed in his felde. But whyll men slept, his ene-mie came, & sowed tares among the wheate, & went his waye. But when the blade was sprōg vp, and had brought forth frute, there appeared the tares also. So the seruauntes of the housholder came, and sayde vnto him.
Syr, dyddest not thou sowe good seed i thy felde? frō whēce then hath it tares? He sayde vnto them, the enuious man hath done this.
The seruauntes sayde vnto him: wylt thou then that we go, and wede them vp? But he sayde, nay, lest while ye gather vp the tares ye plucke vp also the wheate with them, let both the growe together vntill the harueste, and in tyme of harueste, I wyll saye to the repers gather ye fyrst the tares, and bynde them together in sheues to be brent: but gather the wheate into my barne. ✠

✠ Another parable put he forth vnto thē, * Mat. xiii. c. Luke. xiii. d.

all seedes. But when it is growne, it is the greatest among herbes, and is a tree: so that nestes in the braunches ther of.

The disciples wēt & dyd as Jesꝰ cōmaūded thē, & brought the asse, & the colte, & put on thē their clothes, & sett hi therō. And many of the people spred their garmentes in ỹ waye. Other cut doune braūches frō ỹ trees, & strawed thē i ỹ waye.

B Moreouer, the people ỹ wēt before, & they ỹ came after, cried saying: Hosanna to the sonne of Dauid * Blessed is he ỹ commeth i the name of ỹ Lord: Hosanna in ỹ hyest. ✠

✠ And whē he was come to Jerusalē, all ỹ citie was moued, saying: who is this? And the people sayd: this is Jesus * the Prophet of Nazareth (a cyte) of Galile * And Jesus went into the tēple of God, & cast out all thē ỹ solde & bought in the temple, & ouerthrew the tables of ỹ mony chaungers, & the seates of them that solde doues, & sayd vnto them: It is wrytē * my house shalbe called ỹ house of prayer. But ye haue made it * a denne of theues. And the blynde & the halt came to him in the temple, & he healed them.

When the chefe Prestes & Scribes sawe ỹ wonders that he dyd, & the chyldrē cryinge in the temple (& sayinge: Hosanna to the sonne of Dauid) they disdayned, and sayd vnto him: heareſt thou what these saye? But Jesus saieth vnto them why not? haue ye neuer redde *. Out of the mouth of babes & sucklynges thou haste ordeyned prayse? And he lefte them, and went out of the cytie * vnto Bethanie, & had his abydinge there. ✠

* In the mornynge as he returned into ỹ cytie agayne, he hūgred: & whā he had spyed a * tygge tree i the waye, he came to it, & foūde nothynge therō, but leaues onely, & sayde vnto it: Neuer frute growe on the hēce forwardes. And anone ỹ tygg tree widdered awaye. And when hys disciples sawe it, they marueled, saying. How soone is ỹ tygge tree wydderd awaye? Jesus answered, and sayd vnto thē: Verely I saye vnto you * yf ye haue fayth & dout not, ye shal not onely do this that is happened vnto ỹ tygge tree: but also yf ye shall saye vnto this mountayne, remoue, & cast thy selfe into the see, it shalbe done. * And all thinges whatsoeuer ye aske i prayer (yf ye beleue) ye shall receaue them.

✠ * And when he was come in to ỹ tēple, the chefe Prestes & the elders of the people came vnto him (as he was teachinge) & sayde * By what auctorite doeſt thou these thinges? & who gaue the thys power? Jesus answered & sayde vnto thē: I also wyll aske of you a certayne thing, which yf ye tell me, I in like wyse will tell you by what auctorite I do these thinges. The baptime of John: whence was it? frō heauen or of mē? And they thought amonge them selues, saying: yf we saye frō heauē, he wyll saye vnto vs: why dyd ye not then beleue him? But yf we shall saye of men, then feare we the people. * For all men holde John as a prophet. And they answered vnto Jesus & sayde: we cannot tell. And he sayd vnto thē: nether tell I you, by what auctorite I do these thynges. ✠ What saye ye to this? ✠ A man had two sonnes, & cam to the fyrst, & sayde: sonne, go & worke to daye i my vineyarde. He answered & sayde, I wyll not, but afterward, he repēted, & went. Thē cam he to the secōde, & sayd lykewise. And he answered, & sayd: I will fyr, & wēt not. Whether of thē twayne dyd ỹ wyll of the father? And they saye vnto him: the fyrst. Jesus sayeth vnto thē: verely I saye vnto you, the publicās & harlotes go into the kyngdō of God before you. For * John cam vnto you by the waye of ryghtewesnes, and ye beleued hym not: but publicans & harlottes beleued hym. And ye (whan ye had sene it) were not moued afterwarde wyth repentaunce, that ye myght haue beleued hym. ✠

✠ Herkē another symilitude * There was a certaine man an housholder, whych plāted a vineyarde, & hedged it rounde about, & made a wynepresse in it, & bilt a tower, ād let it out to husbandmen, & wēt into a straung coūtre. And when ỹ tyme of ỹ frute drewe neare, he sent his seruauntes to the husbandmen ỹ they myght receaue the frutes of it. And ỹ husbādmen caught his seruaūtes, & bet one, killed another, & stoned another. Againe, he sent other seruauntes, moo then the fyrst: ād they dyd vnto thē lykewyse. But last of all, he sent vnto thē his awne sonne, saying: they wyll stande in awe of my sonne. But whē ỹ husbādmen sawe the sonne, they sayd amōge them selues: * This is the heyre: come, let vs kyll him, & let vs enioye his inheritaunce And they caught hym, & thrust hym out of ỹ vineyarde, & slewe him. When the Lord therfore of the vineyard cōmeth, what will he do vnto those husbādmen? They sayd vnto hi: For a smoch as they be euell, he will cruellye destroye thē, & will let out his vineyard vnto other husbādmē, which shall delyuer hym the frute in due seasons. Jesus sayeth vnto thē: dyd ye neuer reade in ỹ scriptures * The stone whych the bylders refused, the same is become the heade of the corner: thys is ỹ Lordes doinge, & it is meruelous in youre eyes. Therfore saye I vnto you, ỹ kyngdō of God shalbe taken frō you, and geuen to a nacion, whych shall bringe forth the frutes therof. And * whosoeuer falleth on this stone, shalbe broken in peces: but on * whōsoeuer it falleth it shall all to grynd hym. And when the chefe Prestes and Pharises had heard hys parables, they perceaued, that he speake of them. * And they went about to laye handes on him * but they feared the people, because they tooke him as a Prophet. ✠ And Jesus answered, & spake vnto thē agayne by parables and sayde.

¶ The .xxij. Chapter.

¶ The mariage of the Kynges sonne. Tribute to be geuen to the Emperour. Christ cōfuteth the opinyon of the Saduces cōcernyng the resurrecyon, & answereth the Scribe vnto hys question.

A The kyngdome of heauē is lyke vnto * a man that was a kynge, whych made a mariage for hys sonne & sent forth his seruauntes, to call them that were byd to the weddynge, & they wolde not come. Agayne, he sent forth other seruauntes sayinge: Tell thē whych are byddē: beholde, I haue prepared my dynner: my oxen & my fatlynges are kylled, & all thinges are ready, come vnto ỹ mariage. But they made lyght of it, & wēt their wayes: one to his ferme place, another to hys marchaundise, & the rēnaunt toke his seruauntes, & intreated thē shamefully ād slewe them. But when the kyng heard therof, he was wroth, & sent forth his men of warre & destroyed those murtherers, and brent vp theyr cytie.

Thē sayd he to his seruauntes: ỹ mariage in dede is prepared. But they whych were bydden, were not worthy. Goo ye therfore out into ỹ hye wayes: & as many as ye fynde byd thē to the mariage. And the seruauntes went out into the hye wayes, & gathered together all, as many as they coulde fynde, both good & bad, & the weddynge was furnisshed with gestes. Then the kyng came in, to se the gestes, & whan he spyed there a mā, whych had not on a * weddynge garment, he sayd vnto hym: frēde, how camest thou in hyther not hauyng a weddynge garment? And he was euē spechlesse. Then sayd ỹ king to the ministers: take & bynde him hand and fote, & cast hym into vtter darcknes * there shall be weppynge & gnasshynge of teth. For many be called but fewe are chosen. ✠

✠ * Then went the pharises, & toke counsell how they myght tāgle hī in his wordes. And they sent out vnto hym theyr disciples wyth Herodes seruauntes, sayinge: * Master, we knowe that ỹ art true, & teacheſt the waye of God truely, nether careſt ỹ for eny man, for thou regardest not the outward apparaūce of mē. Tell vs therfore: how thynkest ỹ? Is it lawfull ỹ trybute be geuē vnto Cesar or not? But Jesus perceauyng theyr wyckednes, sayde: Why tēpte ye me ye ypocrites? Shewe me ỹ tribute mony. And they toke hī a peny. And he sayde vnto thē: whose is this ymage & superscripciō? They saye vnto him, Cesars. Thē sayd he vnto thē. * Geue therfore vnto Cesar, ỹ thinges whych are Cesars: & vnto God, those thinges ỹ are Gods. ✠ When they had heard these wordes, they marueled, & left hym, & went theyr waye.

* The same daye came to him the Saduces (which saye ỹ there is no resurrecciō) & asked him sayinge: Master, Moses sayde: that * yf a man dye hauynge no chylde, hys brother shulde mary hys wyfe, & reyse vp seed vnto his brother. Ther were with vs seuē brethrē: & the fyrste maried a wyfe, & deceased wout yssue & lefte his wyfe vnto his brother. Lykewyse, the secōde & ỹ thyrd, vnto ỹ seuenth. Laste of all ỹ womā dyed also. Therfore, in ỹ resurreccion, whose wyfe shall she be of the seuē? For they all had her. Jesus answered & sayde vnto thē: ye do erre, not knowinge the scriptures, nor the power of God. For in the resurreccyon, they nether mary, nor are maryed but are as the Angels in heauen.

But as touchyng the resurreccyon of the deed: haue ye not red that which is spokē vnto you of God, whych sayth: * I am the God of Abraham & the God of Isaac, & the God of Jacob? God is not a God of deed, but of lyuynge. And when ỹ people heard this, they were astonnyed at his doctryne.

✠ But whē the pharises had heard, ỹ he had put the Saduces to sylence, they came together, & one of thē which was (a doctour of lawe) asked him a question, tēptinge him, & saying: Master, which is the greate cōmaundemēt in the lawe? Jesus sayd vnto hym: Thou shalt * loue ỹ Lord thy God wyth all thy herte, and wyth all thy soule, & wyth all thy mynde. This is the fyrst & greate cōmaūdemēt. And the seconde is lyke vnto it. * Thou shalt loue thyne neyboure as thy selfe. In these two commaundementes hange all the lawe and the Prophetes.

Whyle the Pharises were gathered together, Jesus asked thē, saying: what thynke ye of Christ? whose sōne is he? They saye vnto him: the sonne of Dauid. He sayde vnto them * how then doeth Dauid in spyrite, call him Lorde sayinge: The Lord sayd vnto my Lorde * syt ỹ on my ryght hande tyll I make thyne enemyes thy foote stoole. If Dauid then, call him Lord, how is he thē his sonne? And no mā was able to answere him anye thing: nether durste eny man (from that daye forth) aske him any moo questions. ✠

* He went awaye once agayne ād prayed, sayige, O my father, yf this cuppe maye not passe awaye from me, excepte I drincke of it, thy will be fulfylled. And he came, and foūde thē aslepe agayne. For their eyes were heuy. And he lefte thē & went agayne, and prayed ỹ thyrd tyme, sayinge ỹ same wordes. Then cōmeth he to his disciples, and sayeth vnto thē: Slepe on now, and take youre rest. Behold, the houre is at hande, & ỹ sonne of mā is betrayed into the hādes of synners. Ryse, E let vs be goinge: beholde, he is at hande, that *Mar.xiiij.c Luke.xxij.c doth betraye me. * Whil he yet spake: lo: Judas one of the nombre of the twelue, came, & with him a greate multitude, wt swoardes ād staues, sent from the chefe prestes and elders of the people. But he ỹ betrayed him gaue thē a token, sayinge: whomsoeuer I kysse, that same is he, hold him fast. And forth with he came to Jesus, and sayde, hayle Master: and kyssed him. And Jesus sayde vnto him: frende, wherfore art thou come? Thē came they, and layed handes on Jesus and toke him.

And beholde, one of them whych were with Jesus, stretched out his hāde, and drue his swoarde, and stroke a seruaūt of the hye

hye prestes, and smote of his eare. Then sayd Jesus vnto him: put vp thy swearde into his sheath.

*For all they that take the swearde, shall perishe with ỹ swearde. Thinkest thou that I cannot now praye to my father, and he shall geue me (euen now) more then twelue Legions of angels? But how then shall the scriptures be fulfylled? for * this must it be. In that same houre sayde Jesus to the multitude: * ye be come out as it were vnto a thefe, with swerdes and staues, for to take me: I sat daylie with you, teachinge in the temple, and ye toke me not. * But all this is done, that the scriptures of the prophetes myght be fulfilled. * Then all the disciples forsoke hi, and fleed. And they toke Jesus, & led him to Cayphas ỹ hye Preste, where the Scribes and ỹ elders were assembled. But Peter folowed him a farre of, vnto the hye prestes palace: & went in, and sate with the seruauntes, to se the ende.

* The chefe Prestes and the elders, and all the councell, sought false witnes agaynst Jesus (for to put hym to deeth) but founde none: yee, when many false witnesses came, yet founde they none. At the last came two false witnesses, and sayde: This felowe sayde. * I am able to destroye ỹ temple of God, & to buylde it agayne in thre dayes. * And the chefe preste arose, & sayd vnto him: answerest thou nothyng? Why do these beare wytnes against the? But Jesus helde hys peace. * And the chefe preste answered and sayde vnto him: I charge the by the lyuynge God, ỹ thou tell vs, whether thou be Christ the sonne of God. Jesus sayeth vnto hym, thou hast sayd. Neuertheselle I saye vnto you * here after shall ye se the sonne of man syttinge on ỹ right hande of power, and comynge in the cloudes of the skye.

* Thẽ ỹ hye preste rẽt his clothes, sayinge: he hath spoken blasphemye. what nede we of eny moo witnesses? Beholde, now ye haue heard de his blasphemy: what thinke ye? They answered, and sayde: he is worthy to dye: * Then dyd they spytt in his face, & buffeted him with fistes. And other smote him on hys face wyth the palme of their handes, sayinge: tell vs thou Christ, who is he that smote the?

Peter sat with oute in the palace. And a dãsell came to him, sayinge: Thou also wast with Jesus of Galile: but he denyed before thẽ all, saying. I woot not what thou sayest. Whẽ he was gone out into the porche, a nother wenche sawe him, and sayde vnto them that were there: This felowe was also with Jesus of Nazareth. And agayne he denyed with an othe: (sayeng.) I do not knowe the mã. And after a whyle, came vnto him they (ỹ stode by) and sayde vnto Peter. * surely ỹ art euẽ one of thẽ, for thy speache bewrayeth the. Then beganne he to curse and to sweare, that he knewe not the mã. And immediatly * the cocke krew. And Peter remembred the worde of Jesu, which sayde vnto him: before the cocke crowe, thou shalt denye me thryse: and he went out, and wepte bytterly.

¶ The .xxvij. Chapter.

¶ Christ is delyuered vnto Pylate. Judas hangeth hym selfe. Christ is crucyfyed amonge theues. He dyeth and is buryed, watchymen kepe the graue.

When ỹ morynge was come, all the chefe prestes ãd the elders of the people helde a coũsayle agaynst Jesus, to put him to deeth, ãd brought him bounde * and delyuered him vnto Poncius Pylate the debite.

Then Judas (which had betrayed him) seyng that he was cõdempned, repented him selfe, and brought agayne the thirtye plates of syluer, to the chefe Prestes ãd elders, sayinge: I haue synned, betrayinge the innocent bloud. And they sayd: what is that to vs? Se thou to that. And he cast downe the syluer plates in the temple, and departed * and went and hanged hym selfe.

And the chefe prestes toke the syluer plates and sayd: it is not lawfull for to put them into the treasure, because it is the pryce of bloud. And they toke counsell: and bought wt them a potters felde to bury straungers in. Wherfore ỹ felde is called (Haceldema, that is) ỹ felde of bloud, vntyll this daye. Then was fulfylled, that which was spoken by Jeremy the Prophet, sayinge: * and they toke thirtye syluer plates, the pryse of him ỹ was valued, whõ they bought of the chyldren of Israel, and gaue them for the potters felde, as the Lorde apoynted me. * Jesus stode before the debite, and the debite asked him, sayinge: art thou the kyng of the Jewes? Jesus sayeth vnto him: Thou sayest. And when he was accused of the chefe prestes & elders, he answered nothyng. Then sayeth Pilate vnto him: hearest thou not, how many witnesses they laye agaynst the? * and he answered him to neuer a worde: in so moch that the debyte marueyled greatlye.

* At that feast, the debite was wonte to delyuer vnto the people a presoner, whom they wold desier. He had then a notable presoner, called Barrabas. Therfore, when they were gathered together, Pilate sayd: * whether wil ye that I geue loosse vnto you? Barrabas, or Jesus, whych is called Chryst? For he knewe ỹ for enuie they had delyuered him.

When

When he was set downe to geue iudgement, his wyfe sent vnto him sayinge: haue ỹ nothĩge to do with ỹ iust mã. For I haue suffered many thinges this daye in my slepe because of him. * But the chefe prestes and the elders persuaded the people, ỹ they shulde aske Barrabas, ãd destroye Jesus. The debite answered, and sayde vnto thẽ: whether of the twayne, will ye, that I let loosse vnto you? They sayd: * Barrabas. Pilate sayde vnto them: * what shall I do then with Jesus whych is called Christ? They all sayd vnto him: let hi be crucifyed. The debite sayde: what euyll hath he done? But they cryed the more, sayinge: let him be crucifyed. When Pilate sawe ỹ he coulde preuayle nothinge, but that more busynes was made, he toke water, and washed hys handes before the people, sayinge: I am innocẽt of the bloud of this iust person, ye shall se. Then answered all the people, and sayd * his bloud be on vs, and on oure childzen. * Then let he Barrabas loose vnto them, and scourged Jesus, and delyuered him to be crucifyed.

* Then the soudeours of the debite toke Jesus in the comen hall, and gathered vnto him al the company. And they stripped him, and put on him a purpill robe, and platted a croune of thornes and put vpon his heed, ãd a rede in his ryght hande: and bowed ỹ knee before him: & mocked hi, saying: hayle, kyng of the Jewes: and whan they had spytt vpõ him, they toke the rede, and smote him on the heed.

And after that they had mocked him, they toke the roabe of him agayne, and put hys awne rayment on him, & led him awaye to crucifye him. And as they came out, * they founde a mã of Cyren (named Simon) him they cõpelled to beare his crosse. * And they came vnto the place which is called Golgotha (ỹ is to saye, a place of deed mẽs sculles) and gaue hym veneger to drincke myngled with gall. And when he had tasted therof, he wolde not drincke.

When they had crucifyed him, they parted his garmentes, & dyd cast lottes: ỹ it myght be fulfylled which was spoken by the Prophet. * They departed my garmẽtes amõge them: and vpon my vesture dyd they cast lottes. And they sate and watched him there, and * set vp ouer his heed the cause of hys deeth, wrytten: This is Jesus the kynge of the Jewes. * Then were there two theues crucifyed with him, one on the ryght hande, and another on the lyfte.

* They that passed by, reuyled him, waggynge their heades, and sayinge: thou that destroydest the temple of God and dyddest bylde it in thre dayes, saue thy selfe * If thou be the sonne of God, come downe from the crosse. Like wyse also ỹ hye prestes, mockig him with ỹ Scribes and elders sayde: he saued other, him selfe can he not saue. If he be ỹ kynge of Israel: let him now come doune frõ the crosse, & we will beleue him. * He trusted in God, let him delyuer him now, yf he wyll haue him: for he sayde, I am ỹ sonne of God. The theues also, which were crucifyed with him, cast the same in his tethe.

* Frõ ỹ fyrste houre was there derckenes ouer all the lande vnto the nynth houre. And about the nynth houre, Jesus cryed, wyth a loude voyce, sayinge: Eli, Eli lama sabathany. That is to saye: * my God, my God, why hast thou forsaken me? Some of them ỹ stode there, whẽ they herde ỹ, sayde: This man calleth for Helias. And streyght waye * one of them ranne, and toke a sponge, and whan he had fylled it full of veneger, he put it on a rede, and gaue him to drincke. Other sayde, let be: let vs se whether Helias will come, & delyuer hi. Jesus, whan he had cried agayne wt a loude voyce, yelded vp ỹ goost.

And beholde, ỹ * vayle of the temple dyd rent in to two partes, from the toppe to the bottome, and the earth dyd quake, and the stones rent and graues dyd open: and many bodyes of saynctes which slept, arose, & went out of the graues after his resurrecyon, and came in to the holy cytie, and appeared vnto many. * When the Centurion and they that were with him watchinge Jesus, sawe the erth quake, and those thinges which happened, they feared greatly, sayig: Trulye, this was the sonne of God.

* And many wemen were there (beholdinge hym a farre of) whych folowed Jesus frõ Galile, mynistringe vnto him. Amonge which was Mary Magdalen, and Mary ỹ mother of James and Joses, and the mother of zebedes chyldren. When ỹ euen was come * there came a riche man of Aramathia named Joseph, which also was Jesus disciple. He went to Pilate and begged the body of Jesus. Then Pilate commaunded the bodye to be delyuered. And whan Joseph had taken the body, he wrapped it in a cleane lynnen cloth, and layed it in hys newe tombe, whych he had hewen out, euen in the rocke, and rolled a greate stone to the doze of the sepulcre & departed. And there was * Mary Magdalene and the other Mary syttynge ouer agaynste the sepulcre. The nexte daye that folowed, the daye of preparinge, the hye prestes and Pharises came together vnto Pilate, sayeng: Syr, we remembre, that this deceauer sayde whyle he was yet alyue. * After thre dayes I wyll aryse agayne. Cõmaunde therfore that the sepulcre be made sure vntyll the thyrd daye, lest hys disciples come, & steale him awaye and saye vnto the people: he is rysen from the deed, & the last errour shalbe worse then the fyrst. ## ¶ The fyrst Chapter.

¶ The conception and byrth of John the Baptist. The conception of Christe. The thankfull songes of Mary and zachary.

THere was in ỹ dayes of Herode the kynge of Jurie, a certayne Preste named zacharias * of the course of Abia. And his wyfe was of the daughters of Aaron: and her name was Elizabeth: they were both ryghteous before God, and walked in all the lawes and ordynaunces of the Lorde, that no mã coulde fynde fawte with them. And they had no chylde, because that Elizabeth was barren, and they booth were now well stricken in age.

*Para.xxiii

And it came to passe, ỹ whã zachary executed the Preastes office before God, as hys course came (accordyng to the custome of the preestes office) hys lot fell to burne incence.

And he * went into the tẽple of the Lorde, & the whoale multitude of ỹ people were without in prayer, whill the incẽse was a burninge. And ther appeared vnto him an Angell of the Lorde, standynge on the ryght syde of the aultare of incense. And when zacharias sawe him, he was abashed, & feare cãme on him.

B But the Angell sayde vnto him: feare not zachary, for thy prayer is hearde. And thy wyfe Elizabeth shall beare the a sonne, and thou shalt call his name John, ād thou shalt haue ioye and gladnes, and many shall reioyce at his byrth. For he shalbe greate in the syght of the Lorde, and shall nether drincke wyne ner stronge drincke. And he shalbe fylled with the holy goost, euen frõ his mothers wombe: and many of the chyldren of Israel shall tourne to their Lord God. And he shall go before hym in the spryte & power of * Helias ☞ to tourne the hertes of the fathers to the childrẽ, and the vnbeleuers to the wysdome of the iuste men, to make redye a perfecte people for the Lorde.

And zacharias sayde vnto the angell: by what token shall I knowe this? For * I am olde, and my wyfe well stricken in yeres.

*Gen xvii.c and xviii.b.

And ỹ angell answered, and sayd vnto him. I am Gabriel, that stande in the presens of God, and am sent to speake vnto the: and to shewe the these glad tydinges. And beholde it shall come to passe, that thou shalt be domme, ād not be able to speake, vntill the daye that these thinges be performed, because thou beleuedst not my wordes, which shalbe fulfylled in their season.

And the people wayted for zacharias, ād merueyled that he taryed in the temple. And when he came out, he coulde not speke vnto them. And they perceaued, that he had sene a vysyon in the temple. And he beckened vnto them, and remayned speachlesse.

C ✠ And it fortuned, that as sone as the dayes of his office were out, he departed into his awne house. And after those dayes, his wyfe Elizabeth conceaued, & hid her selfe fyue monethes, sayinge: Thys wyse hath God dealte with me, in the dayes wherin he hath loked on me, to take from me my rebuke amonge men. And in the fyrst moneth the angell Gabriel was sent from God vnto a cytie of Galile, named Nazareth, to a virgin spoused to a man, whose name was Joseph, of the house of Dauid, ād the virgins name was Mary. And the angell went in vnto her, and sayde. Hayle full of grace, the Lorde is with the: blessed art thou amonge wemen.

When she sawe him, she was abashed at his sayinge: and cast in her mynde, what maner of salutacion that shulde be. And the angell sayde vnto her: feare not Mary: for thou hast foũde grace with God. Behold, * thou shalt conceaue in thy wombe, & beare a sonne, & * shalt call his name Jesus. He shalbe greate, & shalbe called the sonne of the hyest. And the Lorde God shall geue vnto him the seate of his father Dauid ād * he shall rayne ouer the house of Jacob for euer, and ‡ of his kyngdome there shalbe none ende.

Then sayde Mary vnto the angell: How shall this be, seynge I knowe not a mã? And the angell answered, & sayde vnto her. The holy goost shall come vpon ỹ, and the power of the hyest shall ouer shadowe the. Therfore also that holy thynge which shalbe borne, shalbe called the sonne of God. And beholde, thy colyn Elizabeth, she hath also cõceaued a sõne in her age. And this is her fyrst moneth, which was called barrẽ: for * with God shall nothinge be vnpossible. And Mary sayde: beholde the hande mayden of ỹ Lorde, be it vnto me accordyng to thy worde, ✠ And the angell departed from her.

✠ And Mary arose in those dayes, & wẽt into the mountayns with haste ☞ into the cytie of Jewrie, and entred into the house of zachary, and saluted Elizabeth. And it fortuned, that whan Elizabeth heard the salutacyon of Mary, the babe sprãge in her wombe. And Elizabeth was fylled with the holy ghost, & cried with a loude voyce, and sayde: Blessed art thou among wemen, and blessed is the frute of thy wombe. And whence happeneth this to me, that ỹ mother of my Lorde shulde come to me? For lo, as sone as the voyce of thy salutacio sounded in myne eares, the babe sprange in my wombe for ioye. And blessed art thou that hast beleued: for those thinges shalbe performed, which were tolde the from the Lorde. And Mary sayde.

But he that heareth and doth not, is lyke a man that without foundacyō bylt an house vpon the earth, against which ẏ flud dyd beat: and it fell immediatly. And the fal of that house was greate.

¶ The. vii. Chapter.

¶ He healeth the captaynes seruaunt, rayseth the wedowes sonne, enfourmeth the dyscyples whom John baptyst sent vnto hym, cōmendeth John: reproueth the Jewes and eateth wyth the Pharyse. The woman washeth hys fete wyth her teares, and he forgeueth her her synnes.

A * Mat.viii.a Joh.iiii.f

When he had ended all hys saienges in the audiēce of ẏ people, * he entred into Capernaum. And a certē Centurions seruaunt which was deare vnto hym laye sycke, and was in parell of death. And whan he heard of Jesu, he sent vnto him the elders of the Jewes, besechīge him that he wold come, & heale his seruaūte. And whā they came to Jesus, they besought hi instātly, saying: He is worthy that thou shuldest do this for hym. For he loueth oure nacion, and hath buylt vs a synagoge. And Jesus went with them.

25 And whan he was now, not farre frō the house, the Centurion sent frendes to hym, *Mat.viii.a saynge vnto hym: * Lorde, trouble not thy self: for I am not worthy: that thou shuldest enter vnder my roffe. Wherfore I thought not my self worthy to come vnto ẏ: but saye thou the word, & my seruaunt shalbe whole. For I also am a man set vnder power, and haue vnder me soudiers, ād I saye vnto one go, and he goeth, & to another, come, & he cometh: and to my seruaunt, do this, & he doth it. When Jesus heard thys, he meruayled at him, and turned hym about, and sayde to the people that folowed him: I saye vnto you, I haue not founde so great faith, no, not in Israel. And they that were sent, turned backe home agayne and founde the seruaūt whole that had bene sycke.

✠ And it fortuned after this, ẏ he went into a cytie which is called Naim, & many of C his disciples went with him, and moch people. When he came nye to the gate of the cytie: behold, ther was a deed man caryed out, which was the onely sonne of his mother, & she was a wedowe, & moch people of the cytie was with her. And when the Lord sawe her, he had compassion on her, and sayde vnto her: wepe not. And he came nye, & touched the coffyn: and they that bare him stode styl. And he sayde: Yonge man, I saye vnto the, aryse. And he that was deed, sat vp, & began *1.Re.xvii.d 1.Esd.iii.f Act.ix.f.xx.c to speake. * And he delyuered him to his mother. And ther came a feare on them al. And they gaue the glorȳ vnto God, sayinge: * A great prophete is rysen vp amōg vs, & God hath visited his people. ✠ ✠ And thys rumor of him went forth throughout al Jury, and thorow out all the regions which lye rounde about. * John.vii. And.xx.b

And the disciples of John shewed him of all these thinges. * And John called vnto hi two of his disciples, & sent thē to Jesus, saying: Art thou he that shuld come: or shall we looke for another? When the men were come vnto him, they sayde: John baptiste sent vs vnto the, saying: Art thou he ẏ shuldē come? or shall we wayte for another? And in that same houre he cured many of their infyrmites and plages, and of euyll spretes, and vnto many ẏ were blynd he gaue sight. And he answered, & sayd vnto them: Go your waye and bring worde agayne to John, what thīges ye haue sene & heard, how ẏ * the blynde se, the halt go, the lepers are clēsed, the deaff heare, the dead ryse agayne: to the poore is ẏ glad tydinges preached, ād happy is he that is not offended at me. * Mat.xi.d * Esa.xxxv.a and.lxi.a

* And whē the messengers of John were departed, he began to speake vnto ẏ people concerninge John. What went ye out into ẏ wildernes for to se? a rede shakē w̄ the wind? But what went ye out for to se? A man clothed in soft raymēt? Behold, they which are gorgeously apparelled, and lyue delicatly, are in kynges courtes. But what went ye forth to se? A prophete? Yee, I saye to you, & more then a prophet. This is he, of whom it is writen: * Beholde, I sende ☞ myne angell before thy face which shall prepare thy waye before ẏ. For I saye vnto you, amōge wemēs childrē, is ther not a greater prophete then John baptiste. Neuertheles, he that is lesse, i ẏ kigdom of God is greater thē he. ✠ * Mat.xi.a Mar.i.b Mala.iii.a

And all the people, and the publicās that heard him, ☞ iustified God, and were baptised with the baptyme of John. But the pharises and lawers despised the councell of God agaynst them selues, and were not baptised of hym. ☞

And the Lorde sayd: * Wherunto shall I lyken the men of this generacion: and what thing are they like? They are like vnto children syttyng in the market place, & crycg one to another, and saying: We haue pyped vnto you, & ye haue not daūsed: we haue mourned to you, and ye haue not wepte. For John baptist came, nether * eatyng bread, ner drinkynge wyne, and ye saye: he hath the deuyll. And ☞ wysdom is iustifyed of all her children. ✠ * mat.xi.b * Mat.xi.c

pharises house, and sat downe to meate. *mat.xxvi.a Mar.xiii.a Joh.xii.a * And behold a woman in that cytie (which was a synner) as sone as she knewe that Jesus sat at meat in the pharises house, she brought an alablaster boxe of oyntment, & stode at his fete behinde him weppyng, & begāne to washe hys fete w̄ teares, and dyd wype thē with ẏ heares of her head, & kyssed his fete, & anoynted them with the oyntment.

When the pharise (which had biddē him) sawe, he spake within hym selfe, sayinge: If thys man were a prophete, he wolde surely knowe who, ād what maner of womā thys is that touched hym, for she is a synner. And Jesus answered, and sayd vnto him: Simō, I haue some what to saye vnto the. And he sayd: master, saye on. There was a certayne lender which had two detters, the one ought fyue hūdred pence, and the other fyfty. Whē they had nothynge to paye, he forgaue them both. Tell me therfore, which of them wyll loue hym most? Simon answered and sayd: I suppose that he to whom he forgaue most. And he sayde vnto hym: Thou hast truly iudged.

G And he turned to the woman, & sayd vnto Simon: Seest thou this womā. I entred into thy house, thou gauest me no water for my fete: but she hath welshed my fete with teares, and wyped them with the heares of her head. Thou gauest me no kysse: but she, sence the tyme I came in, hath not ceased to kysse my fete. Myne head w̄ oyle thou didest not anoynte: but she hath anoynted my fete with oyntment. Wherfore, I saye vnto the: many synnes are forgeuen her, for she loued moch. To whom lesse is forgeuen, the same doeth lesse loue. And he sayde vnto her: thy synnes are forgeuen the. ## ¶ The. viij. Chapter.

¶ Christ with hys apostles goeth frō towne to towne and preacheth, sheweth the parable of the sede, telleth who ys hys mother, and hys brother, stylleth the ragyng of the see: delyuereth the possessed, & disyueth the deuyls into the heerd of swyne: helpeth the sycke woman, and Jayrus daughter.

A AND it fortuned afterwarde, that he hym selfe also went thorough oute cyties and townes: preachinge, and shewynge the kyngdome of God, *Luk.xviij.d and the twelue with hym. And also * certayne women, which were healed of euell spretes, and infirmytes. Mary which is called Magdalen (oute of whom went seuen deuyls) and Joanna the wyfe of Chusa. Herodes stewarde, and Susanna, and many other, which mynystred vnto hym of theyr substaunce. ✠ When moch people were gathered together, ād were come to him out of all cytes, he spake by a similytude. * The sower went oute to sowe hys seede: and as he sowed, some fell by the waye syde, & it was troden downe, and the foules of the ayre deuoured it vp. And some fell on stone, and as sone as it was sprōge vp, it withred awaye because it lacked moystnes. And some fell amonge thornes, and the thornes sprange vp with it, and choked it. And some fel on good grounde, and sprange vp, and bare frute, an hundred folde. And as he sayd these thinges, 25 he cryed: He that hath eares to heare, let hym heare. * Mat.xiii.b Mar.iv.a

* And his disciples asked hym sayenge: what maner of similytude is thys? And he sayd: vnto you is it geuē to knowe the secretes of the kingdome of God: but to other by pazables, ẏ whē they se, they shuld not se: & whē they heare, they shuld not vnderstād. * Esa.vi.c Mat.xiii.b Marc.iii.d Joh.xii.f Actes.xxviii.f Roma.xi.b ‡ Mat.xiii.c Mar.iii.b

The parable is this. * The seed is ẏ worde of God. Those that are besyde the waye, are they that heare, then cōmeth the deuyll, and taketh awaye the worde out of their hertes, lest they shulde beleue and be saued. They on the stones, are they which when they heare, receaue the word with ioye, and these haue no rotes: which for a whyle beleue, and in tyme of temptacyon go awaye. And that which fell amonge thornes, are they which whan they haue heard, go forth, and are choked with cares and ryches, and voluptcous lyuinge, and bringe forth no frute. That which fell in the good grounde, are they, which with a pure and good herte heare the worde, and kepe it, and bringe forth frute thorow pacyence. ✠

C * No man, whan he lyghteth a candell, coureth it with a vessel, or putteth it vnder a table, but setteth it on a candelsticke, that they which enter in, maye se the light. * Nothīg is in secret, ẏ shal not come abrode. Nether any thynge hydd, that shall not be knowen, and come to lyghte. Take hede therfore, howe ye heare. For whosoeuer hath, to hym shalbe geuen: * And whosoeuer hath not, from him shalbe taken: euen that same which he supposeth that he hath. * Mat.v.b Mar.iii.b Luke.xi.e * mat.x.c mar.iv.c Luke.viii.a

* Then came to him his mother & his brethren, and coulde not come at him for preasse And it was tolde hym, and sayde: Thy mother and thy brethren stande without, and wold se the. He answered and said vnto thē: my mother and my brethren are these, which heare the worde of God, and doit. * Mat.xii.b And.xxv.c mar.iii.c Luke.xxi.d ‡ Mat.xii.d mar. iii.d

✠ And it chaunced on a certayne daye, ẏ he went into a shyp, and his disciples also, & he sayde vnto them: Let vs go ouer vnto the other side of the lake. And they lauēched forth But as they sayled, he fell a slepe * and there arose a storme of wynde in the lake, & they were fylled w̄ water, and were in icopardy. * Mat.viii.c Mar.iii.d

And they came to hym, and awoke hym saying: Master master, we are loost. Then he arose, and rebuked the wynde and the tempest of water, and they ceased, and it waxed calme. And he sayde vnto them: where is youre fayth? They feared, and wondred amonge them selues, saying: what (thynke ye) is this? for he commaundeth both the windes & water, and they obey hym? ✠ * And they sayled vnto the regiō of the Gederenites, which is ouer agaynst Galile. * Mat.viij.d mar.v.a

And whan he went out to land, ther met him out of the cytie a certayne man, which had a deuyll longe tyme, and ware no clothes, nether abode in eny house: but in graues. When he sawe Jesus & had cryed, he fell downe before him, & with a loude voyce sayde: * What haue I to do with the Jesus, thou sone of the God moost hyest? I beseche the tormēt me not: for he commaunded the foule spyrite to come oute of the man. For ofte tymes he had caught hym, and he was bounde with chaynes, and kepte with fetters: and he brake the bondes, and was caryed of the fende into wyldernes. * mat.viij.d mar.v.a

And Jesus asked him saieng: What is thy name? And he sayde: Legion, because many deuyls were entred into hym. And they besought hym that he wolde not commaunde them, to go out into the depe. And there was there, an heard of many swyne, feding on an hyll: and they besought him, that he wold suffre them to enter into them. And he suffred them. Then went the deuels out of the man, & entred into the swyne. And the heard rāne heedlyng with violēce into the lake, and were choked. When the herdmē sawe what had chaunsed, they fled, and tolde it in the cytie & in the villages.

And they came out to se what was done: and came to Jesus, & founde the man (out of whom the deuyls were departed) sittyng at the fete of Jesus: clothed, & in his right mynde, and they were afrayed. They also which sawe it, tolde them by what meanes he (that was possessed of the deuyl) was healed. And all ỹ multitude of the Gederenites, besought him, that he wold departe from thē: for they were taken with great feare. * And he gate him vp into the shyp, and returned backe agayne. Then the man (out of whom the deuyls were departed) besought hym that he myght be with hym. But Jesus sent him awaye, sayinge: Go home agayne to thyne awne house, and shewe what thinges soeuer God hath done for ỹ. And he wēt his waye, and preached thorow out all the cytie, what thinges soeuer Jesus had done vnto him. * Mat.viij.d mar.v.b

And it fortuned that whē Jesus was come agayne, the people receaued hi. For they all wayted for him. * And beholde, there came a man named Jairus (& he was a ruler of the synagoge) & he fell downe at Jesus fete prayng him, ỹ he wold come into his house, for he had but one daughter onely, vpō a.xij. yeare of age, and she laye a dying. But as he went, the people thronged hym. * Mat.ix.d mar.v.a

* And a woman, hauing an issue of bloud xij. yeres (which had spent all her substaunce vpon phisitions, nether coulde be holpen of eny) came behynd him, & touched the hem of his rayment: & immediatly her issue of bloud staunched. And Jesus sayd: who is it ỹ touched me? Whē euery mā denyed, Peter (and they ỹ were wt hym) sayd: Master, the people thrust the & vexe the, & sayest thou who touched me? And Jesus sayd: Some body hath touched me: For I perceaue, that vertue is gone out of me. When the woman sawe that she was not hyd, she came trymblig, and fell at hys fete, and tolde hym before all the people, for what cause she had touched him, and how she was healed immediatly. And he sayd vnto her: Daughter, be of good comforte. * Thy fayth hath saued the, go in peace. * mat.ix.d mar.v.d

Whyle he yet spake, ther came one frō the rulers of the synagoges house, which sayd to hym: thy daughter is deed, de lease not ỹ Master. But when Jesus hearde that worde, he answered the father of the damosell. * Feare not, beleue onely, & she shalbe made whole. And when he came to the house, he suffred no man to go in with hym, saue Peter, James, and John, and the father and the mother of the maydē. Euery body weept, and sorowed for her. And he said: Wepe not. The damosel is not deed, * but slepeth. And they laught hym to scorne, knowyng that she was deed. And he thrust them all out, & caught her by the hand, and cryed, saying: Mayde, arise. And her spyrite came agayne, and she rose straight waye. And he commaunded to geue her meat. And the father & the mother of her were astonyed. But he warned them, ỹ they shuld tell no man what was done. * Mat.ix.d Mar.v.d * Mat.ix.d Mar.v.d * John.x.d

¶ * Wo vnto the Chorazin: wo vnto the Bethsaida. For yf the miracles had bene done in Tyre and Sidon, which haue bene done i you, they had (a greate whyle ago) repented of their synnes, syttyng in heercloth and ashes. Neuertheles, it shalbe easier for Tyre and Sidon, at the iudgement, then for you. And thou Capernaum (which art exalted to heauen) shalt be thrust downe to hell. * He yt heareth you, heareth me: and he that despyseth you, despyseth me: and he that despyseth me, despyseth him that sent me.

And the .lxx. turned agayne with ioye, sayīg: Lorde, euen the very deuels are subdued to vs thorow thy name. And he sayd vnto them: * I sawe Satan (as it had bene lightening) falling downe from heauen. ‡ Behold, I geue vnto you power, to treade on serpentes, and scorpions, and ouer all maner power of the enemy, and nothing shall hurte you. Neuertheles, in this reioyse not, yt the spyrites are subdued vnto you: but reioyse, that * youre names are wryten in heauen.

That same houre reioysed Jesus in o% (the holy) ghost, and sayd: I thanke the, O father. * Lorde of heauen and earth, that thou hast hyd these thinges from the wyse and prudēt, and hast opened them vnto babes. Euen so father, for so pleased it the. * All thinges are geuen me of my father. ‡ No man knoweth who the sonne is, but the father: āde who the father is, but the sonne, & he to whō ye sonne wyll shewe hym.

And he turned to his disciples, and sayde secretly: ✠ * Happy are the eyes, which se yt thinges that ye se. For I tell you, that many prophetes kynges haue desired to se those thinges which ye se, and haue not sene thē: and to heare those thynges which ye heare, and haue not hearde them.

¶ And behold a certayne lawyer stode vp, & tempted him, saying. * Master, what shall I do, to inheret eternall lyfe? He sayde vnto him: What is written in the lawe? how redest thou? And he answered āde sayde: ‡ loue the Lorde thy God, with all thy hert, & with all thy soule, & with all thy strength, & with all thy mynde: and thy neyghbour as thy selfe. And he sayde vnto him: Thou hast āswered right. This do, and thou shalt lyue. But he wyllinge to iustifie him selfe, sayde vnto Jesus: And who is my neyghbour?

Jesus answered, & sayde, A certayne man descended from Hierusalem to Hierico, & fell amōg theues, which robbed him of his rayment & wounded him, āde departed, leuynge him halfe deed. And it chaūced, that ther came downe a certayne Preste yt same waye, & whē he sawe hī, he passed by. And lyke wyse a Leuite, whē he wēt nye to yt place, came āde loked on hī, & passed by. But a certayne Samaritane, as he iorneyed, came vnto hym: āde when he sawe him, he had compassion on him & wēt to, and boūde vp his woundes, & poured in oyle & wyne, and set him on his awne beaste, and brought him to a cōmen ynne, āde made prouision for him. And on the morow, whē he departed, he toke out .ij. pēce, & gaue thē to yt host, & sayd vnto hī. Take cure of hī & whatsoeuer yt spendest moare, whē I come agayne I will recōpence the. Which now of these thre thynkest yt, was neyghbour vnto him yt fell among the theues? And he sayd: he that shewed mercy on him. Then sayde Jesus vnto him: Go, and do thou lyke wyse. ✠

¶ It fortuned that as they went, he entred into a certayne towne. And a certayne womā named Martha receaued him into her house. And this woman had a syster called Mary, which also sate at Jesus fete, & heard his worde. But Martha was cōbred aboute moch seruynge, & stode & sayde: Lorde, doest yt not care, that my syster hath left me to serue alone? Byd her therfore, yt she helpe me. And Jesus answered, & sayde vnto her: Martha, Martha, thou art carefull, & troubled about many thinges: verely ☞ one is nedefull. Mary hath chosen the good parte, which shall not be taken away from her. ✠

¶ The. xj. Chapter.

¶ He teacheth his disciples to praye, dryueth out a deuyll, & rebuketh the blasphemous Pharises. They requyre synges & tokens. He exclaymeth with the Pharisee, & reproueth the hypocrysie of the Pharises, scribes and hypocrytes.

AND it fortuned as he was prayinge in a certayne place: whē he ceased, one of his disciples sayde vnto hym: Lorde, teache vs to praye, as John also taught hys disciples. And he sayde vnto them: when ye praye, saye. * O oure father which art in heauen, halowed be thy name. Thy kyngdome come. Thy will be fulfilled, euen in erth also as it is in heauen. Oure dayly breed geue vs this daye. And forgeue vs our synnes: For euen we forgeue euery man that treapaseth vs. And Leade vs not into temptacion But deliuer vs from euyll.

And he sayd vnto them: ✠ yf any of you shall haue a frend, & shall go to him at mydnight, and saye vnto him, frende: lende me thre loaues, for a frende of myne is come out of the waye to me, and I haue nothynge to set before him, and he within answere, and saye: trouble me not, the dore is now shut, and my chyldren are with me in the chamber, I cannot ryse and geue the. I saye vnto you, though he wyll not arise and geue him, because he is his frēde: yet because of his importunite he will rise, āde geue him as many as he nedeth. And I saye vnto you: * aske, and it shalbe geuen you. Seke, and ye shall fynde: knocke, āde it shalbe opened vnto you. For ☞ euery one yt asketh, receaueth: and he that seketh, fyndeth: & to him yt knocketh, shall it be opened. Yf yt sonne shall aske bread of eny of you that is a father, wyll he geue him a stone? Or yf he aske fishe, wyll he for fyshe geue him a serpent? Or yf he aske an egge, will he offer him a scorpion? Yf ye then beyng euyll, can geue good giftes vnto youre children, how moch moare shall your father of heauen geue the holy spyrite to them, that desyre it of him? ✠

✠ * And he was castinge out a deuyll, and the same was domme. And whē he had cast out the deuill, the dōme spake, & the people wondred. But some of them sayde: * he casteth out deuyls thorowe Beelzebub the chefe of the deuyls. And other tempted him and requyred of him a signe from heauen.

But he knowing their thoughtes, sayd vnto them: Euery kyngdome deuided agaynst it selfe, is desolate: and one house doth fall vpon another. Yf Satan also, be deuyded agaynst him selfe, how shall his kyngdome endure? Because ye saye, that I cast out deuyls thorow Beelzebub. If I, by the helpe of Beelzebub cast out deuyls, by whose helpe do youre children cast them out. Therfore shall they be your iudges. But yf I, with the fynger of God cast out deuyls, no doute the kyngdome of God is come vpon you.

* When a stronge man armed watcheth his house: the thinges that he possesseth are in peace. But when a stronger then he cōmeth vpon him, and ouercommeth him, he taketh from him all his harnes (wherin he trusted) āde deuideth his goodes. He that is not with me, is against me. And he that gathereth not with me, scattereth abrode.

*Mar.i.f.i.d. * When the vncleane spyryte is gone out of a man, he walketh thrugh drie places, sekynge reest. And when he fyndeth none, he sayeth: I will returne agayne vnto my houses, whence I came out. And whē he cōmeth, he fyndeth it swept and garnisshed. Then goeth he and taketh to him seuen other spyrytes worse then him selfe: and they enter in, & dwell there. And the ende of that mā, is worse then the begynnynge.

And it forteuned that as he spake these thynges, a certayne woman of the company lyfte vp her voyce, and sayd vnto him. Happy is the wombe that bare the, and the pappes which gaue the sucke. But he sayde: Yee, happy are they that heare the worde of God and kepe it. ✠

When the people were gathered thicke together, he begā to saye. This is an euyll nacion. * they seke a sygne, and ther shall no sygne be geuē them, but the sygne of Jonas the prophet. For as ǂ Jonas was a sygne to the Ninuytes, so shall also the sonne of man be to thys nacion. * The quene of the south shall ryse at the iudgement, with the men of this nacion, and condempne them: for she came from the vttemost partes of the erth, to heare the wisdome of Salomon. And beholde a greater then Salomon is here. The mē of Ninine shall ryse at the iudgement with this nacyon: and shall condempne them: for they were brought to repentaūce by ỹ preachynge of Jonas. And beholde, a greater then Jonas is here.

Loose him, and bringe hym hyther. And yf eny mā aske you, why do ye loose him? thus shall ye saye vnto hym: the Lorde hath nede therof.

They that were sent, went their waye, & founde, euen as he had sayd vnto them. And as they were a lossynge the colte, the owners therof sayd vnto them, why loose ye the colte? And they sayde: for the Lorde hath nede of hym. And they brought him to Iesus, and cast their raymēt on the colte, and sett Iesus theron. And as he went, they spredde theyr clothes in the waye.

And when he was now come nye to hye goyng downe of the mounte Olyuete, the whole multitude of the disciples began to reioyce, & to prayse God with a loude voyce, for all the myracles that they had sene, sayinge: * blessed be the kynge that commeth in the name of the Lorde: peace in heauen, and glory in the hyest: And some of ỹ Pharyses of the company sayd vnto hym: Master, rebuke the disciples. ¶ The.xx. Chapter. ✠

¶ They aske Christ one question, and he asketh them another. The parable of the vyneyarde. Of tribute to be geuen vnto Cesar, & how Christ stoppeth the mouthes of the Saduces.

And it fortuned in one of those dayes (as he taught the people in the tēple and preached the gospell) the hye Prestes and the Scribes came together wyth the elders, & spake vnto him sayinge: * Tell vs: by what auctorite doest thou these thynges? Ether who is he, ỹ gaue the thys auctorite? Iesus answered & sayd vnto thē: I also will aske you one thyng, & answer me. The baptyme of Iohn: was it frō heauen or of men? And they thought wyth in them selues sayinge: yf we saye frō heauen, he will saye: why then beleued ye hym not? But & yf we saye: of men, all ỹ people wyll stone vs. For they be perswaded, that Iohn is a Prophete. And they answered, that they coulde not tell whence it was. And Iesus sayd vnto them: nether tell I you, by what auctorite I do these thynges. ✠

Then begāne he to put forth to the people this parable: * A certayne man planted a vyneyarde, and let it forth to husbandmen, and went hym selfe into a straunge countre for a greate season. And when the tyme was come, he sent a seruaunt to the husbandmen, that they shulde geue hym of the frute of the vineyarde. And they bet hym, and sent hym awaye emptye. And agayne, he sent yet another seruaunt. And hym they dyd beat, and entreated hym shamefully, and sent hym awaye emptye. Agayne, he sent the thyrde also, and hym they wouded, and cast hym out. Then sayd the Lord of the vineyarde: what shall I do? * I wyll sende my deare sonne: peraduēture they will stande in awe of him, when they se hym.

But when ỹ husbandmen sawe hym, they thought within them selues, sayinge: this is the heyre, * come, let vs kyll hym, that the enheritaunce maye be oures. And they cast hi out of ỹ vineyarde, & kylled hi. What shall the Lord of ỹ vineyarde therfore do vnto thē? He shall come, & destroye these husbandmen, & shall let out hys vineyarde to other. When they heard thys, they sayde: God forbyd.

And he beheldē them, and sayde: what is thys then thys then that is wrytten: * the stone that the buylders refused, the same is become the heed of the cozner? Whosoeuer doth stomble vpon ỹ stone, shalbe broken: but on whosoeuer it falleth, it wyll grynde him to powder. And the hye prestes and the scrybes the same houre wēt about to laye handes on hym, * and they feared the people. For they perceaued that he had spoken thys symilitude agaynst them.

And they watched hym, & sent forth spies, which shuld fayne thē selues ryghteous mē, * to take him in hys wordes, and to delyuer him vnto ỹ power & auctozite of the debyte. And they asked hym, sayīg: Master, we know we that thou sayest and teachest ryght, nether consyderest ỹ the outward appearaunce of eny man, but teachest the waye of God truly. Is it lawfull for vs to geue tribute vnto Cesar, or nor? He perceaued they yr craftines, and sayde vnto them: * why tempt ye me? Shewe me a peny. Whose ymage & superscripciō hath it? They answered and sayde: Cesars. And he sayde vnto thē: geue then vnto Cesar, the thynges whych belonge vnto Cesar: & to God the thynges that pertayne vnto God. And they coulde not reprooue his sayinge before the people: & they maruayled at his answer, and held their peace.

Then * came to hym certayne of the Saduces, † which denye that ther is eny resurrection. And they asked him sayinge: * Master, Moses wrote vnto vs, yf eny mannes brother dye hauīg a wyfe, & he dye without chyldren, that then hys brother shulde take hys wyfe, and rayse vp seede vnto hys brother. Ther were therfore seuen brethren, and the fyrste toke a wyfe, & dyed without chyldren. And the seconde toke her, and he dyed chyldelesse. And the thyrde toke her: and in lykewise the residue of the seuen, and left no chyldren behynde them, and dyed. Last of all the womā dyed also. Now in the resurrection, whose wyfe of them shall she be? For seuen had her to wyfe.

Iesus answered and sayd vnto them. The chyldren of this worlde mary wyues, ād are maryed: but they whych shalbe counted worthy of that worlde and the resurrection from the deed, do not mary wyues, nether are maryed, nor yet can dye eny more, For they are equall vnto the angels, and are * the sonnes of God, in as moch as they are chyldren of ỹ resurrecciō. And that the deed shall ryse agayne: Moses also sheweth besides the bushe, when he calleth: † the Lord, the God of Abraham, and the God of Isaac, and the God of Jacob. For he is not a God of deed, but of lyuynge. For all lyue vnto him. Then certayne of the Pharises answered, annd sayd: Master, thou hast wel sayd. And after that durst they not aske him eny question at all.

And he sayde vnto them: * how saye they that Christ is Dauids sonne? And Dauid hi selfe sayeth in the boke of ỹ Psalmes: * The Lorde sayde vnto my Lorde: syt thou on my ryght hande, tyll I make thyne enemyes thy foote stole. Dauid therfore calleth hym Lord: and how is he then hys sonne?

Then in the audyence of all the people, he sayde vnto his disciples: * beware of ỹ Scribes, whych wyll go in longe clothynge: & loue gretynges in the markets, and the hyest seates in the synagoges, and the chefe rowmes at feastes, whych deuoure wyddowes houses, faynyng lōge prayers: the same shall receaue greater dampnacyon.

¶ The.xxj. Chapter.

¶ Christ commendeth the poore wyddow, telleth of the destruccion of Ierusalem, of false teachers, of tokens & troubles for to come, of the ende of the worlde, and of hys awne commynge.

And he behelde, * he sawe the ryche men, whych cast in their offeringes into the treasury. He sawe also a certayne poore wyddowe, whych cast in thyther two mytes. And he sayde: of a trueth I saye vnto you, * that thys poore wyddow hath put in moare then they all. For they all haue of theyr superfluyte added vnto the offerynges of God: but she, of her penury hath cast in all the substaunce that she had.

These thinges sayd he in the synagoge, as he taught in Capernaum. Many therfore of his disciples (whē they had herde this) sayde: this is an harde sayinge: who can abyde the hearinge of it? Jesus knewe in him selfe, that his disciples murmured at it, & he sayd vnto them: Doth this offende you? What and yf ye shall se ꝑ sonne of man ascende vp thither where he was before? It is the spryte that quyckeneth, the flesh profyteth nothinge. The wordes ꝑ I speake vnto you, are spryte and lyfe. But there are some of you that beleue not. For Jesus knewe from the begynninge, which they were, that beleued not, & who shulde betraye him: And he sayd: therfore sayde I vnto you: that * no man can come vnto me, except it were geuen vnto hym of my father.

From ꝑ tyme many of his disciples went backe, and forsoke him, and walked nomore with hym. Then sayde Jesus to the twelue: wyll ye also goo awaye? Then Simon Peter answered him: Lord, to whom shall we go? Thou haste the wordes of eternall lyfe * and we beleue and are sure that thou art Chryst the sonne of the lyuinge God. ## ¶ The. vij. Chapter.

¶ Jesus commeth to Jerusalem at the feast, teacheth the Jewes & reproueth them: There are diuersi opinions of hym amonge the people. The Pharises rebuke the officers, because they haue not brought hi, & erred with Nycodemus for takynge hys parte.

After these thinges, Jesus wēt about in Galile: for he wolde not go about in Jewry because that the Jewes sought to kyll hym. The Jewes * feast of tabernacles was at hande. Hys brethren therfore sayde vnto him: get the hence, and go into Jewry, that thy disciples also maye se thy worckes that thou doest. For there is no man that doeth eny thynge in secret, and he hym selfe seketh to be knowne openlye. If thou do soch thinges, shewe thy selfe to ꝑ worlde.

For his brethren beleued not in him.

Then Jesus sayde vnto them: My tyme is not yet come: but youre tyme is all waye ready. The worlde cannot hate you. * But me it hateth: because I testify of it, that the worckes therof are euill. Go ye vp vnto this feast, I will not go vp yet vnto this feast, for my tyme is not yet full come. whā he had sayde these wordes vnto them he abode styll in Galile. But as sone as his brethren were come, then wēt he also vp vnto the feast, not openly: but as it were preuely. Then sought him the Jewes at the feast, & sayde: * where is he? And moch murmuringe was ther of him amonge ꝑ people. For some sayde: * He is good, other sayde naye, but he deceaueth the people. How be it * no man spake openly of him, for feare of the Jewes. ✠

✠ Now whan halfe of ꝑ feast was done, Jesus went vp into the temple, and taught. And the Jewes marueyled, saying: How knoweth he the scriptures, seynge ꝑ he neuer learned? Jesus answered them, & sayde: My doctryne hys not myne: but his ꝑ sent me. If eny man wyll be obedient vnto his wyll, he shall knowe of the doctrine, whether it be of God, or whether I speake of my selfe. He ꝑ speaketh of him selfe, seketh his awne prayse. But he that seketh hys prayse that sent him, the same is true, & no vnryghteousnes is in him.

* Dyd not Moses geue you a lawe, & yet none of you kepeth ꝑ lawe? Why go ye about to kyll me? The people answered and sayde: thou haste the deuyll: who goeth about to kyll the? Jesus answered, and sayde vnto them: * I haue done one worcke, and ye all marueyle. Moses therfore gaue vnto you ꝑ circumcision: not because it is of Moses, but * of the fathers: And yet ye on the Saboth daye, circumcyse a man. If a man on the Saboth daye receaue circūcysion without breakynge of the lawe of Moses: disdayne ye at me, because I haue made a man euery whit whoale on the Saboth daye? * Judge not after the vtter aperaunce, but iudge with a ryghteous iudgement.

Then sayde some of them of Jerusalem: is not this he, whom they go about to kyll? But lo, he speaketh boldly, and they saye nothing to him. Do the rulers knowe in dede, ꝑ this is very Chryst? Howbeit * we knowe this man whence he is: but when Chryst cometh, no man knoweth whence he is.

Then cryed Jesus in ꝑ tēple (as he taught) saying: ye both knowe me, and whence I am ye knowe. And I am not come of my selfe: but he that sent me is true, whom ye knowe not. But I knowe him: (And yf I saye that I knowe hym not, I shalbe a lyer lyke vnto you, but I knowe hym) for I am of hi, & he hath sent me. * Thē they sought to take him: but no man layde hāds on him, because his houre was not yet come * Many of the people beleued on hym ✠ & sayde: when Chryst cōmeth, will he do moo myracles thē these, that this man hath done?

The Pharises hearde that the people murmured suche thinges cōcernyng him ✠ And the pharises and hye prestes * sent ministres to take him. Thē sayde Jesus vnto thē: Yet am I a lytell whyle with you, and then go I vnto him that sent me. Ye shall seke me, and shall not fynde me: * & where I am, thyther can ye not come. Then sayde the Jewes among them selues: whither wyll he go, that we shall not fynde him? Wyll he go amonge the gentyls (whych are scattered abroade) and teach the gētyls: What maner of saying is this that he sayd: ye shall seke me, & shall not finde me: and where I am, thyther can ye not come?

In the last daye, that great daye of ꝑ feast Jesus stode, and cryed, sayinge: * If eny mā thyrst, lett him come vnto me, & drincke. He that beleueth on me (as sayeth the scripture) out of his belly shall flowe ryuers of water of lyfe. But this spake he of ꝑ spryte, whych they that beleue on him, shulde receaue. ✠ For ꝑ holy goost was not yet there, because Jesus was not yet glorifyed.

✠ Many of the people therfore (whē they hearde this saying) sayd * of a truth this is a prophet: but other sayde * this is Chryst. But some sayde: shal Chryst come out of Galile: * Sayeth not ꝑ scripture, ꝑ Chryst shall come of ꝑ seed of Dauid: and out of ꝑ towne of Bethleem where Dauid was? So was ther dissencion amonge the people because of him. And some of thē wolde haue taken him but no man layed handes of him. Thē came the ministers to the hye prestes and Pharises. And they sayed vnto them: why haue ye not brought hi? The ministers answered: neuer man spake as this mā doeth. Thē answered thē ꝑ Pharises: are ye also disceaued? Doth eny of the rulers or of the Pharises beleue on him? But this comen people whych knowe not the lawe, are cursed. Nicodemus sayeth vnto them (* he that came to Jesus by nyght, & was one of thē) Doth oure lawe iudge eny mā, before it heare hi, and knowe what he hath done? They answered, and sayd vnto hi: art ꝑ also of Galile? Search & loke, For out of Galile aryseth no Prophete. And euery man went vnto his awne house. ✠

✠ Then ſpake Jeſus agayne vnto them, ſaying: * I am the lyght of the worlde. He that folowethe me, doth not walke in darcknes but ſhall haue the light of lyfe. The Phariſes therfore ſayde vnto him: thou beareſt recorde of thy ſelfe, thy recorde is not true. Jeſus anſwered, & ſayde vnto them: though I beare recorde of my ſelfe, yet my recorde is true: for I knowe whences I cam, and whither I go. But ye cannot tell whence I come, and whither I go. Ye iudge after the fleſhe. I iudge no man. And yf I iudge, my iudgement is true. For I am not alone: but I & the father that ſent me. * It is alſo wrytten in youre lawe, that the teſtimony of two men is true. I am one that beareth wytnes of my ſelfe, & the father that ſent me, beareth wytnes of me. Then ſayde they vnto him: where is thy father? Jeſus anſwered: ye nether knowe me, nor yet my father: If ye had knowē me, ye ſhulde haue knowē my father alſo. Theſe wordes ſpake Jeſus in the treſury as he taught in the temple, and no man layde handes on hym * for his houre was not yet come.

Then ſayde Jeſus agayne vnto them: ✠ I go my waye, & * ye ſhall ſeke me, & ſhall dye in youre ſynnes. Whyther I go, thyther can ye not come. Thē ſayde the Jewes: will he kyll him ſelfe, becauſe he ſayth: whyther I go, thyther can ye not come? And he ſayde vnto them: ye are from beneth, I am from aboue. Ye are of this world, I am not of this world. I ſayd therfore vnto you, that ye ſhal dye in youre ſynnes. For * yf ye beleue not that I am he, ye ſhall dye in youre ſynnes.

Then ſayd they vnto him. who arte thou? And Jeſus ſayeth vnto them: Euē the very ſame thing that I ſpeake vnto you. I haue many thinges to ſaye, and to iudge of you: Yee, & he that ſent me, is true. * And I ſpeke in the world, thoſe thinges, which I haue hearde of hym. Howebeit they vnderſtode not that he ſpake of his father. Then ſayd Jeſus vnto them: when ye haue lyft vp an hye the ſonne of man, then ſhall ye knowe, that I am he, and that I do nothinge of my ſelfe: but * as my father hath taught me, euen ſo I ſpeake theſe thinges: and he that ſent me, is wt me. The father hath not lefte me alone, for I do all wayes thoſe thinges that pleaſe him. ✠ As he ſpake theſe wordes, * many beleued on him.

✠ Then ſayde Jeſus to thoſe Jewes, which beleued on him: If ye continue in my worde, then are ye my very diſciples, and ye ſhall knowe the trueth: and the trueth ſhall make you free. They anſwered him: We be Abrahams ſeed, and were neuer bōde to eny man: how ſayeſt thou then: ye ſhalbe made * free?

Jeſus anſwered thē: verely, verely I ſaye vnto you, that * whoſoeuer cōmitteth ſinne, is the ſeruaunte of ſinne. And the ſeruaunt abydeth not in the houſe for euer: But the ſonne abydeth euer. If the ſōne therfore ſhal make you free, then are ye free in dede. I knowe that ye are Abrahams ſeed: but ye ſeke meanes to kill me, becauſe my word hath no place in you. I ſpeake that which I haue ſene with my father: and ye do that, which ye haue ſene with youre father. They anſwered and ſayde vnto him: Abraham is oure father. Jeſus ſayeth vnto them: If ye were Abrahams children, ye wolde do the dedes of Abraham. But now ye go aboute to kyll me, a man that hath tolde you the trueth whych I haue heard of God: this dyd not Abraham. Ye do the dedes of youre father. Then ſayde they to him: we were not borne of fornication. We haue one father, euē God. Jeſus ſayd vnto thē: yf God were youre father, truly ye wolde loue me. For I proceaded forth, and came frō God. Nether came I of my ſelfe, but he ſent me: Why do ye not knowe my ſpeache? Euen becauſe ye can not abyde the hearing of my worde.

Ye are of youre father the deuyll, and the luſtes of youre father will ye ſerue. * He was a murtherer from the beginninge and abode not in the trueth, becauſe there is no trueth in him. When he ſpeaketh a lye, he ſpeaketh of his awne. For he is a lyar, and the father of the ſame thing: And becauſe I tell you the trueth, therfore ye beleue me not.

✠ Which of you tebuketh me of ſynne? If I ſaye the trueth, why do not ye beleue me? * He that is of God, heareth Goddes wordes. Ye therfore heare them not, becauſe ye are not of God. Then anſwered the Jewes the Jewes, and ſayd vnto him: Saye we not well, that thou art a Samaritan, and * haſt the deuyll? Jeſus anſwered: I haue not the deuyll: but I honoure my father, and ye haue diſhonored me. I ſeke not myne awne prayſe: ther is one that ſeketh, and iudgeth.

Verely verely, I ſaye vnto you: yf a man kepe my ſaieng, he ſhall neuer ſe deeth. Then ſayd the Jewes vnto him: Now knowe we that thou haſt the deuyll. Abraham is deed, and the prophetes, and thou ſayeſt: yf a man kepe my ſaying, he ſhal neuer taſte of death. Art thou greater then our father Abraham, which is deed? and the prophetes are deed. Whom makeſt thou thy ſelfe?

Jeſus anſwered: If I honoure my ſelfe, myne honour is nothinge. It is my father that honoureth me, which ye ſaye, is your God, & yet ye haue not knowen hym: but I knowe him. And yf I ſaye, I knowe him not, I ſhal be a lyar lyke vnto you. But I knowe him, and kepe his ſayinge.

Your father Abraham was glad to ſe my daye: * and he ſawe it, & reioyſed. Then ſayd the Jewes vnto him: thou art not yet .l. yere olde, and haſt thou ſene Abrahā? Jeſus ſayd vnto thē: Verely verely, I ſaye vnto you: yer Abraham was borne, * I am. ‡ Then toke they vp ſtones, to caſt at hym: But Jeſus hyd him ſelfe, and * went out of the tēple. ✠

The .ix. Chapter.

Chriſt maketh the man to ſe that was borne blynde.

AND as Jeſus paſſed by, he ſawe a man, which was blynde from hys byrth. And his diſcyples aſked him ſayinge: Maſter, who dyd ſynne, this man, or hys father and mother, that he was borne blynd? Jeſus anſwered: Nether hath this man ſinned, nor yet his father and mother: but that the workes of God ſhulde be ſhewed in hym. I muſt worcke the workes of hym that ſent me, whyle it is daye. The nyght cōmeth, when no man can worcke. As longe as I am in the worlde. * I am the lyght of the worlde.

Aſſone as he had thus ſpoken, he ſpat on the ground, and made claye of the ſpetle, and rubbed the claye on the eyes of the blynde, & ſayd vnto him: Go, waſſhe the in the pole of * Siloe, which (by interpretaciō) is a ſinoche to ſaye as, ſent. He went his waye therfore, and waſhed, & came agayne, ſeinge: So the neyghbours and they yt had ſene him before (how yt he was a begger) ſaid: is not this he that ſat and begged? Some ſayd: this is he. Agayne, other ſayd: * (No, but) he is lyke hym.

He hym ſelfe ſayde: I am euen he. Therfore ſayde they vnto hym: Howe are thyne eyes opened? He anſwered and ſayde: The man that is called Jeſus, made claye, and anoynted myne eyes, and ſayd vnto me: Go to the pole Siloe, and waſhe. And whan I went & weſhed, I receaued my ſyght. Then ſayd they vnto him: where is he? He ſayde: I cannot tell.

They brought to the phariſes, hym that a lytell before was blynde: and it was the * Sabboth daye, when Jeſus made yt claye, and opened hys eyes. Then agayne the phariſes alſo aſked hym, howe he had receaued his ſyght. He ſayd vnto them: he put claye vpon myne eyes, and I waſhed, and do ſe. Therfore ſayd ſome of the phariſes: thys mā is not of God, becauſe he kepeth not the Sabboth daye. Other ſayde: * howe can a man yt is a ſynner, do ſuch myracles? And ther was a ſtryfe amonge them. They ſpake vnto the blynde mā agayne: What ſayſt thou of him, becauſe he hath opened thyne eyes? He ſayd: * He is a prophete.

But the Jewes dyd not beleue of the mā (how that he had bene blynde, and receaued hys ſyght) vntyll they called the father and mother of him that had receaued hys ſyght. And they aſked them, ſaying: Is thys youre ſonne, whō ye ſaye was borne blynde? How doth he now ſe then? His father and mother anſwered them, and ſayde: we knowe, that thys is oure ſonne, and that he was borne blynde: but by what meanes he nowe ſeeth, we cānot tell. Or who hath opened his eyes, cannot we tell? He is olde ynough, aſke him, let hym anſwere for hym ſelfe. Suche wordes ſpake hys father ād mother, becauſe they feared the Jewes. For the Jewes had conſpyred all ready, that yf eny man dyd confeſſe that he was Chriſt, * he ſhulde be excōmunicat out of the ſynagoge. Therfore ſayd hys father and mother: he is olde ynough, aſke him.

Then agayne called they the man yt was blynde, and ſayd vnto hym: Geue God the prayſe: we knowe that thys man is a ſynner. He anſwered therfore, and ſayde: Whyther he be a ſynner or no, I cannot tell. One thynge I am ſure of: that where as I was blynde, nowe I ſe. Then ſayde they to hym agayne: What dyd he to the? How opened he thyne eyes? He anſwered them: I tolde you yer whyle, and ye dyd not heare. Wherfore wold ye heare it agayne? Wyll ye alſo be his diſciples? Then rated they hym, & ſayd: Be yt his diſciple. We are Moſes diſciples. We are ſure, yt God ſpake vnto Moſes. As for this felowe, we knowe not frō whence he is.

The man anſwered, and ſayde vnto thē: this is a maruelous thing, that ye wote not from whence he is, and yet he hath opened myne eyes. For we be ſure, yt God heareth not ſynners. But yf eny man be a worſhipper of God, and obedient vnto his wyll, him heareth he. Sence the world begā was it not hearde, that eny man opened the eyes of one that was borne blynde. If thys man were not of God, he coulde haue done nothing. They answered, and sayd vnto hym: thou art al together borne in synne, and dost thou teach vs? And they cast him out.

Jesus heard that they had excōmunicate hym: and when he had founde hym, he sayde vnto hym: dost thou beleue on the sonne of God? He answered and sayd: Who is it Lord that I myght beleue on him? And Jesus said vnto him: Thou hast sene him, * and he it is that talketh with the. And he sayd: Lord, I beleue, and he worshipped hym. ✠ And Jesus sayd vnto him: ☞ I am come vnto iudgement into this worlde: that they which se not, myght se: and that they which se, might be made blynde. And some of the pharises which were with him, hearde these wordes, and sayd vnto him: are we blynde also? Jesus sayd vnto them: * ☞ If ye were blynde, ye shulde haue no synne. But now ye saye: we se, therfore your synne remayneth.

Whē he loued his which were in the worlde, vnto the ende he loued them. And whē supper was ended, after that the deuyll had * put in the herte of *Mat.xxvi.b Mar.xiiij.b Judas Iscarioth Simons sonne, to betraye hym. Jesus knowynge that * the father had ‡ Mat.xi.d and.xviij.d Luke.x.d- Joh.iij.d geuen all thinges into hys handes, and that he was come from God, and went to God: he rose from supper, and layde aside his vp- per garmentes: and whan he had taken a to- well, he gyrded him selfe. After that, he pow- red water into a basyn, and begāne to wash the disciples fete, and to wype them with the towell; wherwith he was gyrded.

Then came he to Symō Peter. And Pe- ter sayde vnto hym: Lord, dost thou washe my fete? Jesus answered, and sayd vnto hī: what I do, ꝑ woteste not nowe, but ꝑ shalte knowe herafter. Peter sayeth vnto him: thou shalt neuer washe my fete. Jesus answered hym: yf I washe the not, thou hast no parte with me. ✠ Ye men of Israel, heare these wordes: D
Jesus of Nazareth a man approued of God amonge you with myracles, wondres and haue ye taken by the hādes of vnryghtewes persones, after he was delyuered by the determinat counsell & forknowledge of God, & haue crucifyed and slayne him: whom God hath rayled vp, & loosed the sorowes of deeth,

Ye men and brethren, let me frely speake E
vnto you of the patriarke Dauid: * For he *iiij.Reg.ii.b

is both deed and buryed, ād hys sepulchre remayneth with vs vnto this daye. Therfore, seinge he was a Prophet, and knewe ꝑ God had swore with an othe to him, that Christ (as concerninge the flesh) shulde come of the frute of his loynes, and on hys seat, he knowyng this before, spake of the resurrecyon of Christ, that his soule shulde not be lefte in hell: neither hys flesshe shulde se corrupcyon.

*Actes.i.a. This Jesus hath God raysed vp, * wherof we all are witnesses.

Hence now that he by the ryght hande of God exalted is, and hath receaued of the father the promyse of the holy Goost, he hath ✠ shed forth thys ✠ (gyfte) which ye now se ād heare. For Dauid is not ascendyd into heuē: ✠Psal cr.a. Math.xxii.d. but he sayeth: * The Lord sayde to my Lorde: syt thou on my ryght hand, vntyll I make thy fooes thy fote stole. So therfore, let all the house of Israel knowe for a suerty, ꝑ God hath made that same Jesus (whom ye haue crucified) Lorde and Christ.

When they hearde this, they were pricked in their hertes, and sayd vnto Peter, & vnto *Luke.iii.b. the other Apostles: Ye mē & brethrē * what shall we do? Peter sayde vnto them: repent of youre synnes, and be baptysed euery one of you in the name of Jesus Christ for the remission of synnes, and ye shall receaue the gyfte of ꝑ holy goost. For the promyse was made vnto you ād to youre chyldren, and to all that are a farre of, euen as many as the Lorde oure God shall call. And with many other wordes bare he witnes, and exhorted them, sayinge: Saue youre selues from this vntowarde generacion. Then they ꝑ gladly receaued his preachinge, were baptised: and G the same daye, ther were added vnto them aboute thre thousande soules.

And they cōtinued in the Apostles doctrine and felowshyp, & in breakynge of bread, ād in prayers. And feare came ouer euery soule. And many wōdres & signes were shewed by ✠ ꝑ Apostles. ✠ (at Jerusalem. And great feare came vpon all men) And all that beleued, kept them selues together, & had all thynges cōmen, and solde their possessions and goodes, ād parted them to all men, as euery man had nede. And they continued dayly with one accorde in ꝑ tēple, & brake bread frō house to house, & dyd eate their meate together, w̄ gladnes & singlenes of hert, prayseinge God, ād had fauour with all the people. And the Lorde added to ꝑ cōgregacion dayly, soch as shulde be saued.

¶The.iij.Chapter. ✠

¶The halt is restored to hys fete. Peter preacheth Christ vnto the people.

A PEter and John went vp together into the temple at the nynth houre of prayer. And a certayne man that was halt from hys mothers wōbe, was brought, whom they layde dayly at the gate of the temple (which is called bewtyfull) to aske almes of them that entred into the tēple. When he sawe Peter and John, that they wolde into the tēple, he desyred to receaue an almes. And Peter fastened his eyes on him with John, & sayd: loke on vs. And he gaue hede vnto thē, trustynge, to receaue some thynge of them. Thē sayde Peter: Syluer and golde haue I none B such as I haue, geue I the. In the name of Jesus Christ of Nazareth, * ryse vp and walke. And he toke hym by the ryght hand, *Mat.ix.a and lyfte hym vp. And immediatly hys fete and ancle bones receaued strength. And he sprange, stode, and walked, and entred with them into the temple, walkynge, and leappynge, and praysynge God.

And all the people sawe hym walke and prayse God. And they knewe hym, ꝑ it was he, which sate and begged at the beutyfull gate of the temple. And they wondred and were sore astonyed at that which had happened vnto hym. And as the halt which was healed, helde Peter and John, all the people ranne amased vnto thē in * the porche that *iii.Mcth. John.x.c. Actes.v.c. is called Salomons.

When Peter sawe that, he answered vnto C the people. ✠ Ye men of Jsrael, why marnayle ye at this, or why loke ye so on vs, as though by oure awne power or strength we had made thys man go? And now brethrē, I wote ꝑ thorow ignoraunce ye dyd it, as dyd also youre rulers. But God (which before had shewed, by the D mouth of all hys Prophetes, howe ꝑ Christ shuld suffre) hath thus wyse fulfylled. Let it * Mat.xiii.d * repente you therfore, and cōuerte, ꝑ youre synnes maye be done awaye ✠ when ꝑ tyme of refreshynge commeth, which we shall haue of the presence of the Lorde, and when God shal sende him, which before was preached vnto you, that is to wit, Jesus Christ, which must receaue heauen vntyll the tyme that all thynges, which God hath spoken by the mouth of all hys holy Prophetes sence ꝑ worlde began, be restored agayne.

¶The.iiij.Chapter.

¶The Apostles are taken and brought before the counsell. They are forbydden to preache, but they turne them vnto prayer, and are more obedient vnto God then vnto men.

A AS they spake vnto the people, the prestes and the rulars of the temple, and the Saduces, came vpon thē, takyng it greuously, that they taught the people, and preached in Jesus the resurrecyon from deeth. And they layde hādes on them, and put them in holde vntyll ꝑ nexte daye: for it was now euentyde. Howbeit many of them which hearde the wordes beleued, and the nombre of the men was aboute fyue thousande.

And it chaunced on the morow, that their rulars and elders and Scribes, (and Annas the chefe Prest, and Cayphas, and John, ād Alexāder, & as many as were of ꝑ kynred of ꝑ hye Prestes) gathered together at Jerusalem. And whā they had set them before them B they asked * by what power, or in what name haue ye done this? ✠ *Erod.ii.c. Math.xxi.c. Actes.viii.d.

Then Peter full of ꝑ holy goost sayde vnto thē: ye rulars of the people, and elders of Jsrael, ꝑ we this daye be examined of the good dede that we haue done to the sycke mā by what meanes he is made whoale: be it knowen vnto you all, and to all the people of Jsrael, that by the name of * Jesus Christ of Nazareth, whom ye crucyfyed, whom God raysed agayne from deeth: euen by him doth this mā stande here present before you whoale. * This is the stone which was cast C alyde of you buylders, which is become the chefe of the corner. Nether is there saluacyon in eny other. * For amonge men vnder heauen there is geuen none other name, wherin we must be saued. ✠ *Mathe.i.c. Philip.ii.b. *Mat.xxi.d. Marke.xii.a. Luke.xx.c. *Math.i.c. Philip.ii.b.

When they sawe the boldnes of Peter ād John, and vnderstode that they were vnlerned and laye men, they marueyled, and they knewe them, that they had bene with Jesu: and beholdynge also the man (which was healed) standynge with thē, they coulde not saye agaynst it: but commaunded them to go aside out of ꝑ counsell, and counceled amōge them selues, sayinge: * what shall we do to *John.xi.c. these men? For a manifest sygne is done by them, and is openly knowen to all them that dwell in Jerusalem, and we cannot denye it. But that it be noysed no farther amonge the people, let vs threaten and charge thē, ꝑ they speake hence forth to no man in thys name. D

And they called them, * and commaūded *Actes.v. them, that in nowyse they shulde speake ner teach in ꝑ name of Jesu. But Peter & John answered and sayde vnto them: whether it be right in ꝑ sight of God, to herkē vnto you more then to God, iudge ye. For we cannot but speake, that which we haue sene & heard. So threatened they them, and let them go, and founde nothynge howe to punyshe thē, because of the people. For all men praysed God because of * ꝑ which was done: for the *Actes.iii. man was aboue fourty yeare olde, on whom thys myracle of healynge was shewed.

Assone as they were let go, they came to E their felowes, and shewed all that the hye Prestes ād elders had sayde. And when they hearde ꝑ, they lyfte vp their voyces to God with one accorde, and sayde: Lorde, thou art God, which hast made heauen and erth, the see, & all that in thē is, which ✠ (in the holy goost) ✠ by ꝑ mouth of thy seruaūt Dauid ✠ (oure father) ✠ hast sayd: * Why dyd the hethē rage, and the *Psalm.ii. people ymagen vayne thynges? The kynges of the erth stode vp, and the rulars came together, agaynst the Lorde and agaynst hys anoynted.

For of a trueth, agaynst thy holy chylde Jesus (whom ꝑ hast anoynted) both Herode and also Poncius Pylate, whith the Gētyls and the people of Jsrael, gathered them selues together ✠ (in thys cyte) for to do what- F soeuer thy hande and thy counsell determyned before to be done. And now Lorde, beholde their threatenynges, and graunte vnto thy seruauntes, that with all confydence they maye speake thy worde. So that thou stretche forth thyne hande, that healynge ād sygnes and wonders be done by the name of thy holy chylde Jesus. And assone as they had prayed ‡ ꝑ place moued where they were assembled together * and they were all fylled with the holy Goost, and they spake the worde of God boldely. ‡Actes.xvi. *Actes.ii. and.iiii.b.

✠ And the multitude of them that beleued, * were of one hert, & of one soule. Nether sayde anye of them, that ought of the thynges which he possessed, was hys awne: but they had all thinges commen. And with greate power gaue the Apostles wytnes of the resurrecyon of the Lord Jesu. And great grace was with them all. Nether was ther eny among them, that lacked. For as many as were possessers of landes or houses, solde them, and brought ꝑ pryce of ꝑ thinges that were solde. G *Actes.ii. and.v.b.

were solde, ād layed it downe at ꝑ Apostles fete: And distribucion was made vnto euery man accordynge as he had nede.

* Actes.i.d. And * Joses, which was also called of ꝑ Apostles, Barnabas (that is to saye, ꝑ sonne of consolacyon) beynge a Leuite, and of the countre of Cypers whan he had lande, solde it, and layde the pryce downe at the Apostles fete.

¶ The.v. Chapter.

¶ The dyssemblynge of Ananias and Saphyra is punyshed. Myracles are done by the Apostles, which are taken out of preson. They are brought before the counsell. The sentence of Gamaliel. The Apostles are beten, they reioyse in trouble.

A Certayne man named Ananias with Saphyra his wyfe solde a possession, ād kepte awaye parte of the pryce (hys wyfe also beynge of counsell) and brought a certayne parte, and layde it downe at the Apostles fete. But Peter sayde: Ananias, how is it, that Sathan hath fylled thyne hert, that thou shuldest lye vnto the holy goost, and kepe awaye parte of the pryce of the lande? Pertayned it not vnto the onely? & after it was solde, was it not in thyne awne power? Why hast thou conceaued this thinge in thyne herte? Thou hast not lyed vnto mē, but vnto God. Whē Ananias herde these wordes, he fell downe, and gaue vp the goost. And great feare came on all them that herde these thinges. And the yonge men rose vp, and put hym a parte, ād B caryed hym out, and buried hym.

And it fortuned, that (as it were aboute the space of thre houres after) his wyfe came in, ignorannt of that which was done. And Peter sayde vnto her: Tell me, Solde ye not ꝑ lāde for so moch? And she sayd: yee, for so moch. Then Peter sayde vnto her: why haue ye agreed together, to tēpt the spyrite of ꝑ Lorde? Beholde, the fete of them which haue buried thy husband, are at the doze, and shall cary the out. Then fell she downe straycht waye at his fete, and yelded vp ꝑ goost. And the yonge men came in, and founde her deed, & caryed her out, & buryed her by her husbande. And great feare came on all the congregacyon, and on as many as herde it.

¶ * Mar.xvi.d By ꝑ handes of the Apostles * were many sygnes and wondres shewed among the people. And they were all together with one accorde in * Salomons porche. And of other durst no mā ioyne him selfe to thē: neuertheles the people magnified them. The nombred of them that beleued in the Lorde both of men and wemen, grewe moze & moare: in so moch ꝑ they brought the sycke into the stretes, and layde them on beddes and couches, that at the least waye the shadowe of Peter when he came by, myght shadowe some of them, * ill. Re.vi.a John.x.c Actes.iii.b. * (and that they myght all be delyuered frō their infirmytyes)

There came also a multitude out of the cyties rounde aboute, vnto Jerusalem, bryngynge sycke folkes, and them which were vexed with vncleane spretes. And they were healed euery one. D

* Then the chefe Preste rose vp, and all they that were with him (which is the secte of the Saduces) ād were full of indignacīō, and layde handes on the Apostles, and put them in the commē preson. * But the angell of the Lorde by nyght opened the preson dores, and brought them forth, and sayde: go, and stande, and speake in the temple to the people all ꝑ wordes of this lyfe. When they herde that, they entred into the tēple early in the morynge: and taught. But the chefe preste came and they that were with him, ād called a counsell together, and all the elders of the chyldren of Israel, and sent men to the preson, to fet them. When the mynysters came, and founde them not in the preson, they returned and tolde, sayinge: the preson truly founde we shut with all diligēce, and the kepers standynge without before the dores. But whē we had opened, we founde no mā within. When the chefe Prest and the ruler of the tēple, and the hye Prestes herde these thynges, they douted of thē, wher vnto thys wolde growe. E

Then came one and shewed them: beholde, the men that ye put in preson, stande in the temple, and teach the people: Then went the ruler of the temple, with ministres, and brought them without violence. For they feared the people, lest they shulde haue bene stoned. And when they had brought them, they set thē before the counsell. And the chefe Preste asked them, sayinge: * dyd not we straytely commaunde you: that ye shuld not teach in this name? And behold, ye haue fylled Jerusalem with youre doctryne, and intende to brynge * this mans bloud vpō vs. * Mat.xxvii

Peter and the other Apostles answered, & sayde: * We ought moze to obey God then mē. The God of oure fathers rayled vp Jesus, whom ye slewe, and hanged on tre. Hym hath God lyft vp with his ryght hand, to be a ruler and a sauiour, for to geue repentaūce to Israel, and forgeuenes of synnes. And we are recordes of these thinges which we saye, and so is also ꝑ holy goost, whom God hath geuen to them ꝑ obey him. Whē they herde that, they claue asunder, and sought meanes to slee them. Then stode ther vp one in the counsell, a Pharyse, named * Gamaliel, a doctoure of lawe (had in reputacyon among all the people) and commaunded ꝑ Apostles to go aside a lytell space, and sayd vnto thē: ye men of Israel, take hede to youre selues, what ye entende to do, as touchynge these mē. For before these dayes rose vp one Thudas, boastynge hym selfe, to whō resorted a G nombre nombre of men, about a foure hōdred, which was slayn: and they all which beleued hym, were scatred abrode, and brought to nought. * Luce.xiii.a After this mā, was ther one Judas of * Galile in the dayes of the tribute, and drewe awaye moche people after hym. He also perished and all, euen (as many as harkened to him) were scatered abrode.

And now I saye vnto you: refraine youre selues from these men, and lett them alone. For yf this councel or this worke be of men, it wyll come to naught. But and yf it be of God, ye cannot destroye it, lest haply ye be founde to stryue agaynst God. And to hym agreed the other: and whan they had called * Actes.iiii.d the apostles, they bet them, * and commaūded that they shulde not speake in the name of Jesu, and let them go. * Mat.v.b

And they departed from the coūsell, reioysinge, that they were counted worthy, to suffre rebuke for his name. And dayly in the temple and in euery house they ceased not, to teach and preach Jesus Christ.

¶ The. vj. Chapter.

¶ Mynysters (or deacons) are ordeyned in the congregacion to do seruyce in necessary thynges of the body, that the apostles maye wayte onely vpō the worde of God. Steuen is accused.

A In those dayes (whā the nomber of the disciples grewe) there arose a grudge amonge the Gretes against the Hebrues, because their weddowes were despysed in the dayly ministracyon. Then the twelue called the multitude of the disciples together and sayde, it is not mete, that we shuld leaue the worde of God: and serue tables. ✠ And Steuen, full of fayth and power, dyd great wondres and miracles amōge the people. Then ther arose certen of the Synagoges, which is called the Synagoge of the Libertynes and Sirenytes, and of Alexandria, and of Celicia, and of Asia, disputynge with Steuen. ‡ And they coulde not resyste the wisdome, & the spyrite, * which spake. ✠ Then sent they in men, which sayde: we ‡ Luke.xxi.c * Mat.v.c haue hearde hym speake blasphemous wordes against Moses, and agaynst God. And they moued the people ād the elders and the scribes: and came vpō him and caught hym, and brought him to the coūcell, and brought D forth false witnesse, which sayde: This man ceaseth not to speake blasphemous wordes against this holy place and the lawe: for we heard him saye: this Jesus of Nazareth shal destroye this place, and shal chaunge the ordinaunces, which Moses gaue vs. And all that sate in the counsell, loked stedfastly on him, and sawe his face as it had bene the face of an aungell.

The.viij. Chapter.

The Saul persecuteth the Christen. The apostles are scatred abrode. Philip commeth into Samaria. Simon Magus is baptysed, he dyssembleth. Philip baptyseth the chamberlayn.

A Saul * consented vnto hys death. And at ỹ tyme there was a greate persecucyon agaynst the congregacyon which was at Jerusalem, ãd they were all * scatered abrode thorowout ỹ regyons of Jewry and Samaria, except the apostles. But deuout men dressed Steuen, and made great lamentacyon ouer hym. As for Saul he * made hauocke of the cõgregacyon, and entred into euery house, and drew out both men and women, and thrust them into prison. Therfore, they that were scatered abrode, went euery where preachyng the worde of God.

Then came Philip into a cytie of Samaria, & preached Christ vnto them. And the people gaue hede vnto those thynges which Philip spake w̃ one accord, hearyng & seyng the myracles whych he dyd. For * vncleane spretes cryinge with loude voyce, came out of many ỹ were possessed of thẽ. And many taken w̃ palsyes, & many ỹ halted, were healed. And ther was great ioye in that cyte.

But ther was a certen mã called Symõ, which before tyme in ỹ same cytye vsed witchecrafte, and bewitched the people of Samary, saying that he was a man that coulde do great thynges. Whom they regarded, frõ the lest to ỹ greatest, sayinge: this man is the power of God, which is called greate. And him they sett moche by, because that of longe tyme he had bewitched them with sorceries. But assone as they gaue credence to Philippes preachyng of the kyngdome of God, & of the name of Jesu Christ, they were baptysed both men & wemen. Then Simon hym selfe beleued also. And whan he was baptised, he cõtinued w̃ Philip, and wondred, beholding the miracles & sygnes, which were shewed.

And Peter was kepte in preſon. But prayer was made without ceaſynge of the congregacyon, vnto God foz hym. And when Herode wolde haue bzought him oute vnto the people, the ſame nyght ſlepte Peter betwene two ſoudiers, bounde with two chaynes, ād the kepers befoze the doze kepte the preſon. * Mat.xiiii.c. and.xvii.a.

And behold, * the angel of the Lozd was ther preſent, and a lyght ſhyned in the habytacyon. And he ſmote Peter on the ſyde, and ſterꝑd him vp, ſayinge: aryſe vp quickly. And his cheynes fel of frō his handes. And the angel ſayd vnto hym: gyrde thy ſelfe, ād bynde on thy ☞ ſandales. And ſo he dyd. And he ſayth vnto him: caſt thy garment about the, & folowe me. And he came out & folowed hī, and wyſt not that it was trueth which was done by the angell, but thought he had ſene a viſyon. When they were paſt ỹ fyrſt and the ſecōde watch, they came vnto the yron gate, that leadeth vnto the cytie, * whych opened to them by the awne accozde. And they wēt oute, and paſſed thozow one ſtrete, and fozth with, the angell departed from him. * Actes.v.d and.xvj.f

And whan Peter was come to him ſelfe, he ſayd: nowe I knowe of a ſurety, that the Lozde hath ſent his angell, and hath delyuered me out of the hande of Herode, and from all the wayting foz, of the people of the Jewes. ✠ And as he cōſydzed the thynge, he came to ỹ houſe of Mary ỹ mother of one John, whoſe ſyxname was Marke, where many were gathered togeather * in prayer. * Actes.x.b As Peter knocked at the entry doze, a damſell came fozth to herkē, named Rhoda. And whē ſhe knew Peters voyce, ſhe opened not the entry foz gladnes, but ran in, & told how Peter ſtode befoze the entry. And they ſayde vnto her: thou art mad: But ſhe affirmed ỹ it was euen ſo. Then ſayd they: it is hys angel. But Peter cōtynued knockinge: & when they had opened the doze, ād ſawe him, they were aſtonyed. * And whan he had beckned * Actes.xiij.c vnto them with the hande, that they myght holde theyr peace, he tolde thē by what meanes the Lozde had bzought hī out of the preſon. ✠ And he ſayde: go ſhewe theſe thinges vnto James and to the bzethzen. And he departed, and went into another place.

Aſſone as it was daye, ther was no litle ado among the ſoudiers, what was become of Peter. When Herode had ſought foz him, and foūde hym not, he examined the kepers, and commaunded them to be caryed awaye. And he deſcended from Jewzy to Ceſarea, & ther aboode. Herode was diſpleaſed wᵗ them of Tyze and Sidō. But they came all with one accozde, & made interceſſion vnto Blaſtus the kynges chamberlayne, and deſyred peace, becauſe their cōutre was nozyſhed by the kynges prouyſyon. And vpō a daye appoynted, Herode arayed him in royall apparell, and ſett hym in hys ſeate, and made an ozacion vnto thē. And the people gaue a ſhowte, ſayinge: it is the voyce of a God & not of a man. And immediatly the angell of the Lozde ſmote hym, becauſe he gaue not God the honour, and he was eaten of wozmes ād gaue vp the ghoſt. And the wozde of God grewe and multiplyed. And Barnabas and Paul returned to Jeruſalem, when they had fulfylled their office, and toke wᵗ thē * John whoſe ſyxname was Marke. * Actes.xiii.

¶ Paul and Barnabas are called to preach amonge the heathen. Of Sergius Paulus and Elymas the ſorcerer. Paul preacheth at Antioche

THere were in the congregacyon that is at Antioche, certayn ☞ prophtes, and teachers: as Barnabas and Simon that was called Niger, and Lucius of Cirene and Manahen, Herode the Tetrarkes nozſicelow, and Saul. As they miniſtred to the Lozde and faſted, the holy ghoſt ſaide: ſeparate me Barnabas and Saul, foz the wozcke wherunto I haue called them. And whā they had faſted and prayed, and * layde their handes on them, they let them go. And they after they were ſent fozth of the holy ghoſt, departed vnto Seleutia, & frō thence they layled to Cipzus. And when they were at Salamine, they ſhewed the wozd of God ī the ſinagoges of the Jewes. And they had * John to theyr minyſter. * 1. Tim.v.b. ¶ Circumcision about circumcysyon. The Apostles pacifye the mater at Jerusalem. Paul and Barnabas preache at Antioche.

*Gala.v.a. AND certayne men which came downe taught the brethrē * excepte ye becircumcysed after the maner of Moses, ye cannot be saued. So when ther was rysen dissencio & disputyng not a lyttel vnto Paul and Barnabas agaynst them, they determined that Paule and * Barnabas, and certayne other of them, shulde go vp to Jerusalem vnto the Apostles ād elders about thys questyon. And after they were brought on their waye by the congregacion, they passed ouer Phenices and Samaria, declaryng the conuersiō of the Gentyls, and they brought greate ioye vnto all the brethren. And when they were come to Jerusalem, they were receaued of the congregacion & of the Apostles and elders. And they declared all thynges ỹ God had done by thē. Thē rose vp certayne of the secte of the Pharyses, which dyd beleue, saying, that it was nedfull to circumcyse them, and to commaūde them to kepe the lawe of Moses. And the Apostles & elders came together, to reason of thys matter.

And whē ther was moche disputyng, Peter rose vp, & sayde vnto them: Ye men & brethren, ye knowe how ỹ a good whyle agoo, God dyd chose amonge vs, ỹ the Gentyls by my mouth shuld heare the worde of the Gospell, and beleue. And God which * knoweth the hertes, bare them wytnes, and gaue vnto them the holy goost, euen as he dyd vnto vs, and put no differēce betwene vs and thē seynge ỹ with fayth he * purified theyr hertes. And the brethren immediatly sent awaye Paul and Sylas by nyght vnto Berrea.

Then disputed he in the synagoge with the Jewes, and with the deuoute personnes: and in ỹ market dayly with them that came vnto him by chaunce. Certayne Philosophers of the Epicures and of the Stoyckes, disputed with hym. And some ther were which sayde: what will thys babler saye? Other sayde: he semeth to

When Gallio was ruler of the countre of Acaia, the Jewes made insurreccyon with one accorde agaynst Paul, and brought hym to the iudgement seate, sayinge: this felowe counceleth men to worshyp God contrary to ỹ lawe. And whā Paul nowe was about to opē his mouth, Gallio sayd vnto ỹ Jewes: yf it were a matter of wronge, or an euyll dede (O ye Jewes) reason wolde ỹ I shulde heare you: but yf it be a question of wordes or of names, or of youre lawe, loke ye to it youre selues, For I will be no iudge of soche matters, and he draue them from the seate. And when he was disposed to go into Acaia, the brethren wrote, exhortyng the disceples to receaue him. Which whan he was come helped them moche which had beleued thorow grace. For he ouercame the Jewes myghtely, and that openly, shewynge by the scryptures, that Jesus was Chryst.

at Corinthum, Paul passed thorowe the vpper coastes, and came to Ephesus, and founde certayne disciples, and sayde vnto them haue ye receaued the holy ghost, sence ye beleued? And they sayde vnto hym: no, we haue not heard whether ther be eny holy ghost or no. And he sayde vnto them. wherwith were ye then baptysed? And they sayde: with ✠ Johns

And whan Paul † layde hys handes i.Timo.iii.d. vpon them. * the holy ghost came on thē, ād and.b d. they † spake with tonges, and prophesyed, vi.Timo.i.b and all the men were aboute twelue. ✠ Actes. ii.a. iiii.f.viii.b. † Mat.viii.d. Actes. ii.a.

And

And he wēt into the synagoge, and behaued hym selfe boldely foꝛ .iij. monethes, disputinge and geuing them exhoꝛtacions of the kyngdome of God. ✠ When dyuers wexed hard herted and beleued not, but spake euyll of the waye (and that before the multitude) he departed fro them, and seperated the disciples. And he disputed dayly in the scole of one called Tyrannus. And this cōtynued by the space of two yeares: so that all they which dwelt in Asia, herd the woꝛde of the Lorde Jesu, both Jewes and Gzekes. And God * wrought specyall myracles by the hādes of Paul: so that from his body, were brought vnto the sicke, napkins & partelettes, & the diseases departed from them, and * the euyll spyrytes went out of them.

Then certayne of the vagabunde Jewes exoꝛcistes, toke vpon them to call ouer them (which had euyll spyrytes) ꝑ name of ꝑ Lorde Jesus, sayinge: We adiure you by * Jesu, whom Paul preacheth. And ther were seuen sonnes of one Sceua a Jew and chefe of the prestes which dyd so. And the euyll spyrete answered and sayd: Jesus I knowe, & Paul I knowe: but who are ye? And the man in whom the euyll spyrete was, ranne on them, and ouercame them, and preuayled agaynst thē so that they fledd out of that house naked and wounded. And this was knowen to all the Jewes and Gzekes also, which dwelt at Ephesus, & feare came on thē all, & the name of the Lorde Jesus was magnyfyed.

And many that beleued, cam, and * confessed and shewed their woꝛckes. Many of them which vsed curious craftes, brought their bokes, and burned them before all men, and they counted the pryce of them, and foūde it fyfty thousand syluerlynges. So mightely grewe the woꝛd of God, and preuayled. After these thynges were ended, Paul purposed in the spyrete (whan he had passed ouer Macedonia ād Achaia) to go to Jerusalem, saying: After I haue bene there, I must also se Rome. So sent he into Macedonia two of them that ministred vnto hym, euen Timotheus & Erastus: but he hym selfe remayned in Asia foꝛ a season.

The same tyme ther arose no lytell a do aboute that waye. Foꝛ a certayne man named Demetrius, a syluersmyth (which made syluer shrynes foꝛ Diana) was not a lytell beneficiall vnto ꝑ craftes men. Whom he called together with the woꝛkemen of lyke occupacion, and sayd: Syrs, ye knowe that by this crafte * we haue aduauntage. Moreouer, ye se & heare that not alone at Ephesus, but allmost thoꝛowe out all Asia, thys Paul hath perswaded & turned a waye moche people sayinge, that * they be not goddes which are made with handes. So that not only this oure crafte cometh into parell to be set at nought: but also that the temple of the greate Goddesse Diana shulde be despysed, & her magnificence shulde be destroyed, whom all Asia and the woꝛld woꝛshyppeth.

Whē they hearde these sayinges, they were full of wꝛathe, & cryed out, sayinge. Greate is Diana of the Ephesians. And al the cytie was on a roꝛe, and they russhed into the comen hall with one assent, & caught Gaius and Aristarcus, men of Macedonia, Pauls companiōs. When Paul wolde haue entred in vnto the people, the disciples suffred hym not. But certayne of ꝑ chefe of Asia (which were his frendes) sent vnto him, desyrynge him, that he wolde not preace into the comē hall. Some therfoꝛe cryed one thyng and some another, & the congregacion was all out of quiete, & the moare parte knewe not wher foꝛe they were come together.

Some of the company dꝛue foꝛth Alexāder, the Jewes thꝛustynge hym foꝛwardes: Alexander: * beckened with the hande, and wolde haue geuen ꝑ people an answer. Whē they knewe that he was a Jewe, ther arose a shoute almost foꝛ the space of two houres, of all men, cryinge: greate is Diana of the Ephesyans.

When the towne clarcke had ceased ꝑ people, he sayde: ye men of Ephesus, what man is it that knoweth not how that the cytie of the Ephesyans is a woꝛshypper of the great goddesse Diana, & of the ymage which cām from heauen. Seinge then that noman sayth here agaynst, ye ought to be content, and to do nothynge rashly: foꝛ ye haue brought hyther these men: which are nether robbers of churches, not yet despisers of youre goddesse Wherfoꝛe, yf Demetrius and the craftes mē which are with hym, haue a matter agaynst eny man, the lawe is open, and ther are rulers, let them accuse one another. But yf ye goo aboute eny other thynge, it shall be determined in a lawfull congregacyon. Foꝛ we are in ieopardy to be accused of thys dayes vproure, foꝛ as moche as ther is no cause, wherby we maye geue a rekenynge of thys concourse of people. And when he had thus spoken, he let the congregacion departe.

¶ The .xx. Chapter.

¶ Paul goeth into Macedonya and into Grece. At Troas he rayseth vp a ded body. At Ephesus he calleth the elders of the congregacyon together, commytteth the keppynge of Gods flocke vnto them, warneth them of false teachers, maketh hys prayer with them, and departeth to shyppe.

After that the rage was ceased, Paul called the disciples vnto hym, and toke hys leaue of thē, and departed foꝛ to go into Macedonia. And when he had gone ouer those partyes, and had geuen them alonge exhoꝛtacyon, he cam into Grece & there abode .iij. monethes. And whē ꝑ Jewes layde wayt foꝛ hi as he was about to sayle into Syria, he purposed to returne thoꝛow Macedonia. Ther accōpanied hi into Asia, Sopater of Berrea, and of Thessalonia, Aristarcus and Secūdus, and Gayus of Derba, & Timotheus, & out of Asia Tychicus and * Trophimus. These goynge before, taryed vs at Troas. And we sayled awaye frō Philippos after the dayes of swete breed, and cam vnto them to Troas in fyue dayes, where we abode seuen dayes.

And vpō one of the Saboth dayes, whā ꝑ disciples came together foꝛ to breake breed Paul preached vnto them (ready to departe on ꝑ moꝛowe) & cōtinued the preaching vnto mydnyght. And there were many lyghtes in the chamber, where we were gathered together, & ther sate in a wyndowe a certayne ponge man (named Eutichus) beinge fallē into a depe sleepe. And as Paul was preachinge, he was the moꝛe ouercome with slepe, ād fell downe from the thyrde lofte, & was takē vp deed. But whan Paul went doune, he fell on him * & embraced him and sayde: make nothynge a do, foꝛ his lyfe is in hym. So when he was come vp agayne, & had brokē the bread & eaten, and talcked a longe whyle (euen tyll the moꝛnyng) at the last he departed. And they brought ꝑ ponge man alyue, & were not a lytell confoꝛted.

And we went afoꝛe to shyppe, & lowsed vnto Asson there to receaue Paul. Foꝛ so had he appoynted, and wolde hym selfe goo a fote. When we were come together at Asson, we toke him in, & came to Mytilenes. And we sayled thence, and cam the nexte daye ouer agaynst Chios. And the nexte daye we arryued at Samos, & taried at Trogylon. The nexte daye we came to Mylcton: foꝛ Paul had determined to sayle ouer by Ephesus, because he wolde not spende ꝑ tyme in Asia. Foꝛ he hasted (yf it were possible foꝛ him) to kepe at Jerusalē ꝑ daye of Pentecoste. And frō Mylctō he sent messāgers to Ephesus, & called ꝑ elders of ꝑ cōgregaciō. Which whē they were come to him, he layd vnto thē: Ye knowe from the fyrst daye that I cam into Asia, after what maner I haue bene wꝫ you at all ceasons, seruynge the Lorde with all hūblenes of mynde, and with many teares & temptacions which happened vnto me by the layinges a wayte of the Jewes, because I wolde kepe backe nothynge ꝑ was profitable vnto you: but to shewe you and teache you openly, & thoꝛowe out euery house, witnessynge both to ꝑ Jewes, & also to the Gzekes, ꝑ * repentaunce, that is toward God, & ꝑ fayth which is toward oure Lorde Jesus. And now beholde I go bounde in the spyrete vnto Jerusalem, not knowing the thinges ꝑ shal come on me there, but ꝑ * the holy goost witnesseth in euery cytie, saying, that bādes and trouble abyde me. But none of these thinges moue me * nether is my lyfe deare vnto my selfe, that I might fulfyll my course with ioye, ād the ministracyō (of the woꝛde) which I haue receaued of the Lorde Jesu, to testifye the Gospell of the grace of God.

And now beholde, I am sure, ꝑ hencefoꝛth ye all (thoꝛow whō I haue gone preachynge the kyngdō of God) shall se my face no moꝛe. Wherfoꝛe, I take you to recoꝛde this daye that I am pure from the bloude of all men. Foꝛ I haue spared no laboure, but haue shewed you all the counsell of God. Take hede therfoꝛe vnto youre selues & to all the flocke amonge whō the holy ghost hath made you ouerseers, to rule the congregacyon of God which he hath purchased with his bloude.

* Foꝛ I am sure of thys, ꝑ after my departynge shall greueous wolues entre in amōge you, not sparyng the flocke. Moꝛeouer, of youre awne selues shall men arise, speaking peruerse thiges to dꝛawe disciples after thē. Therfoꝛe awake, & remēber, that by the space of .iij. yeres: I ceased not to warne euery one of you nyght and daye with teares.

And now bretherē, I commēde you to God and to the woꝛde of his grace, which is able to build farther, & to geue you an inheritaūce amonge all them which are sanctifyed * I haue desyred no mans syluer, golde, oꝛ vesture. Yee, ye your selues knowe that these hādes haue ministred vnto my necessyties, & to them that were with me. I haue shewed you all thynges, how ꝑ so labouring ye ought to receaue the weake, & to remēber the woꝛdes of ꝑ Lorde Jesu, how ꝑ he sayd: it is more blessed to geue then to receaue.

And when he had thus spoken, he kneled downe * and prayed with thē all. And they all wepte soꝛe and fell on Pauls necke, and kyssed hym, soꝛowynge, most of all foꝛ the woꝛdes which he spake, that they shulde se hys face nomoꝛe. And they conuayed hym vnto the shyppe.

And whan the seuen dayes were nowe almost ẽded, ỹ Jewes which were of Asia (whẽ they sawe hym in the temple) moued all the people, and layde handes on him, crying: mẽ of Israell, helpe. As they went about to kyll him, tidinges came vnto the hye captayne of the soudyers, that all Jerusalem was moued. Which immediatly toke soudiers ãd vndercaptaynes, and ranne downe vnto them. When they sawe ỹ vpper captayne and the soudiers: they G lefte smytinge of Paul. Then the captayne cam neare and toke hym, and commaunded hym to be bounde with two chaynes, and demaũded what he was, ãd what he had done. And some cryed one thinge, some another amonge the people. ¶ Paul answereth the Jewes. He is scourged, and layde in prison agayne.

A MEn, brethren, and fathers, heare ye myne ãswere which I make nowe vnto you. When they hearde, that he spake in the Hebrue tonge to them, they kept the more sylence. And he sayeth: I am

B And it fortuned (that as I made my iorney and was come nye vnto Damasco about none) sodenly there shone from heauen a greate lyght rounde aboute me, and I fell vnto the earthe, and hearde a voyce
*Actes.ix.a sayinge vnto me: Saul, Saul, why persecutest thou me? And I answered: what arte thou Lorde? And he sayde vnto me: I am Jesus of Nazareth, whom thou persecutest. And they that were wyth me, sawe verely a lyghte, and were afrayde: but they hearde not the voyce of hym that spake with me. And I sayde: what shall I do Lorde? And the Lorde sayde vnto me: Aryse, and go into Damasco, and there it shall be tolde the of all thynges, whych are appoynted for the to do. And whan I sawe nothynge for the bryghtnes of that lyght, I was leade by the hande of them that were wyth me, and came in to Damasco.

C *Actes ix.c * And one Ananias a parfecte man, (and as pertaynynge to the lawe hauynge good reporte of all the Jewes, whych there dwelt) cam vnto me, and stode, and sayde vnto me: Brother Saul, receaue thy lyght. And the same houre I receaued my syghte, and sawe hym. And he sayde: the God of our fathers hath ordeyned the before, that thou shuldest knowe hys wyll, and shuldest heare the voyce of hys mouth: for thou shalt be hys wytnes vnto all men of those thinges, which thou hast sene and heard. They gaue hym audience vnto thys worde, and then lyft vp theyr voyces and sayde: away with soche a felowe from the earth: for it is not reason that he shuld lyue. And as they cryed, and cast of their clothes, and threw dust into the ayer, the captayne commaunded hym to be brought into the castle, and bad that he shulde be scourged, and to be examined, that he might knowe, wherfore they cryed so on hym. And whan they bounde hym wyth thonges, Paul sayde vnto the Centurion, that stode by him: Is it lawful for you to scourge a man that is a Romayn and vncondempned? When the Centurion hearde that, he went and tolde the vpper captayne, saying: What intendest thou to do? For thys man is ✱ (a cytezen) of Rome. ✱a

Then the vpper captayne cam, and sayd vnto him: tell me, art thou a Romayne? He sayd: Yee. And the captayne answered, with E a great some obtayned I thys fredom. And Paul sayd: I was fre borne. Then strayght waye departed from hym they which shulde haue examyned hym. And the hye captayne also was afrayde, after he knewe that he was a Romayne, and because he had bounde hym.

On the morowe (because he wolde haue knowen the certentye wherfore he was accused of the Jewes) he losed hym from hys bondes, and commaunded the hye prestes and all the counsell to come together and * brought *Actes.xxiij.f Paul forth, & set hym before thẽ.

When Paul perceaued that the one parte were Saduces, and the other Pharises, he cryed out in the councell: Men and brethren,

* Philip.iij.a * Act.xxiij.c. and.xxvj.b * I am a Pharisey, the sonne of a Pharisey. ‡ Of the hope and resurrecyon from death, I am iudged.

And there arose a greate crye: and whan the Scrybes which were of the Phariseyes parte arose, they stroue saying: we fynde none euyll in thys man. Though a spyrite or an angell hath apeared to hym, let vs not stryue agaynst God.

C And when there arose greate debate, the captayne (fearyng, lest Paul shulde haue bene pluckte a sondre of them) commaunded the soudyers to go downe, and to take hym from amonge them, and to bryng hym into the castell.

* Actes.xxv.b and.xxviij.c * The nyght folowynge, God stode by hym, and sayde: be of good cheare Paul: for ‡ Act.xxiij.b as thou hast testifyed of me in Jerusalem ‡ so must thou beare wytnesse also at Rome. And whan it was daye, certayne of the Jewes gathered them selues togeather, and made a vowe, sayinge: that they wolde nether eate nor dryncke, tyll they had kylled Paul. They were moo then fourtye men, which had made thys conspiracyon. And they came to the chefe prestes and elders, ād sayde: we haue bounde oure selues with a vowe, that we wyll eate nothynge, vntyll we haue slayne Paul.

D Nowe therfore gene ye knowledge to the vpper captayne and to the councell, that he bryng hym forth vnto vs to morowe, as though we wold knowe some thyng more perfectly of him. But we (or euer he come neare) are redy to kyll hym.

Whan Pauls systers sonne hearde of theyr layinge awayte, he went, and entred into the castell, and tolde Paul. And Paul called one of the vnder captaynes vnto him and sayde: bryng thys younge man vnto the hye captayne: for he hath a certayne thynge to shewe hym. And he toke hym and brought hym to the hye captayne, and sayd: Paul the presoner called me vnto hym, and prayed me to bryng thys younge man vnto the, whych hath a certayne matter to shewe the.

E The hye captayne toke hym by the hand, and went with him out of the waye, and asked hī: what is yt that thou hast to tell me? And he sayde: the Jewes are determyned to desyre the, that thou woldest bryng forth Paul to morow into the counsell, as though they wolde enquyre somwhat of hym more perfectly. But folowe not thou theyr myndes: for there lye in wayte for hym of them, moo then fourtye men, which haue bounde them selues with a vowe, that they will nether eate nor drynke, tyll they haue kylled hym. And now are they redy, and loke that thou shuldest promes.

The vpper captayne then let the younge F man departe, and charged hym, sayinge: se thou, tell it oute to no man, that thou hast shewed these thynges to me: And he called vnto hym two vnder captaynes sayinge: make ready two hundred soudiers to go to Cesarea, and horsmen threscore, and ten: and speare men two hundred, at the thyrde houre of the nyghte. And delyuer them beastes, that they maye sett Paul on, and bryng hym safe vnto Felix the hye debyte ¤* (for he dyd feare lest happlye the Jewes shulde take hym awaye and kyll hym, and he hym selfe shulde be afterwarde blamed, as though he wolde take money,) and he wrote a letter after thys maner. *c

On the morow they left the horsmen to go with hym, and returned vnto the castle. Whych when they came to Cesarea, (and delyuered the epistle to the debyte) presented Paul also before him. ## ¶ The.xxv.Chapter.

¶ The Jewes accuse Paul before Festus, he appealeth vnto the Emperour, and is sent vnto Rome.

W HEn Festus had receaued the of- A fyce, after thre dayes, he ascended from Cesarea vnto Jerusalem. Then enformed hī the hye prestes and the chefe of the Jewes, of Paul. And they besought hym, and desyred fauour agaynst hym, that he wolde sende for hym to Jerusalem: and they layde awayte for hym in the waye, to kyll hym. Festus answered, that Paul shulde be kept at Cesarea. but that he hym selfe wold shortly departe thyther. Let them therfore (sayde he) which among you are able, come downe with vs, and accuse hym, yf there be any fawte in the man.

B When he had tarryed there amonge them more then ten dayes, he wente downe vnto Cesarea and the nexte daye sat downe in the iudgement seate, and commaunded Paul to be brought. Which when he was come, the Jewes which were come from Jerusalem, stode aboute hym, and layde many and greuous complayntes agaynst Paul, whych they coulde not proue, as lōge as he answered for hym self* that he had nether agaynst the lawe of the Jewes, nether agaynst the temple, nor yet agaynst Cesar offended any C thynge at all.

* Act.xxiiij.c and.xxviij.d

* Act.xxiiij.f Festus * wyllynge to do the Jewes a pleasure, answered Paul, and sayde: wylt thou go vp to Jerusalem, and there be iudged of these thynges before me? Then sayde Paul: I stande at Cesares iudgement seate, where I ought to be iudged. To the Jewes haue I no harme done, as thou very well knowest. If I haue hurte them, or committed any thyng worthy of death, I refuse not to dye. If noone of these thynges are, where of they accuse me, no man maye delyuer me to them, I appeale vnto Cesar. Then spake Festus with deliberacyon, and answered: Thou hast appealed vnto Cesar: vnto Cesar shalt thou go.

D And after a certayne dayes, kinge Agrippa and Bernice came vnto Cesarea to salute Festus. And whan they had bene there a good season, Festus rehearsed Paules cause vnto the kynge, sayinge: * there is a certayne man lefte in prison of Felix, aboute ‡ Act.xxiiij.a. whom whan I came to Jerusalem, ‡ the hye prestes and elders of the Jewes enfourmed E me, and desyred to haue iudgement agaynst hym. To whom I answered: It is not the maner of the Romaynes, for fauoure to delyuer any man, that he shulde perysshe, before that he which is accused, haue the accusars before hym, and haue lycence to answere for hym selfe, concernynge the cryme layde agaynst hym. Therfore, whan they were come hyther, without any delaye, on the morowe I sate to geue iudgment, and commaunded the man to be brought forth.

* Act.xxiiij.k. Agaynst whom, whan the accusars stode vp, * they brought noone accusacion of soch thynges as I supposed: but had certen questions agaynst hym of their awne superstition, and of one Jesus which was deed, whō Paul affyrmed to be alyue. And because I douted of soche maner of questions, I asked F hym, whether he wolde go to Jerusalem, and there be iudged of these matters. But whan Paul had appealed to be kepte vnto the knowledge of Cesar, I commmaunded hym to be kepte, tyll I myght sende hym to Cesar. Agripa sayde vnto Festus: I wolde also heare the man my selfe. To morowe, (sayde he) thou shalt heare hym. And on the morowe whan Agripa was come and Bernice, with greate pompe, and were entred in G to the councell house, with the captaynes ād chefe men of the cytie, at Festus commaundement was Paul brought forth. And Festus sayde: kyng Agripa, & all ye men which are heare present with vs, ye se this man, about whom all the multitude of the Jewes haue intreated me, both at Jerusalem and also here crytnge, that he ought not to lyue any lenger. Yet founde I nothyng worthy of death, that he had committed. Neuertheles, seyng that he hath appealed to Cesar, I haue determined to sende hym. Of whom I haue no certayne thyng to write vnto my lord. Wherfore, I haue brought hym vnto you, and specially vnto the: O kynge Agripa, that after examinacyon had, I myght haue sum what to wryte. For me thinketh it vnreasonable, for to sende a presoner, and not to shewe the causes which are layde agaynst hym.

¶ The.xxvj. Chapter.

A Gryppa sayde vnto Paul: ỹ A art permytted to speake for thy selfe. Then Paul stretched forth the hand, and answered for hym selfe. I thinke my self happy kīg Agrippa, because I shall answere this daye before the, of all the thinges wherof, I am accused of ỹ Jewes: namely, because thou arte experte in all customes and questions, which are among the Jewes. Wherfore I beseche the, to heare me pacyently.

B Why lyuynge that I haue lead of a chylde (which was at the fyrst among myne awne nacion at Jerusalem) knowe all the Jewes, which knewe me from the begynnynge, yf they wolde testyfye. For * after the moost * Phili.iij.a strayteste secte of our religion, I lyued a pharisey. And now I stande and am iudged for ‡ Actes xxiiij. the hope of the promes made of God vnto xxvj.prouer.a oure father: vnto which promes our twelue tribes (instantly seruyng God daye & nyght) hope to come. For which hopes sake, kynge Agrippa, I am accused of the Jewes. Why C shulde it be thought a thynge incredyble vnto you, ỹ God shulde rayse agayne the deed? I also verely thought in my selfe, that I ought to do many contrary thynges, cleane agaynst the name of Jesus of Nazareth: * *Actes viij.a which thynge I also dyd in Jerusalem. And xxvj.a.xxvij.a many ỹ 1.Cor.xv.b Gala.ij.c

many of the sayntes dyd I shut vp in prison, and had receaued auctorite of the hye Prestes. And when they were put to deeth. I gaue the sentence. And I punished them ofte in euery synagoge, and compelled them to blaspheme: and was yet more mad vpon them, and persecuted them, euen vnto straunge cyties. About which thinges as I wēt to Damasco wyth auctorite and licence of the hye Prestes, euē at myddaye. (O kyng) I sawe in the waye a lyght from heauen aboue the brightnes of the sonne shyne rounde about me, and them whych iorneyed wyth me.

D When we were all fallen to the erthe, I *Actes.xxvj.a and.xxvij.c heard a voyce speakynge vnto me, & saying in the Hebrue tonge: * Saul, Saul, why persecutest thou me? It is harde for the to kicke agaynst the prickes. And I sayd: Who art thou Lorde? And he sayde: I am Jesus whom thou persecutest, but ryse and stand vp on thy fete. For I haue appeared vnto ỹ for thys purpose, to make ỹ a minister and a witnes both of those thynges whych ỹ hast sene, & of those thynges in the which I will appeare vnto the, delyuerynge the from the people, and from the gentyls, vnto whom now I sende the, to opē their eyes, that they maye be turned from darcknes to light, and from the power of Satan vnto God, that they maye receaue forgeuenes of synnes, and inheritaunce amōge them whych are sanctified by fayth that is toward me.

E Wherfore (O kynge Agryppa) I was not disobedient vnto the heauenly vysyon: but shewed fyrst vnto them of Damasco, ād at Jerusalem, and thorow out all the coastes of Jewry, and then to the gentyls, that they shuld repent, and turne to God, and do soch workes as become them that repent. For thys cause the Jewes caught me in the temple, and went about to kyll me. Seyng therfore that I haue obtained helpe of God: I contynew vnto thys daye, wytnessinge bothe to small & to great, saying none other thynges, then those whych the prophetes ād Moses dyd saye shuld come: that Christ shulde suffer, and that he shulde be the fyrst that shuld ryse from deth, and shuld shewe lyght vnto the people, and to the gentyls. As he thus spake for hym selfe: Festus sayde with F a loude voyce: Paul, ỹ art besyde thy selfe. Moch learnynge doth make the madd. And Paul sayde: I am not mad (most deare Festus) but speake forth the wordes of trueth and soberues. For ỹ kynge knoweth of these thynges, before whō also I speake frely: nether thynke I that eny of these thynges are hydden from him. For thys thynge was not done in a corner. Kynge Agrippa beleuest thou the Prophetes? I wote well that thou beleuest: Agrippa sayde vnto Paul: Sum- what thou byrngest me in mynde for to become Chrysten. And Paul sayde: I wolde to God that not onely thou: but also all that heare me to daye were, not somwhat onely, but all together, soch as I am, except these bondes. And when he had thus spoken, the kynge rose vp, and the debite, and Bernice, and they that sate with thē. And when they were gone aparte, they talked betwene thē selues, sayinge. Thys man doeth nothyng worthy of deeth, or of bondes. Then sayde Agrippa vnto Festus. Thys man myght haue bene let loose, yf he had not appealed vnto Cesar.

¶ The.xxvij. Chapter.

When it was concluded, ỹ we A shuld sayle into Italy they delyuered both Paul & certayne other presoners, vnto one named Julius, an vnder captayne of Cesars soudiars. And we entred into a shypp of Adramicium, and loosed from land, apoynted to sayle by the coastes of Asia, one *Aristarcus out of Macedonia, of the con- *Colo.iiij.a tre of Thessalonia tarryinge styll with vs. And ỹ nexte daye we came to Sidō. And Julius * courteously entreated Paul, and gaue *Jer.xl.c. him lyberte, to go vnto his frēdes, & to refresh Actes.xxvij.c the hym selfe. And whan we had launched from thence, we sayled harde by Cypers, because the wyndes were cōtrarye. And whan we had sayled ouer ỹ see of Cylicia, & Pamphilia, we cam to Myra whych is in Lycia.

And there the vndercaptayne founde a B shyppe of Alexandria ready, that sayled into Italy, and he put vs therin. And when we had sayled slowly many dayes, and scace were come ouer agaynst Gnydon (because the wynde wyth stode vs) we sayled harde by the coaste of Candy, ouer agaynst Salmo, and wyth moche worke sayled beyonde it, & came vnto a place which is called the fayre hauēs. Nye wher vnto was the cytie of Lasea when moche tyme was spent, and whan sayling was now ieoperdous, because also that they had ouerlonge fasted, Paul put thē in remembraunce, and sayd vnto thē: Syrs I perceaue, that thys viage wilbe wyth hurte and moche damage, not of the ladynge ād shypp onely, but also of your lyues: Neuerthelesse ỹ vnder captayne beleued ỹ gouerner & ỹ master of ỹ shypp more then those thynges C whych were spoke of Paul. And because the hauē was not cōmodious to wynter in, many toke coūsell to departe thēce, yf by eny meanes they myght attayne to Phenices & there to wynter, whych is an hauen of Candy, and lyeth toward the southwest and northwest wynde. When the south wynde blewe, they supposynge to obtayne their purpose, loosed vnto Asson, and sayled past all Candy.

But not long after, ther arose agaynst theyr purpose, a flawe of wynde out of the D northeast. And when the shyp was caught & could not resyst ỹ wynde, we let her go, and draue with ỹ wether. But we were caryed ☞ vnto an yle whych is named Clauda, and had moche worke to come by a bote, whych they toke vp, and vsed helpe, & made fast ỹ shyppe, fearinge, lest they should fall ☞ into the Syrtes. And so they let downe a vessell, ād were caryed. The nexte daye) whē we were tossed wyth an exceadinge tēpest) they lyghtened the shyp, and the thyrde daye we cast out wyth oure awne handes the takelynge of the shippe. Whē at the last, nether the sunne nor starres in many dayes appeared, and no small tempest laye vpō vs, all hope that we should escape, was then takē awaye. But after longe abstynence, Paul stode forth in the myddes of them, & sayde: Syrs, ye shulde haue harkened to me, and not haue loosed from Cādy, nether to haue brought vnto vs thys harme & losse. And now I exhorte you to be of good chere. For ther shalbe no losse of eny mās lyfe amonge you, saue of the shippe onely. For ther stode by me thys nyght ỹ angell of God, whose I am, and whō I serue,

And whē they had gone a lytell further, they sounded agayne, and foūde. xv. feddoms. Then fearynge lest they should haue fallē on some rocke, they cast. iiij. ancres out of the sterne, and wyshed for the daye. As the shypmen were about to flee out of the shyp (whan they had let downe ỹ bote into the see, vndēr a couloure, as though they wolde haue cast ancres out of the forshippe) Paul sayde vnto the vndercaptayne and to the soudyers: excepte these abyde in the shyp
F ye cannot be safe. Then the soudyers cut of ỹ rope of the bote, and let it fall awaye.

And whan the daye beganne to appeare, Paul besought them all to take meate, sayinge: thys is the fourtenth daye, that ye haue tarryed and contynued fastynge, receauynge nothig at all. Wherfore, I praye you to take meate: for this no dout is for youre helth: for

We were all together in the shyp, two hundred threscore and fyrtene soules. And whē they had eaten ynough, they lyghtened the shyp, and cast out the wheate in to the see.

When it was daye, they knew not the G lande, but they spyed a certayne hauen with a bancke, into the whych they were mynded (if it were possyble) to thrust in ỹ shyp. And when they had taken vp the ancres, they cōmitted them selues vnto the see, and lowsed the rudder bondes and hoysed vp the mayne sayle to the wynde, and drue to lande. And whan they chaunced on a place, whych had the see on both the sydes, they thrust in the shyp. And the forepart stucke fast and moued not, but the hynder parte brake wyth ỹ violence of the waues.

The Soudyars councell was to kyll the presoners, lest eny of them, when he had swome out, shulde ronne awaye. But the vndercaptayne wyllinge to saue Paul, kept them from theyr purpose, and commaunded that they whych coulde swymme, shulde cast thē selues fyrst into the see, and scape to lande. And the other he commaunded to go, some on bordes, and some on broken peces of the shyp. And so it came to passe, that they escaped all safe to lande.

And when we departed, they laded vs wt soch thynges as were necessary.

After thre monethes we departed in a shyp of Alexādry, whych had wyntred in the yle,

¶ The fyrst Chapter.

¶ Paul declareth hys loue towarde the Romaynes, sheweth what the Gospell is, wyth the frute therof, and rebuketh the beastlynes of the hethen.

Aul the seruaunt of Jesus Chryst called to the office of an Apostle * put a parte for ỹ Gospell of God * whych he had promysed afore by hys Prophetes in the holy scriptures of hys sonne, whych was borne * (vnto dyms) * of the seed of Dauid after the fleshe: and hath bene declared to be the sonne of God w̄ power, after ỹ spyrete that sanctifyeth, sence the tyme that Jesus Chryst oure Lorde rose agayne from deeth * by whom we haue receaued grace & Apostleshyp, that obedience myght be geuen vnto the fayth in hys name amonge all heathen, of whose nombre you be, the electe of Jesu Chryst. ✠

To all you that be at Rome, beloued of God and sayntes by electyon. * Grace be w̄ you and peace from God oure father, & from the Lorde Jesus Chryst.

Fyrst verely I thāke my God thorow Jesus Chryst for you all, that youre fayth is spoken of in all the worlde. For God is my wytnes) whom I serue. * wyth my spyrete in the Gospell of hys sonne (that wythout ceasynge I make mencyon of you prayynge alwayes * in my prayers, that by some meane, at the last (one tyme or other) a prosperous iorney (by the wyll of God) myght fortune me, to come vnto you. For I longe to se you, that I myght bestowe amōge you some spyrituall gyfte, to strengthy you withall: that is, that I myght haue consolacyō together wyth you, through the cōmen fayth wherych both ye and I haue.

I wolde that ye shuld knowe (brethrē) how that I haue often tymes purposed to come vnto you * but haue bene let hitherto) * to haue some frute also amōge you, as amōg other of the Gētyls. I am detter both to the Grekes and to the vngrekes, to the learned and to the vnlearned. So that (as moch as in me is) I am redy to preach the Gospell to you that are at Rome also. * For I am not ashamed of the Gospell of Chryst, because * it is the power of God vnto saluacyō to euery one that beleueth, to the Jewe fyrst, & also to the Gentyle.

For by it is the ryghteweines of God opened from fayth to fayth. As it is writtē * the iust shall lyue by fayth.

For the wrath of God apeareth from heauen agaynst all vngodlynes and vnryghteweines of men, whych withholde the trueth in vnrighteweines: seynge * that it whych maye be knowen of God, is manyfest amōge them because God hath shewed it vnto thē. * For hys inuysyble thinges (ỹ is to saye hys eternall power ad godhed) are sene, for as moch as they are vnderstande * by the workes from the creacyō of the worlde: So that they are wythout excuse because that when they knewe God, they glorifyed hym not as God, nether were thankfull but wexed full of vanities in theyr imaginacions, * and theyr folysh hert was blynded. When they counted them selues wyse, they became fooles * and turned the glory of the immortall God, vnto an ymage, made not onely after the symilitude of a mortall man but also of byrdes, & foure foted * beastes & of crepig beastes. Wherfore, God gaue thē vp, to vnclēnes, thorow the lustes of their awne hartes to defyle their awne bodyes amonge thē selues: whych chaunged hys truthe for a lye, and worshypped and serued the thinges that be made, more then hym that made them, which is to be praysed for euer. Amen. Wherfore, God gaue them vp vnto shamefull lustes: * For euen their wemen dyd chaunge the naturall vse in to that whych is agaynst nature. And lyke wyse also the men, lefte ỹ natural vse of the woman, and brēt in their lustes one wyth another, * men wyth men wrought fylthynes, and receaued to thē selues the rewarde of theyr errour, as it was accordynge.

And as they regarded not to knowe God * euen so God delyuered them vp vnto a lewde mynde, that they shulde do those thynges whych were not comly, beyng full of all vnryghteousnesse, fornicacyon, wyckednes, couetousnes, malicyousnes, full of enuye murther, debate, disceyte, cuyll condicyoned, whysperers, backbyters, haters of God, dyspytefull, proude, boasters, bringers vp of euyll thynges, disobedyent to father and mother, wythout vnderstandynge, couenaunte breakers, vnlouynge, treucebreakers, vnmercyfull. Which men, though they knew the ryghteweines of God, (considered not) how that they which commyt soche thynges, are worthy of deeth, not only (they that) do the same * but also (they which) haue pleasure in them that do them.

¶ The .ij. Chapter.

¶ He rebuketh the Jewes, whych as touchynge lyuynge are lyke the Heathen.

Therfore art thou inexcusable. O mā, whosoeuer thou be that * iudgest For i that same wherin thou iudgest another * thou condēnest thy selfe. For thou that iudgest, doest euen the same selfe thynges. But we are sure, that the iudgement of God is according to trueth, agaynst them whych cōmyt soche thynges. Thynkest thou thys, O thou man that iudgest them whych do soche thynges, and doest euen the very same thy selfe, that thou shalt escape the iudgement of God? Ether despysest thou the ryches of hys goodnes, and pacyence and longe sufferaunce, not knowyng * that ỹ kyndnes of God leadeth the to repentaunce?

But thou after thy stubburnesse, and hert that cannot repent, heapest vnto thy selfe wrath agaynst ỹ daye of vengeaunce, when shalbe opened the ryghtewes iudgement of God, * which wyll reward euery mā accordynge to hys dedes: that is to saye, prayse, honoure and immortalite, to them whych contynue in good doyng, and seke immortalite. But vnto them that are rebelles, and that do not obey the trueth, but folowe vnryghteousnes, shall come indignacyon and wrath, tribulacyon and angupsshe vpon the soule of euery mā that doth euyll: of ỹ Jewe fyrst, and also of the Gētyle. To euery man that doth good, shall come prayse, and honoure, and peace, to the Jewe fyrst, and also to the Gentyll. For * ther is no respecte of parsonnes, with God. For whosoeuer hath synned wythout lawe, shall also perysshe without lawe. And as many as haue synned in the lawe, shalbe iudged by the lawe. For in the syght of God, they * are not ryghteous which heare the lawe: but the doers of the lawe shalbe iustifyed. For whan the Gētyls which haue not the lawe, do of nature the thynges contayned in the lawe: then they haue not the lawe, are a lawe vnto themselues, which shew the dede of the lawe wrytten in theyr hertes: whyll theyr conscience beareth wytnes vnto them, and also theyr thoughtes, accusynge one another or excusynge, at the daye * when the Lord shall iudge the secretes of mē by Jesus Chryst, according to my Gospell.

Beholde, * thou art called a Jewe, and trustest in the lawe, and makest thy boast of God, and knowest his wyll, and alowest the thynges that be excellent, and art informed by the lawe: and beleuest that thou thy selfe art a gyde of the blynde, a lyght of thē which are in darcknes, an informer of them which lacke discrecyon, a teacher of the vnlearned, which hast ỹ ensample of knowledge, & of ỹ truthe by ỹ lawe. Thou therfore which teachest another, teachest not thy selfe * Thou preachest, a man shulde not steale: yet thou stealest. Thou that sayst, a man shuld not cōmyt aduoutry, breakest wedlocke. Thou abhorrest ymages, and yet robbest God of his honoure. Thou that makest thy boast of the lawe, thorow breakynge the lawe dishonourest God. For the name of God is cuyll spoken of amonge the Gentyls, thorow you * as it is wrytten.

For circumcisyon verely auayleth, yf thou kepe the lawe. But yf thou be a breaker of the lawe, thy circumcisyō is turned to vncircumcisyō. Therfore, yf the vncircumcised kepe ỹ ryght thynges cōtayned in the lawe, shall not his vncircumcisyon be counted for circumcisyon? And shall not vncircumcisyon which is by nature (yf it kepe the lawe) iudge the, whych beynge vnder the letter and circūcisyon, doest trāsgresse the lawe? For he is not a Jewe, which is a Jewe outwarde. Neither is it circumcisyon, which is outwarde in the fleshe. But * he is a Jewe which is hyd wythin, and * the circumcisyon of the herte is the true circumcisyon, whych consisteth in the spyrete and not in the letter: whose prayse is not of men, but of God.

¶ The .iij. Chapter.

¶ He shewe th what prefermēt the Jewes haue, and that both the Jewes and Gentyls are vnder synne, and are iustifyed only by the grace of God in Christ.

What prefermēt then hath ỹ Jewe? or what aduauntage is circumcisyon? Surely very moch. First * because ỹ vnto them were committed ỹ wordes of God. What then though some of them dyd not beleue? * shall theyr vnbeleue make the promes of God without effecte? God forbyd * Let God be true, and * euery man a lyar, as it is wrytten: * ỹ thou myghtest be iustifyed in thy sayynges, and ouercome, when thou art iudged.

But yf oure vnryghteweines make ỹ ryghteweines of God more excellent: what shall we saye? Is God vnryghteous, which taketh vengeaunce? I speake after the maner of mē: God forbyd. For how then shall God iudge the worlde? For yf the trueth of God appeare more excellent thorow my lye, vnto his prayse, why am I hence forth iudged as a synner: and not rather (as mē speake euyll of vs, and as some affyrme that we saye) let vs do euyll, that good maye come therof. Whose damnacyon is iuste.

¶ What then? Are we better then they? No, in no wyse. For we haue all ready proued, how that both Iewes and Gentyls are all vnder synne, as it is wrytten. *there is none ryghteous, no not one: there is none that vnderstandeth, there is none that seketh after God: they are all gone out of the waye, they are all vnprofytable, ther is none that doeth good, no not one. * Theyr throte is an open sepulcre, with theyr tōges they haue disceaued: the poyson of aspes is vnder theyr lyppes. * Whose mouth is full of cursynge and bytternes. * Their fete are swyfte to shed bloud. * Destruccyon and wretchednes are in theyr wayes, and the waye of peace haue they not knowē. * There is no feare of God before theyr eyes.

✠ We knowe that what thynges soeuer ỹ lawe sayth, it sayth it to thē which are vnder ỹ lawe. That all mouthes maye be stopped, & that all the worlde maye be subdued to God, because ỹ * by the dedes of the lawe ther shall no flesshe be iustifyed in hys syght. For by ỹ lawe cōmeth ỹ knowledge of synne.

☞ But now is ☞ ỹ ryghteousnes of God declared wythout the lawe, for asmoch as it is alowed by the testimonye of ỹ lawe and of ỹ Prophetes. Ther ryghteousnes of God, commeth by the fayth of Jesus Christ, vnto all and vpon all them that beleue. *(on hym.)

D There is no difference: for all haue synned, and are destitute of the glorye of God: but ‡are iustifyed freely by his grace, through the redemptyon that is in Christ Jesu, whom God hath set forth * to be the obtayner of mercy thorow fayth, by the meanes of hys bloude, to declare hys ryghteousnes, in that he forgeueth the synnes ỹ are passed, whych God dyd suffre, to shewe at thys tyme hys ryghteousnes, that he might be counted iust, and the iustifyar of hym whych beleueth on Jesus. ✠

Where is then thy reioysynge? It is excluded. By what lawe? of workes? Naye: but by the lawe of fayth.

Therfore we holde, that * a man is iustifyed by fayth without the dedes of the lawe: Is he the God of the Iewes onely? Is he not also the God of the Gentyls? Yes, euen of the Gētyls also. For it is God only which iustifyeth the circumcisyon that is of fayth, and vncircumcisyon thorow fayth. Do we then destroye the lawe thorow fayth? God forbyd. But we rather maintayne the lawe.

¶ The.iiij. Chapter.

¶ He declareth by the example of Abrahām, that fayth iustifyeth, and not the lawe, nor the workes therof.

What shall we saye then, that A * Abrahām oure father (as *Gala.iij.a pertaynynge to the flesshe) dyd fynde? If Abrahā were iustyfyed by dedes, then hath he wherin to reioyce: but not wt God. For what sayth the scripture? † Abrahā beleued God, †Gene.xv.b and it was counted vnto him for ryghteous- Gala.iij.a
nes. To hym that worketh, is the rewarde Iacob.ii.d not reckned of fauoure, but of dutye. ☞ To ☞
hym that worketh not, but beleueth on him that iustifyeth the vngodly, is his fayth counted for ryghteousnes. ↜* (according to the purpose of the grace of God) Euen as Dauid describeth the blessednes of that man, vnto whom God imputeth ryghteousnes wythout dedes. * Blessed are they, whose vnryghteousnes are forgeuen, and whose synnes are couered. Blessed is that man, to whom the Lorde wyll not impute synne.

Came this blessednes then vpō the vncircumcisyon, or vpon the circumcisyon also? For we saye, that fayth was reckened to Abrahā for ryghteousnes. How was it then reckened? whan he was in the circumcisyon? or whan he was in the vncircumcysyon? *Not in ỹ tyme of circumcisyon: but when *Gene.xv.b.
he was yet vncircumcised. And he receaued the *sygne of circumcisyon, as a seale of the *Gen.xvij.b
ryghteousnes of fayth, whych he had yet beynge vncircumcysed, that he shulde be the father of all them that beleue, though they be not circumcised, that ryghteousnes myght be imputed to them also: and that he myght be father of circumcisyon, not vnto thē onely whych came of the circumcised, but vnto thē also that walke in the steppes of the fayth ỹ was in oure father Abrahām, before the tyme of circumcisyon.

For the promes (that he shuld be the heyre of ỹ worlde) happened not to Abrahā or to his seed thorow ỹ lawe: but thorow ỹ ryghteousnes of fayth. * For yf they which are of ỹ lawe, be heyres, then is fayth but vayne and the promes of none effecte. Because the lawe causeth wrath. For where no lawe is, there is no transgressyon. Therfore by fayth is the inheritaūce geuen, that it myght come of fauoure: that the promes myght be sure ☞ to all the seed. Not to them onely which ☞ are of the lawe: but to them also which are of the fayth of Abrahām, *which is the father *Esa.li.a of vs all. (As it is wrytten: ‡ I haue made ỹ ‡Gene.xvij.a a father of many nacyons) euen before God, whom he beleued, which restoreth the deed vnto lyfe: and calleth those thynges which be not, as though they were.

Which Abrahā, cōtrary to hope, beleued in hope, that he shulde be the * father of many nacyons, according to that which was spoken: †euen so shall thy seed be. ↜* (as the stares of res of heauen, and the sonde of the see.) And he faynted not in the fayth, nor yet consydered his awne body which was now deed, euen when he was almost an hōdred yeare olde: nether yet that Sara was past childeberinge. He stackered not at the promes of God thorow vnbelefe: but became stronge in fayth, and gaue God the prayse, beynge full certifyed, that he which had promised the same was able also to make it good. And therfore was it reckened to hym for ryghteousnes.

*Rom.a.v.a * Neuertheles it is not wrytten for hym onely, that it was reckened to hym (for ryghteousnes:) but also for vs, to whom it shalbe counted (for ryghteousnes,) so ỹ we beleue on hym, ỹ raysed vp Jesus oure Lorde from the deed: which was delyuered for oure synnes, and was rayfed agayne for oure iustificacyon.

¶ The.v. Chapter.

¶ The power of fayth, hope and loue and how death raygned from Adā vnto Christ, by whome onely we haue forgeuenesse of synnes.

A *John.xvi.g
Because therfore that we are iustifyed by fayth, we are at * peace with God, thorow oure Lorde Jesus Christ: by whom also it chaunsed vnto vs to be brought in thorow fayth, vnto thys grace, wherin we stande, and ☞ ☞ reioyce in hope of ỹ glorye ↜ (of the chyldre) *Heb.iii.a of God. Not that onely: but also we reioyce ↜ in tribulacyons: knowyng that * tribula- *Iaco.i.a
cyon bryngeth pacience, pacience bryngeth experience, experience bryngeth hope. And hope maketh not ashamed: because the loue of God is sheed abroad in oure hertes, by the holy ghost whych is geuen vnto vs.

*Ephe.ii.a For * when we were yet weake, accorCol.i.c.‡.ii.c

out his loue toward vs, seynge ỹ whyll we ↜* were yet synners ↜* (according to the tyme) Christ B dyed for vs. Moch more then now (we that are iustifyed by hys bloud) shall be saued frō wrath thorow hym.

For yf when we were enemyes, we were reconcyled to God by the deeth of hys sonne: moch more, seynge we are reconcyled, we shalbe preserued by hys lyfe. Not onely this, but we also ioye in God by the meanes of oure Lorde Jesus Christ, by whom we haue now optayned the attonement.

C Wherfore, as by one man, synne entred in- *Gene.iii.c
to the worlde, and * deeth by the meanes of Roma.vi.d
synne. Euen so deeth also went ouer all men, in so moch as all we haue synned. For euen vnto ỹ lawe was synne in ỹ worlde, but synne is not imputed, when ther is no lawe: neuertheles deeth raygned frō Adam to Moses, euen ouer thē also ỹ had not synned wyth ☞ lyke transgressiō as dyd Adā: which ☞ bereth the similitude of him that was to come.

But the gyfte is not lyke as ỹ synne. For yf thorow the synne of one, many be deed: moche more plenteous vpon many was the *John.i.b
grace of God & gyfte by grace: * ☞ which ☞ was of one man Jesus Christ.

And ỹ gyfte is not ouer one synne: as deeth cam thorow one synne of one ỹ synned. For damnacyon came of one synne vnto cōdemnacyon: but ỹ gyft came to iustify frō many synnes. For yf by the synne of one, deeth D raygned by the meanes of one: moch more they (which receaue aboundance of grace and of the gyfte of ryghteousnes) shall raygne in lyfe by the meanes of one (that is to saye) Jesus Christ.

✠ Lykewyse then as by the synne of one there sprang vp euell on all men to condemnacyon: euen so by the ryghteousnes of one, springeth good vpon all men to the ryghteousnes of lyfe. For as by one mannes disobedience many became synners: so by the obedīēce of one, shall many be made ryghteous. But * the lawe in ỹ meane tyme entred in, *Gala.iij.c that synne shuld encreace. Neuertheles ther where aboundance of synne was, there was more plenteousnes of grace. That as synne had raygned vnto deeth, euen so myght grace raygne thorow ryghteousnes, vnto eternall lyfe, by the helpe of Jesu Christ. ✠

¶ Forasmoch as we be delyuered thorow Christ from synne, we muste fassyon oure selues to lyue as the seruauntes of God, and not after oure awne lustes. The vnlykely rewarde of ryghteousnesse and synne.

What shall we saye then? Shall A we contynue in synne, that there maye be aboundance of grace? God forbyd. How shall we that are deed as touchyng synne, lyue *Gala.ii.d eny lenger therin? ✠ Knowe ye not that Collo.ii.b.
* all we which are baptysed into Jesu Christe are baptysed to dye wyth him? We are buryed then with him by baptyme, for to dye: that lykewyse as Christ was rayfed vp frō *Ephe.iiij.a deeth by the glorye of ỹ father, euen so * we also shulde walke in a newe lyfe. For yf we be graft in deeth lyke vnto hym: euen so shall we be partakers of the resurrecyon: knowyng thys, that oure olde man is crucifyed with hym also, that the body of synne myght vtterly be destroyed, ỹ hence forth we shuld not be seruauntes vnto synne. For he that is deed, is iustifyed from synne.

Wherfore * yf we be deed wt Christ, we B beleue, ỹ we shall also lyue with hym: knowyng, that Christ beyng rayfed from deeth, *2.Tim.ii.b ‡dyeth nomore. Deeth hath nomore power ouer hym. For as touchynge that he dyed, he dyed concernynge synne once. And as touchynge that he lyueth, he lyueth vnto God. ‡Apoc.i.a

Lykewyse

Lykewyse consydre ye also, that ye are deed as touchyng synne, but are alyue vnto God thorow Jesus Christ oure Lorde. ✠ Let not synne raygne therfore in youre mortall bodye, that ye shulde ther vnto obey by the lustes of it. Nether geue ye youre membres as instrumentes of vnryghteweslnes vnto synne: but geue ouer your selues vnto God as they that of deed, are alyue. And geue ouer youre membres as instrumentes of ryghteweslnes vnto God. For synne shall not haue power ouer you. Because ye are not vnder the lawe, but vnder grace.

What then? Shall we synne, because we are not vnder ỹ lawe: but vnder grace? God forbyd. ✠ Knowe ye not, how that * to whom soeuer ye commit youre selues as seruaũtes to obey, hys seruaũtes ye are to whõ ye obey: whether it be of synne vnto deeth, or of obediẽce vnto ryghteweslnes? God be thãked, that though ye were the seruauntes of synne, ye haue yet obeyed with herte vnto ỹ rule of the doctryne, that ye be brought vnto. * Ye are then made fre frõ synne, and are become the seruauntes of ryghteweslnes. ✠ I speake grossly, because of the infirmytie of youre flesshe. As ye haue geuen youre mẽbers seruauntes to vnclennes and to iniquitye, (from one iniquitye to another) euen so now geue ouer youre membres seruauntes vnto ryghteweslnes, that ye maye be sanctifyed. For whẽ ye were the seruaũtes of synne, ye were voyde of ryghteweslnes. What frute had ye then in those thynges, wherof ye are now ashamed. For the ende of those thynges, is deeth. But now are ye delyuered frõ synne, & made the seruaũtes of God, and haue youre frute to be sanctifyed, and ỹ ende euerlastynge lyfe. For * ỹ rewarde of synne is deeth. but eternall lyfe is ỹ gyfte of God, thorow Jesus Christ oure Lorde. ✠

¶ Christ hath delyuered vs from the lawe and death. Paul sheweth what the flesshe and outwarde man is, and calleth it the lawe of the membres.

Knowe ye not brethrẽ (I speake to them that knowe the lawe) how that the lawe hath power ouer a man, as longe as it endureth. For * the woman whych is in subiectyon to a man, is bounde by the lawe to the man, as longe as he lyueth. But yf the man be deed, she is loosed frõ the lawe of ỹ man, So then * yf whyle ỹ man lyueth she couple her selfe with another man, she shalbe counted a wedlocke breaker. But yf the man be deed, she is fre from the lawe of the husband, so that she is no wedlocke breaker, though she couple her selfe with another man.

Euen so ye also (my brethren) are deed cõcernynge ỹ lawe by the body of Christ, that ye shulde be coupled to another (I meane to him that is rysen agayne frõ deeth) that we shuld bringe forth frute vnto God. For whẽ we were in ỹ flesshe, ỹ lustes of synne whych were stered vp by the lawe, raygned in oure membres, to bringe forth frute vnto deeth. But now are we delyuered from the lawe, and deed vnto it whervnto we were in bondage, that we shuld serue in a new conuersacyon of the spryte, and not in the olde conuersacyon of the letter.

What shall we saye then? is the lawe synne? God forbyd: neuertheles * I knewe not synne, but by the lawe. For I had not knowne what lust had meant, excepte the lawe had sayd, + ỹ shalt not lust. But synne toke an occasyon by the meanes of the commaundemẽt and wrought in me all manner of cõcupiscence. For verely without ỹ lawe, synne was deed. I once lyued wythout lawe: But when the commaundement came, synne reuiued, and I was deed. And the very same commaundement, whych was ordeyned vnto lyfe, was founde to be vnto me an occasyon of deeth. For synne toke occasyon by the meanes of the commaundement, and so disceaued me, & by ỹ same slewe me. Wherfore * the lawe is holy, and the commaundement holy, and iust and good.

Was ỹ then which was good, made deeth vnto me? God forbyd. Naye it was synne: ỹ synne might appeare (by it which was good) to worke deeth in me: that synne by the commaundement myght be out of measure synfull. For we knowe, ỹ the lawe is spirituall: but I am carnall * solde vnder synne, because I alowe not ỹ whych I do. For what I wold, ỹ do I not: but what I hate, that do I. If I do now that whych I wolde not, I cõsente vnto the lawe that it is good. So then now, it is not I ỹ do it, but synne that dwelleth in me. For I knowe, that in me (that is to saye in my * flesshe) dwelleth no good thinge. For, to wyll is present with me: but I fynde no meanes to performe that whych is good. For the good that I wolde, do I not: but the euyll whych I wolde not, that do I. Yf I do that I wolde not, then is it not I that do it, but synne that dwelleth in me. I fynde then by the lawe, that when I wolde do good, euyll is present wyth me. For I delyte in the lawe of God, after the inward man. But I se another lawe in my membres, rebellynge agaynst the lawe of my mynde, and subduynge me vnto the lawe of synne, whych is in my membres. O wretched man that I am: who shall delyuer me from thys body subdued vnto deeth? I thanke God thorow Jesus Christ oure Lorde. So then, wyth the mynde I serue the lawe of God, but wyth the flesshe the lawe of synne.

¶ The lawe of the spryte geueth lyfe. The spryte of God maketh vs Gods chyldren and heyres with Christ. The aboundaunt loue of God cannot be separated.

There is then no damnacyon to thẽ whych are in Christ Jesu, whych walke not after the flesshe, but after the spryte. For the lawe of the spryte of lyfe thorow Jesus Christ, hath made me * free from the lawe of synne, and deeth. + For what the lawe could not do (in as moch as it was weake because of the flesshe) that performed God, and * sent hys sonne in the similitude of synfull flesshe, and by synne dampned synne in the flesshe: ỹ the ryghteweslnes of the lawe, myght be fulfylled in vs, which walke not after the flesshe, but after the spryte.

For they that are carnall, are carnally mynded. But they that are spirytuall, are gostly mynded. To be carnally mynded, is deeth. But to be spiritually mynded, is lyfe and peace. ✠ Because that the flesshly mynde is enemyte agaynst God: for it is not obedyent to the lawe of God, nether can be. So then they that are in the flesshe, cannot please God.

But ye are not in ỹ flesshe, but in the spryte: yf so be that the spryte of God dwell in you. If eny mã haue not ỹ spryte of Christ, the same is none of hys. If Christ be in you, the body is deed because of synne: but ỹ spryte is lyfe for ryghteweslnes sake. Wherfore, yf the spryte of hym that raysed vp Jesus from deeth, dwell in you: euen he that raysed vp Christ from deeth, shall quycken youre mortall bodyes, because of hys spryte that dwelleth in you.

✠ Therfore brethren, we are detters, not to the flesshe, to lyue after the flesshe. For yf ye lyue after the flesshe, ye shal dye. But yf ye (thorowe the spryte) do mortifye the dedes of the body, ye shall lyue. For as many as are led by the spryte of God, they are the sonnes of God. For ye haue not receaued the spryte of bondage to feare eny more are, but * ye haue receaued the spryte of adopcyon, wherby we crye: Abba father. + The same spryte certifyeth oure spryte that we are the sonnes of God. If we be sonnes, then are we also heyres, ỹ heyres I meane of God, & heyres annexed with Christ: yf so be that we suffer with hym, that we maye be also glorifyed together with hym. ✠

✠ For I suppose that the afflyccyons of thys lyfe, are not worthy of the glory, which shalbe shewed vpon vs. * For the feruent desyre of the creature abydeth, lokyng, whẽ the sonnes of God shall appere, because the creature is subdued to vanyte, agaynst the wyll therof, but for his will which hath subdued the same in hope. For the same creature shalbe delyuered from the bondage of corrupcyon, into the glorious libertye of ỹ sonnes of God. For we knowe, that euery creature groneth with vs also, and trauayleth in payne, euen vnto thys tyme.

Not onely it, but we also which haue ỹ fyrst frutes of the spryte, morne in oure selues also, and wayte for the adopcyõ * (of the chyldren God) euen the delyueraunce of oure bodye. ✠ ✠ For we are sauyd by hope. But hope that is sene, is no hope. For how can a man hope for that, which he seyth? But and yf we hope for that we se not, then do we wt̃ patience abyde for it.

Lykewyse, the spryte also helpeth oure infirmyties. For we knowe not what to desyre as we ought: but the spryte maketh intercessyon for vs, with groynynges which cannot be expressed. And * he that searcheth the hertes + knoweth, what is the meanynge of the spryte: for he maketh intercessyon for ỹ sayntes accordyng to ỹ pleasure of God. ✠

✠ We knowe that all thynges worke for the best vnto them that loue God, which also are called of purpose. For those which he knewe before, he also ordeyned before, that they shulde be lyke fassyoned vnto the shape of hys sonne, that he myght be the fyrst begotten sonne amonge many brethren. Moreouer, whom he appoynted before, them also he called. And whom he hath called, them also he iustyfyed: and whom he iustyfyed, them he also glorifyed.

What shall we then saye to these thinges? + yf God be on oure syde, who cã be agaynst vs? which spared not hys awne sonne, * but gaue him for vs all: how can it be, that with hym he shulde not geue vs all thynges also? Who shall laye eny thynge to the charge of Goddes chosen? it is God that iustyfyeth: who is he that can condempne? it is Christ which dyed, yee, rather which is rysen agayne, which is also on the ryght hande of God, and maketh intercessyon for vs.

Who shall seperate vs from the loue of God? shall tribulacyon? or angwsshe? or persecucyon? other honger? ether nakednesse? ether parell? ether swearde? As it is written: * for thy sake are we kylled all daye longe, and are coũted as shepe apoynted to be slayne. Neuertheless, in all these thynges we ouercome thorowe hym that loued vs. For I am sure, that nether deeth, nether lyfe, nether Angels, nor rule, nether power, nether thynges present, nether thynges to come, nether heygth, nether loweth, nether eny other creature shalbe able to departe vs from the loue of God, which is in Christ Jesu oure Lorde. ✠

This man putteth differēce bitwene daye & daye. Another mā coūteth all dayes alyke. Let euery mās mynde satisfye him selfe. He that obserueth the daye, doeth it vnto the Lorde. And he that doth not obserue the daye, doeth it for the Lorde also. He that eateth, doth it to please the Lorde, for he geueth God thankes. And he that eateth not, eateth not, to please the Lorde withall, and geueth God thankes. For none of vs lyueth for hym selfe, and no man dyeth for hym selfe. For yf we lyue, we lyue vnto the Lorde. And yf we dye, we dye vnto the Lord. Whether we lyue therfore, or dye, we are the Lordes. For Christ therfore dyed, and rose agayne, and reuyued, that he myght be * Lorde of deed and quycke.

* Act.ij.f. Philip.ij.b.

But why doest thou then iudge thy brother? Other, why doest thou despise thy brother? We shalbe all brought before the iudgement seate of Chryst. For it is wrytten: as truely as I lyue sayth the Lorde: * all knees shall bowe to me, and all tonges shall geue prayse to God. So shall euery one of vs geue accōptes of hym selfe to God. *Mat.xv.b Act.x.d. 1.Tim.iiij.a Marc.vij.d.

Destroye not the worke of God for a lytell meates sake. * All thinges are pure: but it is euyll for ỹ man which eateth wyth hurte of conscience. It is good nether to eate flesshe, nether to drinke wyne nether eny thynge, wherby thy brother stōbleth, ether falleth, or is made weake. Hast ỹ fayth? haue it wyth thy selfe before God. Happy is he, that condēneth not hym selfe, in the thynge whych he alloweth. For he that maketh cōscience, is dampned yf he eate: because he eateth not of fayth. Neuertheles (brethren) I haue some what more boldly wrytten vnto you, partely to put you in remembraunce, thorow the grace that is geuen me of God, that I should be * the minister of Jesu Chryst amonge the Gētyls, & shuld minyster the Gospell of God, that the offeryng of the gentyls myght be acceptable, & sanctified by the holy ghost. I haue therfore wherof I maye reioyse thorow Chryst Jesu, in those thinges which pertayne to God. For I dare not speake of eny of those thynges, wheych Chryst hath not wrought by me, to make * Gētyls obedient, with worde and dede, in myghty synges & wonders, by the power of the spyrete of God: so that from Jerusalem & the coastes rounde aboute vnto Illyrycū, I haue fylled all coūtres with the Gospell of Christ.

For I trust to se you in my iorney, and to be brought on my waye thither warde by you, after that I haue som what enioyed your acquaintaūce.

Now go I vnto Jerusalem, and * minister vnto the sayncts. For it hath pleased them of Macedonia and Achaia to make a certayne distribucyon vpon the pooze sayncts, whych are at Jerusalē. It hath pleased them verely, and their detters are they. For yf the Gentyls be made partetakers of their spirituall thynges, their dutie is to minyster vnto them in bodyly thinges. When I haue performed this, and haue brought them this frute sealed, I will come backe agayne by you into Spayne. I am sure that whē I come vnto you I shall come with aboundaūce of the blessynge of the Gospell of Chryst.

I beseche you brethren for oure Lord Jesus Chrystes sake, & for the loue of * spyrete, that ye helpe me in my busynes with youre prayers to God for me, that I maye be delyuered from thē which beleue not in Jewry: & that this my seruice, which I haue to do at Jerusalem, maye be accepted of the sayncts, that I maye come vnto you with ioye, by the will of God, and maye with you be refeesshed. # The fyrst Epistle of

Sayncte Paul the Apostle to the Corynthians.

The fyrst Chapter.

The commendeth the Corynthyans, exhorteth the to be of one mynde, and rebuketh the dyuysyon that was amonge them. Worldly wysdome is folysshnes before God, yee there is no wysdō but in the despysed crosse of God.

Paul called an Apostle of Jesus Chryst, thorowe the will of God, and brother Sostenes.

Vnto the congregacyon of God whych is at Corynthum. To them that are sanctifyed by Chryst Jesu, called sayncts, with all that call on the name of oure Lorde Jesus Chryst in euery place, ether of theirs or of oures.

* Grace be vnto you and peace frō God oure father, & from the Lorde Jesus Chryst.

I thanke my God all waye on youre behalfe, for the grace of God, whych is geuē you by Jesus Chryst, that in all thynges ye are made ryche by hym, in all vttraunce & in all knowlegde, by the which thinges the testimony of Jesus Chryst was confermed in you, so * ye are behynde in no gyfte, waytinge for the appearyng of oure Lord Jesus Chryst, which shall also strength you vnto the ende, that ye maye be blameles in the daye * (of the commyng.) of oure Lorde Jesus Chryst. * God is faythfull, by whom ye are called vnto the fellyshyppe of hys sonne Jesus Chryst our Lord. I beseche you brethrē by the name of oure Lord Jesus Chryst, that ye all speake one thinge, and that there be no dissencion amonge you: but that ye maye be a whole body: of one mynde and of one meanynge. For it is shewed vnto me (my brethren) of you, by them which are of the house of Cloe, that ther is stryfes amonge you. I speake of the same that euery one of you sayeth: I holde of Paul: I holde of * Apollo: I holde of Cephas: I holde of Christ. Is Christ deuyded? Was Paul crucifyed for you? ether were ye baptysed in the name of Paul? I thanke God, that I baptysed none of you, but Crispus and Gaius: lest eny shuld saye, that I had baptysed in myne awne name. I baptised also the house of Stephana. Furthermore knowe I not, whether I baptised eny man (* of you) or no.

For Chryst sent me not to baptyse, but to preache * Gospell, not * wysdome of wordes, lest the crosse of Chryst shulde haue bene made of none effecte. For the preaching of * crosse, is to thē that perisshe, foolishnes: but vnto vs which are saued * it is the power of God. For it is wrytte: * I will destroye * wysdome of the wyse, and wyll cast awaye the vnderstandynge of the prudēt. Where is the wyse? * Where is the scribe? Where is * disputer of this worlde? Hath not God made the wysdome of this worlde foolishnes?

For after that the worlde thorowe wysdome knewe not God, in * wysdome of God, it pleased God thorowe foolysshnes of preachynge, to saue them that beleue. For * the Jewes require a synge, and the Grekes seke after wysdome. But we preache Chryst crucifyed, vnto the Jewes an occasyon of fallynge, and vnto the Grekes foolysshnes: but vnto them whych are called both of the Jewes & Grekes, we preache Chryst the power of God and the wysdome of God. For the foolishnes of God, is wyser then men: and the weakenes of God is stronger then men. Brethren, ye se your callynge, how that not many wyse men after the fleshe, not many myghty, not many of hye degre, are called: But God hath chosen the folisshe thynges of the worlde, to confounde the wyse. And God hath chosen the weake thynges, of the worlde, to confounde thynges whych are myghtye. And vyle thynges of the worlde, & thinges which are despised, hath God chosen, yee and thinges of no reputacyon, for to bringe to nought thynges of reputacyon, that no fleshe shulde reioyce in hys presence. And of hym are ye, in Chryst Jesu, whych

wesnes, and sanctifyinge, and redempcyon.
That accordynge as it is written: he which reioyseth, shulde reioyce in the Lorde.

¶ It is not eloquence and gloryous paynted wordes of worldly wysdome, that can edyfye, and converte soules vnto Christ, but the playne wordes of the scripture, for they make mencyon of hym and his crosse.

A ND I brethren (when I came to you) came not in gloriousnes of wordes, or of wysdome, shewynge vnto you the testimony of God. Neither thewed I my selfe
B that I knewe eny thynge amonge you, saue Jesus Christ, euen the same that was crucifyed. And I was among you in weaknes, and in feare, and in moche tremblynge. And my wordes and my preachynge was not with entysynge wordes of mānes wysdome: but in the wynge of the spirite and of power, that your fayth shuld not stande in the wysdome of men, but in the power of God.

B We speake of wysdome amonge thē that are perfecte: not the wysdome of this world, nether of the rulars of this worlde (whych go to nought) but we speake ỹ wysdome of God, whych is in secrete & lyeth hyd, which God ordeyned before the worlde, vnto oure glory: which wysdome * none of the rulars of this worlde knewe. For ☞ had they had knowlege, they wold not haue crucifyed the Lorde of glory. But as it is written. * The eye hath not sene, and the eare hath not herd, nether haue entred into the hert of man, the thynges which God hath prepared for them that loue hym.

C But God hath opened thē vnto vs by his spirite. For * the spirite searcheth all thinges, ye the botome of Goddes secretes. For what mā knoweth ỹ thinges of a mā: saue ỹ spirite of man which is in him? Euē so ỹ thynges of God knoweth no mā, but ỹ spirite of God. And we haue not receaued the spirite of the worlde: but ỹ spirite which cōmeth of God, for to knowe ỹ thynges ỹ are geuen to vs of D God: which thynges also we speake (not with wordes ỹ mānes wysdome teacheth, but with wordes whych ỹ holy ghost doth teache) making spirituall cōparisons of spirituall thinges. ☞ The naturall man perceaueth not ỹ thinges that belōge to ỹ spirite of God. For they are but folyshnes vnto him. Nether can he perceaue thē, because they are spiritually examined. But he ỹ is spirituall, discusseth all thynges: yet he him selfe is iudged of no mā. * For who hath knowē ỹ mynde of ỹ Lord, other who shall informe hym? But we vnderstande the mynde of Christ.

¶ The. iij. Chapter.

¶ Paul rebuketh the sectes and authores therof. Christ is the folda tyō of hys church. No man ought to reioyce in men, but in God.

AND I coulde not speake (vnto you brethē) as vnto spirituall: but as vnto carnall, euen as vnto babes in Christ. * I gaue you mylke to drynke, and not meate. For ye then were not stronge, nether are ye as yet. For ye are yet carnall. As lōge verely as ther is amōge you enuyinge, & stryfe & sectes: are ye not carnall, & walke after ỹ maner of men? For whyle one sayth: I holde of Paul, & another: I am of * Apollo, are ye not carnall? What is Paul? What thynge is Apollo? Onely ministers are they by whom ye beleued, euen as the Lorde gaue euery mā grace. I haue planted, Apollo watred: but God gaue the encreace. So then, nether is he that planteth eny thyng, nether he that watreth, but God that geueth the encreace. He that planteth and he that watreth, are one. Euery man yet shall receaue hys rewarde, accordynge to his labour. For we are Goddes labourers, ye are Goddes husbandrye, * ye are Goddes buyldyng: Accordynge to the grace of God geuē vnto me, as a wyse buylder haue I layde the foundacyon. And another bylt theron. But let euery man take hede, how he bylded vpon. For another foundacyon can no mā laye, then it that is layde, * whych is Jesus Christ. If eny man buylde on this foundacyon, golde, syluer, precyous stones, tymber, haye or stoble: euery mannes worcke shall appeare. For the daye shall declare, whych shalbe shewed in fyre. And the fyre shall trye euery mannes worcke, what it is. If eny mannes worcke that he hath bylt vpon, byde, he shall receaue a rewarde: If eny mannes worcke burne, he shall suffre losse, but he shalbe sake hym selfe: neuertheles, yet as it were thorowe fyre.

✠ * Knowe ye not, that ye are the temple of God, & how that the spirite of God dwelleth in you? If eny man defyle the temple of God, hym shall God destroye. For the tēple of God, is holy, whych temple ye are. Let no man deceaue him selfe. If eny mā seme wyse to hym selfe amonge you, ☞ let hym become a foole in this worlde, ỹ he maye be wyse. For ỹ wysdom of thys worlde is folyshnes with God. For it is written: * he cōpareth the wyse in theyr craftynes. And agayne: * God knoweth the thoughtes of the wyse, that they be vayne. Therfore, let no man reioyce in men. For all thynges are youres, whether it be Paul, ether Apollo, ether Cephas: whether it be the worlde, ether lyfe, ether deeth, whether they be present thynges, or thynges to come: all are youres: and ye are Christes, and Christ is Goddes. ✠

Let

A LEt ✠ a mā this wyse esteme vs, euen as the ministers of Christ, and stewards of the * secretes of God. Furthermore it is required of the stewardes, that a mā be founde faythfull. Wyth me is it but a very small thynge, that I shuld be iudged of you, ether of mans iudgement. No I iudge not myne awne selfe. For I knowe nought by my selfe: yet am I not therby iustifyed. It is the Lorde that iudgeth me. Therfore iudge nothinge before the tyme vntyll the Lorde come, whych wyll lyghten thinges that are hyd in darcknes, and open the counsels of the hertes. And then shall euery man haue prayse of God. ✠

B These thynges (brethē) I haue for an ensample described in myne awne person, & in Apollos, for youre sakes, ỹ ye myght learne by vs, ỹ noman counte of hym selfe beyonde ỹ which is aboue wrytte: that one swell not agaynst another for eny mans cause. For who preferreth the? * What hast thou, that thou hast not receaued? If thou haue receaued it, why reioysest thou, as though ỹ haddest not receaued it? Nowe ye are full: nowe ye are made ryche: ye raygne as kinges without vs: and I wolde to God ye dyd raygne, that we myght raygne with you.

For me thynketh, that God hath set forth vs (which are the last Apostles) * as it were men appointed to deeth. For we are a gasynge stocke vnto the worlde, and to the Angels, and to men. We are fooles for Christes sake, but ye are wyse thorowe Christ. We weake, but ye are stronge. Ye are honorable, but we are despysed. Euen vnto this tyme we honger and thyrst, and are naked, & are bofeted with fystes, and haue no certayne dwellynge place, & labour, * worckynge with oure awne handes. We are reuyled, and yet we blesse. We are persecuted, and suffer it. We are cyyll spoken of, & we praye. We are made as it were the fylthines of the worlde, the offscowrynge of all thynges, euen vnto thys daye.

D I wryte not these thynges, to shame you: but as my beloued sonnes I warne you. For though ye haue ten thousande instructours in Christ: yet haue ye not many fathers. In Christ Jesu I haue begotten you thorow ỹ Gospell. Wherfore, I desyre you to folowe me, ☞ (as I folowe Christ). For thys cause haue I sent vnto you Tymotheus, which is my deare sonne, and faythfull in the Lorde, whych shall put you in remēbraunce of my wayes, that I haue in Christ, euen as I teach euery where in all congregacions. Some swell, as though I wold come nomore at you. But I wyll come to you shortely * yf God wyll: & will know, not ỹ wordes of thē which swell but the power: for the Kyngdome of God is not in wordes, but in power. What wyll ye? Shall I come vnto you with a rodde, or els in loue and in the spirite of softnesse?

¶ After what maner Paul curseth the man, that had cōmytted fornicacyon wyth hys mother in lawe.

IT here goeth a commen sayinge that ther is fornicacion amonge you, and soch fornicacyon, as is not named amonge the gentyls: * ỹ one shuld haue hys fathers wyfe. And ye swell, and haue not rather sorowed, that he which hath done thys dede, myght be put from amonge you. For I verely as absent in body, but present in spirite, haue determined allready (as though I were present) concernynge hym that hath done this dede, in ỹ name of oure Lord Jesu Christ, when ye are gathered together, and my spirite wt you, with the power of the Lorde Jesus Chryst * to delyuer hym vnto Satan, for the destruccyō of the flesshe, that the spirite maye be saued in the daye of the Lorde Jesus.

Youre reioysynge is not good: knowe ye not, that a lytle leuen sowreth ỹ whole lōpe of dowe? ✠ Pourge therfore the olde leuen ☞ ỹ ye maye be newe dowe, as ye are swete breed. For Christ ☞ oure passeouer is offered vp for vs. Therfore, let vs kepe holy daye, not with olde leuen, nether with the leuen of malicyousnes & wickednes: but with the swete breed of purenes and trueth. ✠

I wrote vnto you in a pistle, that ye shuld not cōpany wyth fornicatours. And I mēt not at all of the fornicatours of this world, ether of the couetous, or extorcyoners, ether the ydolaters: for then must ye nedes haue gone out of ỹ world. But now I dyd write vnto you, * that ye company not together, yf eny that is called a brother, be a fornicator, or couetous, or a worshypper of ymages, ether a raylar, ether a dronckard, or an extorcionar: wyth hym that is soche, se that ye eate not. Nowe therfore, there is vtterly a faute amōge you, because ye go to lawe one wyth another. Why rather suffer ye not wronge? why rather suffre ye not your selues to haue harme? naye, ye youre selues do wrōge, and robbe: & that the brethrē. Do ye not knowe, how

The. vij. Chapter.

Of marryage, byrginyte and wyddowhead.

AS concernynge the thynges wherof ye wrote vnto me: ✠ it is good for a man, not to touche a womā. Neuertheless, to auoyde whordome let euery mā haue hys wyfe: and let euery womā haue her husbande. Let the husbande geue vnto the wyfe due benevolēce. Lykewyse also the wyfe vnto the husbande. The wyfe hath not power of her awne body: but the husbande. And lykewyse the husbāde hath not power of his awne body: but the wyfe. * Withdrawe not youre selues one frō another, except it be with consent for a tyme, for to geue youre selues to fastynge and prayer. And after warde come together agayne, lest Satan tempte you for youre incontinencie. ✠ * Tob. vi. d and. viii. a. Joel. ii. d.

This I saye of fauoure, and not of commaundement. For I wolde that all men were as I my selfe am: but euery mā hath his proper gyfte of God, one after this māner, another after that. I saye vnto them that be vnmaryed and wyddowes: it is good for thē, yf they abyde euē as I do. But and * yf they cannot abstayne, let thē mary. For it is better to mary, then to burne. B * 1. Tim. v. d

Vnto the maryed cōmaunde, not I, but the Lord: * Let not the wyfe be separated from the husband. If she separate her selfe, let her remayne vnmaryed, or be recōciled vnto her husbande agayne. And let not the husbande put away his wyfe from him. * Mat. v. c. and. xix. a

To the remnaunt speake I, not the Lorde If eny brother haue a wyfe that beleueth not, yf she be content to dwell with him, let hym not put her away. And the woman whych hath to her husbande an infidell, & consent to dwell wyth her, let her not put hym away. For the vnbeleuynge husbāde is sanctified by the wyfe, & the vnbeleuinge wyfe is sanctifyed by the husbande. Or els were your chyldren vncleane: but nowe are they holye. But & yf the vnbeleuynge departe, let him departe. A brother or a syster is not in subiectyon to soche. But God hath called vs in peace. For how knowest thou (o womā) whether thou shalt saue thy husbande or no? Other howe knowest thou (o man) whether thou shalt saue thy wyfe or no? but euen as God hath distributed to euery man. C

* As the Lorde hath called euery man, so let hym walke: and so ordeyne I in all cōgregacyons. If eny man be called beynge circūcised, let him not adde vncircūcisyon. If eny be called vncircumcised, let hym not be circūcised. Circumcisyon is nothynge, and vncircumcisyon is nothinge: but the keppynge of the commaundementes of God. D * Ephe. iiii. a

✠ Let euery man abyde in the same callynge, wherin he was called. * Art thou called a seruaūt? care not for it. Neuertheless ☞ yf thou mayst be free, vse it rather. For he that is called in the Lorde, beynge a seruaunt, is the Lordes freman. Lykewyse he that is called beynge free, is Christes seruaunt. Ye are dearly bought, ☞ be not ye the seruaūtes of men. Brethren, let euery man wherin he is called, therin abyde wyth God. ✠ * 1. Tim. vi. a. E

dement of the Lorde: yet geue I counsell, as one that hath obtayned mercye of the Lord, to be faythfull. I suppose therfore that it is good for the present necessite. For it is good for a man so to be. Art thou bounde vnto a wyfe? seke not to be losed. Art thou loosed from a wyfe? seke not a wyfe. But ād yf thou marye a wyfe, thou hast not synned. Lykewyse, yf a virgyn mary, she hath not synned. Neuerthelesse soche shall haue trouble in their flesche: but I fauoure you.

* Gal. iv. a. 1. Pet. iii. b This saye I brethrē, * the tyme is shorte. It remayneth, that they whych haue wyues, be as though they had none: ād they that wepe, be as though they wept not: and they that reioyce, be as though they reioyced not: & they that bye, be as though they possessed not: ād they that vse this worlde, be as though they vsed it not. For * the fassyon of thys worlde goeth away. ✠ I wolde haue you without care. He that is vnmaryed, careth for the thynges that belong to the Lord, howe he maye please the Lord. But he that hath maryed a wyfe careth for thinges that are of the worlde, howe he maye please his wyfe. There is differēce betwene a virgin & a wife. The syngle womā careth for the thinges that are of the Lorde, that she maye be holy both in bodye & also in spyrete. Agayne: she that is maryed, careth for thinges that pertayne to the worlde, how she maye please her husbande. ☞ This speake I for youre profet, not to tāgle you in a snare: but that ye maye followe it which is honest & comly, & that ye maye cleaue vnto the Lorde without separacion. E * Esa. xl. b. 1. Johan. c. & Mat. vi. d. 1. Cor. vii. c.

If eny man thynke that it is vncomly for his virgin, yf she passe the tyme of maryage, and yf so nede require, let him do what he lysteth, he synneth not: let them be coupled in mariage. Neuertheless, he that purposeth surely in his herte, hauynge no nede: but hath power ouer his awne will: & hath so decreed in his hert, that he will kepe his virgin, doth well. So then, he that ioyneth his virgin in mariage doth well. But he that ioyneth not his virgin in mariage, doth better. * The wyfe is bounde to the mariage, as lōge as her husbād lyueth. If her husbād dye, she is at libertie to mary with whom she will, onely in the Lorde. But she is happier, yf she so abyde, after my iudgement. And I thinke verely, that I haue the spyrete of God. F * Rom. vii. a.

The. viij. Chapter.

Here rebuketh them that vse lybertye to the slaunder of other, and sheweth howe men ought to be hauē them towarde soche as be weake.

AS touchyng thinges * offred vnto ymages, we are sure that we all haue knowledge. Knowledge maketh a mā swell: but loue edifyeth. If eny man thynke that he knoweth eny thing, he knoweth nothyng yet as he ought to knowe. But yf eny mā loue God, the same is knowen of him. A * Act. v. c.

As cōcernyng that eatyng of those thynges that are offred vnto idols, we are sure, that ✠ * that ymage is nothing in the worlde ād that ther is none other God, but one. And though ther be that are called Goddes, whether in heauē other in erth (as ther be Goddes many, and Lordes many) yet vnto vs is there but one God, which is the father, of whō are all thinges, & we for him. & one Lord Jesus Christ, by whō are all thinges, and we by him. But euery mā hath not knowledge. * Some hauing cōsciēce because of the ymage, vntill thys houre, eate as a thige offered vnto ymages: & so their consciēce beinge weake is defyled. But meate maketh vs not acceptable to God. Nether yf we eate, are we the better. Nether yf we eate not, are we the worse. * 1. Cor. viii. a B C

But take hede, lest by any meanes this libertie of yours be an occasiō of falling to thē that are weake. For yf some mā se that which hath knowledge, syt & eate of meate offred vnto ymages, shall not the cōsciēce of him which is weake, be boldened to eate those thynges, which are offered to ymages. And so thorow thy knowledge shall the weake brother perysshe, for whom Christ dyed. Whē ye synne so agaynst the brethrē, & wounde their weake conscience, ye synne agaynst Christ. Wherfore * yf meate hurt my brother, I will neuer eate flesche lest I shulde offende my brother. * Ro. xiiii. a D

The. ix. Chapter.

Loue forbeareth the thinge that she maye do by the lawe. Her hortcth them to runne on forth in the course that they haue begonne.

AM I not an Apostle? am I not free? * haue I not sene Jesus Christ oure Lorde? Are ye not my worke in the Lorde? If I be not an Apostle vnto other, yet am I vnto you. For the seale of myne Apostleshyppe are ye in the Lord. Myne answer to them that aske me, is this. Haue we not power to eate and to drynke? Haue we not power to leade about a woman a syster, as well as other Apostles, and as the brethren of the Lorde, ād Cephas? Ether onely I and Barnabas haue not power thys to do? Who goeth a warfare eny tyme at hys awne cost? who plāteth a vineyarde, and eateth not of the frute therof? Or who fedeth a flocke and eateth not of the mylcke of the flocke? A * Act. ix. a.

Saye I these thynges after the maner of mē? Sayth not the lawe the same also? For it is wrytten in the lawe of Moses. * Thou shalt not muzell the mouth of the oxe that treadeth oute the corne. Doth God take thought for oxen? Sayth he it not altogether for oure sakes? For oure sakes no doute this is written: that he whych eareth shulde eare in hope & that he whych threshyth in hope, shulde be partaker of hys hope. * If we sowe vnto you spirituall thynges, is it a great thynge yf we reape youre bodely thynges? *Actes.xx.g. Neuertheles * we haue not vsed this power: but suffre all thinges, lest we shulde hinder ꝑ Gospell of Chryst. Do ye not knowe, howe ꝑ they which minister aboute holy thinges lyue of ꝑ sacrifyce? They which wayte of the tẽple, are partakers of ꝑ tẽple. Euen so C also dyd ꝑ Lord ordayne: *that they whych preach the Gospell, shulde lyue of ꝑ Gospell.

Neuertheles I wrote not these thinges, ꝑ it shuld be so done vnto me. For it were better for me to dye, then ꝑ eny man shuld take this reioysinge from me. For ꝑ I preach the Gospell, I haue nothynge to reioyce of. For necessyte is put vnto me. But wo is it vnto me, ꝑ I preach not the Gospell. If I do it w a good will, I haue a reward. But ꝑ I do it against my will, an office is committed vnto me. What is my reward then? Verely ꝑ when I preach the Gospell, I make the Gospell of Chryst fre, that I misuse not myne auctorite in the Gospell.

*Act.xvi.a. Galat.ii. For though I be fre frõ all men, yet haue I made my selfe seruãt vnto all men, that I myght wynne the moo. *Unto the Jewes, I became as a Jewe, to wynne ꝑ Jewes. To them that were vnder the lawe, was I made as though I had bene vnder the lawe, D (*whan I was not vnder the lawe) to wynne thẽ that were vnder the lawe. To thẽ that were wythout lawe, became I as though I had bene wythout lawe (whẽ I was not without lawe as perteyning to God, but vnder ꝑ lawe of Chryst) to wynne them that were wythout lawe. To the weake became I as weake, to wynne ꝑ weake. In all thinges * I fashyoned my selfe to all mẽ, to saue at ꝑ least waye some. And this I do for ꝑ gospels sake, that I myght haue my parte therof.

*i.Cor.ix.g.

✠ Perceaue ye not, howe that they which runne in a course, rũne all, but one receaueth ꝑ reward? So rũne, that ye maye obtayne. Euery mã ꝑ prouyeth masteries, abstayneth frõ all thynges. And they do it to obtayne a crowne ꝑ shall perysshe: but we to obtayne an *euerlasting crowne. I therfore so rũne, not as at an vncertayne thyng. So fyght I, not as one that beateth the ayer: but I tame my body, & bringe it into subiectyon, lest by anye meanes it come to passe, that whan I haue preached to other, I my selfe shulde be a cast awaye. ✠

¶ The.xi. Chapter.

¶ He rebuketh them for the abuse and misorder that they had aboute the Sacrament of the body and blood of Christ, and bringeth them agayne to the fyrst institucion.

A BE ye the folowers of me, as I am the folower of Christ. I commende you brethren, that ye remember me in all thynges, and kepe the ordinaunces, euen as I delyuered them to you. But I wolde haue you to knowe, that Christ is the heed of euery man. And the man is the * womans heed. And God is Christes heed. Euery man prayinge or prophesynge hauing eny thynge on his heed, shameth his heed. Euery woman that prayeth or prophesyeth bare headed, dishonesteth hyr head. For that is euen all one, as yf she were shauen. If the woman be not couered, let her also be shoren. * If it be shame for a woman to be shorne or shauen, let her couer her heed.

A man ought not to couer his heed, for as moch as he is the ymage and glory of God. But the woman is the glory of the mã. For * the man is not of the woman: but the woman of the man. Nether was the man created for the womans sake: but the woman for the mannes sake. For this cause ought the woman ☞ to haue power on her heed, for the angels sakes: Neuertheles, nether is ꝑ man wyth out the woman, nether the womã without the man in the Lorde. For as the woman is of the man, euen so is the man: by the woman: but all of God.

Judge in youre selues, whether it be comly that a woman praye vnto God bare heeded. Doth not nature it selfe teach you, that it is a shame for a mã, yf he haue longe heere: and a prayse to a woman: yf she haue longe heer. For hyr heer is geuen her to couer her withall. If any man luste to stryue, we haue no soch custome, nether the congregacyons of God.

This I warne you of, and commende not, that ye come not together after a better maner, but after a worse. For fyrst of all when ye come together in the congregacion, D I heare that there is dyssencyon amõge you: and I partely beleue it. For * ther must be sectes amonge you, that they which are perfect amonge you, myght be knowen ✠ whẽ ye come to gether therfore into one place, the Lordes supper can not be eaten. For euery man begynneth afore to eate his awne supper. And one is hongry, and another is dronkẽ. Haue ye not houses to eate and to dryncke in? Despyse ye the congregacion of God, and shame thẽ that haue not? What shall I saye vnto you? shal I prayse you? In this prayse I you not. ✠

✠ That which I delyuered vnto you, I E receaued of the Lorde. For the Lorde Jesus the same nyght, in which he was betrayed, toke breed: and whan he had geuen thankes, he brake it and sayde: * Take ye, and eate: this is my body, which is broken for you. This do ye in the remembraunce of me. After the same maner also he toke the cup, whẽ supper was done, sayinge: This cuppe is the new testament in my blonde. Thys do as oft as ye dryncke it, in remembraunce of me. For as often as ye shall eate this breed, and F dryncke this cup: *ye shall shewe the Lordes deeth * tyll he come. Wherfore, whosoeuer, shall eate of this bread, or dryncke of the cup of the Lorde vnworthely, shalbe gylty of the body and blond of the Lorde. * But let a man examen him selfe, and so let him eate of the breed, and dryncke of the cup. For he that eateth or dryncketh vnworthely, eateth and dryncketh his awne damnacyon, because he maketh no difference of ꝑ Lordes body. For this cause many are weake and sycke amõge you, and many slepe. For if we had iudged G oure selues, we shuld not haue bene iudged. But when we are iudged of the Lorde, we are chastened, that we shulde not be damned with the * worlde. Wherfore my brethren when ye come together to eate, tary one for another. If any man honger, let him eate at home, that ye come not together vnto condemnacyon. ✠ Other thynges will I set in order, when I come.

¶ The.xij. Chapter.

¶ The diuersite of the gyftes of the holy goost, geuen to the cõfort and edifyinge of one another, as the members of a mans body serue one another.

COncernynge spirituall thinges A (brethren) I wolde not haue you ignorannt. ✠ Ye knowe ꝑ ye were gentyls, & went youre wayes vnto domme ymages, euen as ye were led. Wherfore I declare vnto you, that * no man speakyng by the spyrite of God, defyeth Jesus. Also no man can saye that Jesus is the Lorde, but by the holy ghost. * Ther are diuersities of gyftes, yet but one spyrite. And ther are differẽces of administracyons, and yet but one Lorde. And ther are dyuers maners of operacyons, and yet but one God ☞ whych worcketh all in all. * The gyfte of the spyrite is geuen to euery man, to edifye withall. For to one is geuen thorow the spirite the vttearaũce of wisdome. To another is geuen the vttearaunce of knowledge by the same spyrite. To another is geuen fayth, by the same spyrite. To another the gyftes of healinge by the same spyrite. To another power to do miracles. To another prophesye. To another * iudgement to discerne spyrites. To another diuers tonges. To another the interpretacyon of tonges: But these all worcketh euen the selfe same spyrite, diuidynge to euery man a seuerall gyfte, euen as he wyll.

* For as the body is one, and hath many membres, and all the membres of one body though they be many, yet are but one bodye, euen so is Christ. For by one spyrite are we all baptysed to make one body, whether we be Jewes or Gentyls, whether we be bonde or fre, and haue * all droncke of one spyrite. For the body is not one member, but many. If the fote saye: I am not the hande, I am not of the body: is he therfore not of the body? And yf the eare saye, I am not the eye, I am not of the body: is he therfore not of the body? If all the body were an eye, where were then the eare? If all were hearynge: where were the smellynge? But nowe hath God set the membres euery one seuerally in the body as it hath pleased him. If they were all one mẽber: where were ỹ bodye? Nowe are there many mẽbres, yet but one body. And the eye can not saye vnto the hãde: I haue no nede of the. Agayne, the heed can not saye to the fete: I haue no nede of you. Yee rather agreat deale those membres of the body which seme to be more feble, are necessary. And vpon those membres of the body which we thinke leest honest, put we more honestye on. And oure vngoodlye partes haue more beautye on. For oure honest membres nede it not: But God hath so disposed the body, & hath geuen the more honoure to that parte whych lacked, lest there shulde be eny stryfe in the body: but that the membres shuld indifferẽtly care one for another. And yf one member suffer, all suffer with him. yf one member be had in honour, all membres be glad also.

Ye are the body of Christ, and membres one of another. And God hath also ordeyned in the congregacyon, fyrst * Apostles, secondarely prophetes, thyrdly teachers, then them that do myracles: after that, the gyftes of healyng, helpers, gouerners, diuersitye of tonges.

Are all Apostles? Are all Prophetes? Are all teachers? Are all doars of miracles? Haue all ỹ gyftes of healinge? Do all speake with tonges? Do all interprete? Couet after the best gyftes. And yet shewe I vnto you a more excellent waye.

¶ The.xiij. Chapter.

Though I spake with the tonges of men and of angels, and haue no loue, I am euen as sounding brasse, or as a tynklinge cymball. And * though I coulde prophesy, and vnderstode all secretes, and all knowledge: yee & yf I haue all fayth, * so that I can moue mountayns out of their places, and yet haue no loue, I am nothynge. And though I bestowe all my goodes to fede the poore, and though I geue my body euen that I burned, and yet haue no loue, it profyteth me nothynge.

Loue suffreth longe, and is curteous. Loue enuyeth not. Loue doth not frowardly, swelleth not, dealeth not dishonestly * seketh not her awne, is not prouoked to anger, thynketh no cupll, reioyseth not in iniquyte: but reioyseth in the truethy, suffreth all thynges, beleueth all thynges, hopeth all thynges, endureth all thynges. Though that prophesynges fayle, other tonges cease, or knowledge vanysshe awaye, yet loue falleth neuer awaye.

For oure knowledge is vnperfect, and oure prophesyinge is vnperfect. But when ỹ whych is perfect, is come, then that whych is vnperfect, shall be done awaye. When I was a chylde, I spake as a chylde, I vnderstode as a chylde, I ymagined as a chylde. But assone as I was a man, I put awaye chyldelynes. Nowe we se in a glasse, euẽ in a darcke speakyng: but then shall we se face to face. Nowe I knowe vnperfectly: but then shall I knowe euen as I am knowẽ. Nowe abydeth fayth, hope, and loue, euẽ these thre: but the cheefe of these is loue.

¶ The.xiiij. Chapter.

¶ Paul sheweth that the gyfte of prophecye, interpretyng or preachynge, excelleth the gyfte of tonges and how they both ought to be vsed.

Labour for loue, and couet spyrituall gyftes: but most chefly that ye maye prophesye. For he that speaketh with the tonge, speaketh not vnto men, but vnto God. For no man heareth hym. Howbeit in the spyrite he speaketh mysteries. But he that prophesieth, speaketh vnto men for their edifyinge, for their exhortacion and for their comforte. He that speaketh with the tonge, profiteth himselfe: * he that prophesieth, edifyeth ỹ cõgregacion. I wolde that ye all spake with tonges: but rather that ye prophesied. For greater is he ỹ prophesyeth, then he that speaketh with tonges, except he expounde it: that the congregacion maye haue edifying. Now brethren, yf I come vnto you speakynge with tonges: what shall I profet you, excepte I speake to you, other by reuelacyon or by knowledge, or by prophesyinge, or by doctryne?

Moreouer, when thinges without lyfe geue sounde (whether it be a pype or an harpe) except they make a distincyon in ỹ soundes, how shall it be knowen what is pypped or harped? For yf the trompe geue an vncertayne voyce, who shall prepare him selfe to the warre? Euen so lyke wyse whẽ ye speake with tonges, excepte ye speake wordes that haue significacyon, howe shall it be vnderstãde what is spokẽ? For ye shall but speake in the ayer.

¶ Many kyndes of voyces are in the world, and none of them are without signification. If I knowe not what the voyce meaneth, I shalbe vnto him that speaketh, an alient: and he that speaketh, shalbe an alient vnto me. Euẽ so ye (for as moche as ye couet spyrituall gyftes) seke, that ye maye excell, vnto the edifyinge of the congregacyon.

Wherfore, let him ỹ speaketh with tonge, praye, that he maye interpret also. For if I praye with tõge, my spyrite prayeth, but my ☞ vnderstonding doth no good. What is it then? I will praye with the spyrite, and will praye with the vnderstonding. I will synge with the spyrite, and will synge ☞ with the vnderstonding. For ells, when thou blessest with the spyrite, how shall he that occupieth the rowme of the vnlearned, saye Amen, at thy geuynge of thankes, seynge he vnderstãdeth not what thou sayest? Thou verely geuest thãkes well, but the other is not edified. I thanke my God ỹ I speake with tonges more then ye all. Yet had I leuer in the cõgregacion, to speake fyue wordes with my vnderstonding to ỹ informacion of other rather then ten thousand wordes with the tonge.

Brethren, be not ye chyldren in wytte. Howbeit, as concernyng malicyousnes, be children: but in witte be perfect. In the lawe it is written * with sondrie tõges, and with sondrye lyppes will I speake vnto this people, and yet for all that, will they not heare me, sayth the Lorde. Wherfore ☞ tonges are for a sygne, not to them that beleue: but to them that beleue not. Contrary wyse, prophesyinge serueth not for them that beleue not: but for them which beleue.

If therfore, when all the cõgregacyon is come together, and all speake with tonges, ther come in they that are vnlearned, or they which beleue not: will they not saye, that ye are out of youre wittes? But and yf all prophesye, and ther come in one ỹ beleueth not, or one vnlearned, he is rebuked of all men, & is iudged of euery man, & so are the secretes of his hert opened, and so falleth he downe on his face, and worshyppeth God, & sayth, that God is in you of a trueth.

How is it then brethren? As oft as ye come together, euery one of you hath a songe, hath a doctrine, hath a tonge, hath a reuelacyon, hath an interpretacyõ. Let all thinges be done vnto edifyinge: If eny man speake with tonge, let it be by two or at the most by thre, and that by course, and let another interprete it. But yf ther be no interpreter, let him kepe sylence in the cõgregacyon, and let him speake to him selfe and to God.

Let the prophetes speake two, or thre, & * let the other iudge. If eny reuelacyon be made to another that sytteth by, let the fyrst hoide his peace. For ☞ ye maye al prophesy one by one, that all maye learne, and that all maye haue comforte. And the spyrites of the prophetes are in the power of the Prophetes. For God is not causer of stryfe: * but of peace, as * (I teach) in all cõgregacions of the saynctes.

* Let youre wemen kepe sylence in the cõgregacions. For it is not permitted vnto them to speake: but to be vnder obediẽce, as sayth the lawe. If they wyll learne eny thynge, let them aske their husbandes at home. For it is a shame for wemen, to speake in the congregacion. Sprange the worde of God frõ you? Ether came it vnto you onely? If eny man thynke him selfe to be a prophet, ether spirituall: let him knowe, what thynges I wryte vnto you. For they are the commaundementes of the Lorde. But and yf eny man be ignorãt, let him be ignorãt. Wherfore bre thren, couet to prophesye, and forbyd not to speake with tonges. let all thynges be done honestly and in order * (amonge you)

¶ The.xv. Chapter.

Brethren, as pertaynynge to the gospell whych I preached vnto you, whych ye haue also accepted, and in the whych ye contynue, by the which also ye are saued: I do you to wit, after what maner I preached vnto you, yf ye kepe it, except ye haue beleued in vayne.

For fyrst of all I delyuered vnto you, ỹ which I receaued: how that * Christ dyed for our synnes, agreynge to the scriptures: * And that he was buried, and that he arose agayne ỹ thirde daye accordyng to the scriptures: & that he was sene * of Cephas, then of the twelue. After that was he sene of moo then fyue hundred brethren at ones: of whych many many remayne vnto this daye, & many are fallen a slepe. After that appeared he to James, then to all the Apostles.

And last of all he was sene of me, as of one that was borne oute of due tyme. For I am the least of the apostles, which am not worthy to be called an Apostle, because * I persecuted the congregacyon of God. But by ỹ grace of God, I am ỹ I am. And his grace which is in me, was not in vayne: ✠ But I labored moare aboundauntly then they all, yet not I, but the grace of God which is with me therfore whether it were I or they, so we preach, & so haue ye beleued.

✠ If Christ be preached how that he rose from the deed: how saye some amonge you, that ther is no resurrecyon of the deed: If there be no rysynge agayne of the deed then is Christ not rysen agayne. If Christ be not rysen agayne, thē is oure preachig in vayne, and your fayth is also in vayne. Ye and we are founde false-wytnesses of God. For we haue testifyed of God, how that he raysed vp Christ: whom he raysed not vp, yf it be so that the deed ryse not agayne. For yf the deed ryse not agayne, then is Christ not rysen agayne. If it be so that Christ rose not agayne, then is youre fayth in vayne, and ye are yet i youre synnes. Therfore they whych are fallē a slepe in Christ, are perysshed. If in this lyfe onely we beleue on Christ, then are we of all men most miserable.

But now is Christ rysen from the deed, & become * the fyrst frutes of them that slept. For by a man came deeth, and by a man came the resurrecyon of the deed. For as by Adam all dye: euen so by Christ, shall all be made alyue, but euery man in his awne order. ✠ The fyrst is Christ, then they that are Christes at his commynge. Then cometh the ende, ☞ when he hath delyuered vp the kyngdome to God the father, when he hath put downe all rule and all auctorite & power. For he must raygne * tyll he haue put all his enemyes vnder his fete. The last enemye that shalbe destroyed, is deeth ✠ For he hath put all thynges vnder his fete. But whē he sayth all thynges are put vnder him, it is manifest that he is excepted, which dyd put all thynges vnder him. Whē all thynges are subdued vnto him, then shall ỹ sonne also him selfe be subiect vnto him, ỹ put all thynges vnder him, that God maye be all in all. Els what do they, whych are ☞ baptised ouer the deed yf the deed ryse not at all? Why are they then baptised ouer them? Yee and why stōde we all waye then in ieoperdy? By youre reioysinge which I haue in Christ Jesu oure Lorde, I dye dayly. That I haue foughte with beastes at Ephesus after the maner of men, what auauntageth it me, yf the deed ryse not agayne: * Let vs eate and drynke, for to morowe we shall dye. Be not ye deceaued: euell wordes corrupte good maners. Awake truely out of slepe, and synne not. For some haue not ỹ knowledge of God: I speake this to youre shame.

But some man will saye: howe aryse the deed? & what bodye shall they come? Thou foole, * ỹ which thou sowest, is not quicked, except it dye. And what sowest thou? Thou sowest not that body that shalbe: but bare corne as of wheet, or of some other) but God geueth it a body at his pleasure, to euery seed his awne body.

✠ All fleshe is not one maner of fleshe: but ther is one maner of fleshe of men, another maner of fleshe of beastes, another of fyshes, & another of byrdes. Ther are also celestiall bodyes, & ther are bodyes terrestriall. But the glory of the celestiall is one, & ỹ glory of the terrestriall is another. Ther is one maner glory of the sonne, and another glory of the moone, & another glory of ỹ sterres. For one starre differeth from another in glory. So is the resurrecyon of the deed. It is sowen in corrupcion, it ryseth agayne in incorrupcyon. It is sowen in dishonour, it ryseth agayne in honoure. It is sowen in weaknes, it ryseth agayne in power. It is sowen a naturall body, it ryseth agayne a spyrituall body. Ther is a naturall bodye, & ther is a spyrituall body: as it is also written: the fyrste mā + Adam was made a lyuinge soule, and the last Adā was made a quyckening spyrite. Howbeit, ỹ is not fyrst which is spirituall: but that which is naturall, and then ỹ which is spyrituall ✠ The fyrst man is of the erth, erthy: the seconde man is the Lorde frō heauen * (heauenly) As is the erthy, soche are they that are erthye. And as is the heuenly, soche are they that are heuenly. And as we haue borne ỹ ymage of the erthy, so shall we beare the ymage of the heauenly.

This saye I brethren ☞ ỹ fleshe & bloud cannot inheret the kyngdom of God. Neither doth corrupcyon inheret vncorrupcyon. Beholde, I shewe you a mistery. * We shall not all slepe: but * we shall all be chaunged, and that in a moment, in the twynckelynge of an eye by the last trompe. For the trompe shall blowe, and the deed shall ryse incorruptible, & we shalbe chaunged. For this corruptible must put on incorrupcyon: and this mortall must put on immortalite.

When this corruptible hath put on incorruptiō, and this mortall hath put on immortalite: then shalbe brought to passe the sayīg that is written: * Deeth is swalowed vp in victory: * Deeth where is thy stynge? Hell where is thy victory? The stynge of deeth is synne: and the strength of synne is the lawe. But thankes be vnto God which hath geuen vs * victory, thorowe oure Lord Jesus Christ. Therfore my deare brethren, be ye stedfast and vnmouable, alwayes ryche in the worke of the Lorde, for as moch as ye knowe, how ỹ youre labour, is not in vayne in the Lorde.

¶ The .xvj. Chapter.

¶ He putteth them in remembraunce of the gatherynge for the poore Christen at Jerusalem, & concludeth hys Epistle with the salutacyōs of certayne louynge brethren.

Oncernyng the * gatherynge for the saīctes, as I haue ordeyned in the congregacyons of Galacia, euen so do ye. ¶ Upon some Saboth daye let euery one of you put a syde at home, and laye vp what soeuer is mete, that there be no gatherynges when I come. When I am come, whom soeuer ye shall alowe by youre letters, them wyll I sende, to brynge youre liberalyte vnto Jerusalem. And yf it be mete that I go also, they shall go wt me. I wyll come vnto you whan I go ouer to Macedonia. For I wyll go thorowe out * Macedonia. With you parauenture I wyll abyde a whyle: or els tary all wynter, that ye maye bryngе me on my waye, whyther soeuer I go.

I wyll not se you now in my passage: but I trust to abyde a whyle with you, yf God shall suffre me. I wyll tary at Ephesus, vntyll the fyftyeth daye. For a greate doze and a frutefull is opened vnto me * and ther are many aduersaryes. If ✠ Timotheus come, se that he be with out feare with you. For he worketh the worcke of the Lorde, as I do: let no man therfore despyse him. but conuaye hym forth in peace, that he maye come vnto me. For I loke for him with the brethren.

To speake of brother * Apollo (I certifye you, that) I greatly desyred him, to come vnto you with the brethren, but his mynde was not at all to come at this tyme. Howbeit, he wyll come, when he shall haue conuenient tyme. Watche ye, stonde fast in the fayth, quyte you lyke men, be stroge. Let all youre busynes be done with loue.

Brethren, ye knowe the house of * Stephana (& of Fortunatus & Achaicus) how that they are the fyrst frutes of Achaia, and that they haue apoynted them selues to ministre vnto the saīctes: I beseche you that ye be obedient vnto soche, and to all that helpe and laboure. I am glad of the commynge of Stephana & Fortunatus and Achaicus: for that whych was lackinge vnto me on youre parte they haue supplied. For they haue comforted my spyrite & youres. Loke therfore ỹ ye knowe them that are soche.

The congregacyons of Asia salute you. Aquila and Priscilla salute you moch in the Lorde, and so doeth the congregacyon that is in their house (with whom also I am lodged.) All the brethren grete you * Grete ye one another with an holy kysse. The salutacyon of me Paul with myne awne hāde. If eny man loue not the Lord Jesus Christ, the same be * Anathema maranatha. ¶ The consolacyon of God in trouble. The loue of Paul towarde the Corinthyans, & hys excuse that he came not vnto them.

Unto the congregacyon of God, which is at Corinthum, with all the sayncte which are in all Achaia * Grace be with you & peace from God oure father, and from the Lorde Jesus Christ.

✠ Blessed be God (the father of oure Lorde Jesus Christ) which is the father of mercy, & the God of all comforte, which comforteth vs in all oure tribulacyon, in so moche that we are able to cōforte them which are in any maner of trouble, with the same comforte, wherwith we oure selues are comforted of God. For as the * afflictyōs of Christ are plenteous in vs, euen so is oure consolacyon plenteous by Christ.

Whether we be troubled for youre consolacyon and health, * (Or whether we be comforted, it is for youre comforte & saluacyō) which saluacyon sheweth her power in that ye soffre the same afflictyons, which we also suffre: or whether we be comforted for youre consolacyon and saluacyon: our hope also is stedfast for you: in as moche as we know, how that as ye are partetakers of the afflictyons, so shall ye be partakers also of the consolacyon.

Brethren, I wolde not haue you ignoraunt of oure trouble, which happened vnto vs i * Asia. For we were greued out of measure passing strēgth, so greatly that we despayred euen of lyfe. ¶ He wyteth the cause of hys absence & exhorteth them to forgeue the man that was fallen, & to receaue hym agayne with loue.

A BUt I determined this in my selfe, that I wold not come agayne to you in heuynes. For yf I make you sorye, who is it yͤ shuld make me glad, but the same which is made sory by me? And I wrote thys same vnto you, lest yf I came vnto you, I shuld take heuynes

For out of great affliccyon and angwysshe of hert I wrote vnto you with many teares: not that ye shulde be made sory, but that ye myght perceaue the loue, whych I haue, most specially vnto you.

So that now contrary wyse, ye ought rather to forgeue him, and comforte him: lest that same persone shuld be swalowed vp wͭ ouer moch heuynes. Wherfore, I exhorte you, that loue maye haue strength ouer him.
For this cause verely dyd I wryte, that I myght knowe the proufe of you, whether ye shulde be obedient in all thynges. To whom ye forgeue eny thynge, I forgeue also. For yf I forgaue eny thynge, to whom I forgaue it, for youre sakes forgaue I it, in the syght of Christ, lest Satan shuld preuent C

WE begyn to prayse oure selues agayne, Nede we as some other, of Epistles of recommendacyon vnto you or letters of recommendacion from you? Ye are oure epistle wryttē in oure hertes, which is vnderstāde and red of all men, for asmoch as ye declare that ye are the epistle of Christ, mynistred by vs and wrytten, not with ynke: but with the spryte of the lyuynge God * not in tables of stone, but in

If the ministracyon of deeth thorow the letters fygured in stones, was glorious, so yͤ the chyldē of Israel coulde not beholde the face of Moses, for the glory of his countenaunce (whych glory is done awaye) why shall not the ministracyon of the spryte be moch more glorious? For yf the mynistringe of

The.viij.Chapter.

He putteth them in remembraunce to helpe the poore sayntes at Jerusalem, accordynge as the Macedonians dyd.

A I Certifye you brethren, of the grace of God which was geuen in ꝑ congregacyons of Macedonia, howe that the aboundaunce of their reioysynge is, that they are tryed with moche tribulacyon. And though they were exceadynge poore, yet haue they geuen exceading rychely, and that in singlenesse. For to their powers, I beare them recorde, yee, & beyõde their power, they were wyllynge of their awne accorde, and prayed vs with great instaunce, ꝑ we wolde receaue their benefyte, and suffre thẽ to be partetakers with other

B Nowe therfore, as ye are riche in all parties, in fayth, in worde, in knowledge, in all feruẽtnes, and in loue, which ye haue to vs: euen so, se that ye be plenteous in thys be-nuolence also. This saye I, not commaundynge: but because of feruentnes, I do alowe the vnfaynednesse of youre loue towarde other men. For ye knowe the liberalytie of oure Lord Jesus Chryst, that though he was
* Roma.v.a. * ryche, yet for youre sakes he became poore that ye, thorowe hys powertye, myght be made ryche.

And I geue councell hereto. For thys is expedient for you, which beganne, not to do onely, but also to wyll a yeare ago. Nowe therfore, performe the thynge which ye beganne to do: that as there was in you a re-

It is not my mynde that other be sett at ease, and ye brought into combraunce: but that ther be egalnes nowe at this tyme: and that your aboundance maye sucker their lacke: and that their aboundance maye supply youre lacke: that there maye be equalyte, a-

We haue sente with hym the brother, D

We haue sent wt them a brother of oures, whom we haue ofte tymes proued dilygent in many thynges: but nowe moch more diligent. The greate confidence which I haue in you, hath caused me thys to do: partelye for Titus sake which is my felowe and helper as concernyng you: partely because of other which are our brethren, and the messengers of the congregacyons, & the glory of Chryst. ## The.ix.Chapter.

In thys chapter doth he the same that he dyd in the chapter goynge before, that is, he moueth them to helpe the poore brethren at Jerusalem.

A * Actes.xi.d. i.Cor.xvi.a ii.Cor.viii.a. Roma.xv.f.

IF the ministrynge to ỹ sayncte̅s, it is but superfluous for me to wryte vnto you: for I knowe the redynes of your mynde, wherof I boast my selfe vnto them of Macedonia, that Achaia was prepared a yeare ago: and your ensample hath prouoked many. Neuertheles, yet haue I sent these brethren, lest our boastinge which I make of you shulde be in vayne, in this behalfe, that ye (as I haue sayde) maye prepare your selues: lest parauenture yf they of Macedonia come with me, and finde you vnprepared, we (I wyll not saye ye) shulde be ashamed in this matter of boastynge.

B Wherfore, I thought it necessarye to exhorte the brethren, to come before hande vnto you, and to prepare youre good blessynge promysed afore, that it myght be ready, so ỹ it be a blessynge, and not a defraudynge.

✠ This yet I saye: he which soweth lytell, shal reape lytell: & * he ỹ soweth (in geuynge) largelye and frelye, shall reape plenteouslye: And let euery man do, accordinge as he hath purposed in his herte, not grudgyngly, or of necessyte. * For God loueth a chearefull geuer.

D For the offyce of this mynystracion, not onely supplyeth the nede of the sayncte̅s: but also is aboundaunt herin, that for this laudable mynystringe, thankes might be geuen to God of many, which prayse God for the obedience of youre consentynge to the Gospell of Christ, and for youre synglenesse in distributynge to them, and to all men, and in their prayers for you, which loge after you, for the aboundaunt grace of God in you. Thankes be vnto God, for his vnspeakeable gyfte.

C The.x. Chapter:

C He toucheth the false Apostles, and defendeth his auctorite and callynge.

A I Paul my selfe beseche you by ỹ meknesse & softenesse of Christ, which whā I am present amōge you, am of no reputacyon: but am bolde toward you beynge absent. I beseche you, ỹ I nede not to be bolde whan I am presente, with that same boldnesse, wherewith I am supposed to haue bene bolde, agaynst some, which repute vs as though we walked carnally. For though we walke in ỹ flesshe, yet B we do not warre flesshly. * For ỹ weapens of oure warrefare are not carnall thynges, but thynges myghty in God, to cast downe stronge holdes, wherewith we ouerthrowe councels and euery hye thynge that exalteth it selfe agaynst the knowledge of God, and bryngeth into captiuyte all ymaginacō to the obedience of Christ, & are ready to take vengeaunce on all disobedience, when your obedience is fulfylled. Loke ye on thinges after the vtter appearaunce.

C If any man trust in hym selfe, that he is Christes, let hym consyder this agayne of him selfe, that as he is Christes, euen so, are we Christes. For though I boaste my selfe som what more of oure auctorite (which the Lorde hath geuen vs * to edifye, and not to destroye you) it shall not be to my shame: lest I shulde seme as though I wente aboute to make you afrayede with letters. For ỹ epistles (sayth he) are sore, and stronge: but his bodelye presence is weake, and his speache rude. Lett hym that is soche thynke on this wyse: that as we are in wordes by letters, when we are absent, soche are we in dedes, when we are present.

* ii.cor.xiii.a

D For we cānot fynde in our hertes to make oure selues of the nomber of them, or to cōpare oure selues to them, which prayse thē selues. Neuertheles, whyle they measure them selues w̄ them selues, and compare thē selues with them selues, they vnderstande nought. But we will not reioyce aboue measure: but accordynge to the measure of the rule, which God hath distributed vnto vs, a measure to reache euen vnto you. For we stretch not out our selues beyonde measure, as though we reached nott vnto you. For euen to you also haue we come w̄ the gospell of Christ, and we boast not our selues out of measure of other mennes labours: Yee, and we hope it wyll come to passe, ỹ when your faith is increased amōge you, we shalbe magnifyed accordynge to oure measure, more largely, and that I shall preache the Gospell in those regions which are beyōde you: & not to boast of those thynges, which by another mans measure are prepared allready. But let him that reioyseth, reioyse in the Lorde. For he ỹ prayseth hym selfe, is not alowed but he whom the Lorde prayseth.

C The.xj. Chapter:

C Paul (vnder sufferaunce) cōmendeth him selfe, and defendeth his auctorite agaynst the false prophetes.

A WOld to God, ye could haue suffred me a lytell in my folysshnes: yee, ye do also forbeare me. For I am gelous ouer you w̄ godly gelousye: For I haue coupled you to one man, that ye shulde make your selues a chaste virgin vnto Christ,

* Gene.iii.a to Christ. But I feare lest it come to passe ỹ, as the serpent * begyled Eue thorowe his subteltye, euen so your wittes shulde be corrupte frō the synglenes that ye had toward Christ. For yf he ỹ cōmeth preache another Iesus then him whō we preached: or yf ye receaue another spryte then ỹ which ye haue receaued, ether another Gospell then that ye B haue receaued, ye might right well haue bene contēt. For I suppose that I was not behynde the chefe Apostles. But though I be rude in speakinge, yet I am not so in knowledge. Howbeit amonge you, we haue bene well knowē to ỹ vtmost what we are in all thinges. Dyd I therin synne, because I submytted my selfe, that ye might be exalted: & because I preached to you ỹ Gospell of God fre? I robbed other cōgregacyōs, & toke wages of them, to do you seruyce. And when I C * Actes.xx.g ii.Cor.xii.d was present w̄ you, & had nede * I was chargeable to no man: for ỹ which was lackynge vnto me, the brethrē which came frō Macedonia, supplied, and in all thinges I kept my selfe so that I shuld not be chargeable to any man, and so wyll I kepe my selfe.

If the trueth of Christ be in me, this reioysyng shall not be taken from me in the regions of Achaia. Wherfore? Because I loue you not? God knoweth. Neuertheles, what I do, that wyll I do, to cut awaye occasyon from thē which desyre occasion: ỹ they might be founde lyke vnto vs, in that wherin they reioyce. For soch false apostles are disceatfull workers, and fassyon them selues lyke vnto the apostles of Christ. And no maruayle: for Satan him selfe is chaunged into the fassyō of an angell of light. Therfore it is no great thynge though his mynisters fassyon them selues, as though they were the ministers of ryghtewesnes: whose ende shalbe accordyng to theyr dedes.

I saye agayne, lest eny man thynke that I am folysshe: or els cuē now take ye me as a foole, that I also maye boast my selfe a lytell. That I speake, I speake not after the Lorde: but as it were folysshly, in this matter of boastinge. C Paul is taken vp into the thyrde heauen, and heareth wordes not to be spoken.

A THe God & father of oure Lorde Iesus Christ, which is blessed for euermore knoweth that I lye not.

✠ In the cytie of Damascon, the gouerner of ỹ people vnder king Aretas, layde watch in the cytie of the Damascens, and wold haue caught me: and * at a windowe was I let downe in a basket thorowe the wall, and so scaped I his handes. Doutles, it is not expedient for me to boast, I wyll come to visyōs and reuelacions of the Lord, I knowe a mā in Christ aboue fourtene yeares ago (whyther he were in the body, I cannot tell, or whyther he were out of the body, I cannot tell, God knoweth) howe that he was takē vp into the thyrde heauen. And I knowe the same man (whither in the body or out of the body, I cannot tell, God knoweth) howe ỹ he was taken vp into Paradyse, and heard secret wordes, which no man can vtter. Of this man wyll I boast, but of my selfe wyll B I not boast, except it be of myne infirmityes For though I wolde boast, I shall not be a foole: for I wolde saye the trueth. Neuertheles, I spare you: lest any man shulde thynke of me, aboue that which he seeth me to be, or that he heareth of me. * Actes.xx.b

And * lest I shulde be exalted out of measure thorowe ỹ excellēcye of the reuelacions: there was gyuen vnto me vnquyetnes thorowe the flesshe, euen the messenger of Satā to buffet me, because I shulde not be exalted out of measure. For the scripture seinge afore hande, that God wold iustifye ꝑ hethen thorowe fayth, shewed before hande glad tydynges vnto Abraham sayinge: * In the shall all nacyōs be blessed. So then, they which be of fayth, are blessed with faythfull Abraham. For as many as are of the dedes of the lawe, are subiecte to the curse. For it is written: * cursed be euery one that contynueth not in all thinges which are written in the boke of the lawe to fulfyll them. That no man is iustifyed by the lawe in the syght of God, it is cuydent. * For the iuste shall lyue by fayth. The lawe is not of fayth: but the man that fulfylleth the thinges (contayned in the lawe) shal lyue in them. Christ hath deliuered vs from the curse of the lawe, in as moche as he was made accursed for vs: For it is writtē: * cursed is euery one, that hangeth on tree, that the blessynge of Abraham myght come on the Gentyls thorowe Iesus Christ, that we myght receaue the promes of the spyrete thorowe fayth.

Brethren, I speake after ꝑ maner of mē. Though it be but a mans testamēt. Yet yf it be alowed, no mā despyseth it: or addeth eny thynge thereto. ✠ To Abraham and hys seede were the promyses made. He sayth not in the seedes, as many: but in thy seede, as of one, which is Christ. Thys I saye, that the lawe which beganne afterwarde, beyonge * foure hundred and thyrtye yeares, doeth not disanull the testamēt, that was confermed afore of God vnto Christ ward, to make the promes of none effecte. † For yf the inheritaunce come of the lawe, it commeth not nowe of promesse. Wherfore then serueth the lawe? * It was added because of transgression (tyll the seed came, to whom the promes was made) and it was ordeyned * by angels in the hand of a mediator. A mediator is not a mediator of one, but God is one. * Is the lawe then agaynst the promes of God? God forbyd. For yf there had bene a lawe geuen which coulde haue geuen lyfe: then no doute ryghtewesnes shulde come by the lawe. But the scripture concluded all thinges vnder synne, that the promes by ꝑ fayth of Iesus Christ shulde be geuen vnto them that beleue.

Not that

C Not that I haue attayned vnto it all ready, or that I am all ready perfecte: but I folowe, yf that I maye cõprehende that, wherin I am comprehẽded of Chryst Jesu. Bretheren, I counte not my selfe that I haue gotten it as yet, but this one thynge I saye: I forget those thinges which are behinde, & endeuoure my selfe vnto those thinges which are before, and (accordinge to the marke apoynted) I preache to the rewarde of the hye callynge of God thorowe Chryst Jesu. ## C The.iiii. Chapter.

C He saluteth certayne of them, exhorteth them to be of honeste conuersacyon, and thanketh them because of the prouision, that they made for him beyng in prison.

Therfore my bretherẽ (dearly beloued and longed for) my ioye and crowne, so continue in the Lorde ye beloued. I praye Euodias, and beseche Syntiches, ẏ they be of one accorde in the Lord. Ye of Philippos knowe also that in the begynnynge of the Gospell, when I departed from Macedonia, no congregacyon bare parte with me, as concernynge geuynge & receauinge, but ye onely. For when I was in Thessalonica, ye sent once and afterward agayne vnto my necessite: not ẏ I desire gyftes: but I desyre aboundant frute on youre parte. Neuertheles I receaued all, and haue plentie. ## ¶The.iij. Chapter.

¶What maner of mā a bysshoppe or prestе ought to be. The propertyes also requyred in a deacō or mynyster.

A THis is a true sayinge: If a mā desyer the office of a Bysshoppe, he desyreth an honest worke. A Bisshoppe therfore must be blameles, ỹ husbande of one wyfe, dilygent, sober, discrete, a keper of hospitalite: apte to teach: not geuē to ouer moch wyne, no fyghter, not gredy of fylthye lucre. but gētle, abhorrynge fyghtynge, abhorrynge couetеousnes, one ỹ ruleth well his awne house, one ỹ hath chyldren in subiectyon with all reuerēce. For yf a man cānot rule his awne house, howe shall he care for the congregacyon of God? He maye not be a yonge scoler, lest he swell and fall into the iudgement of the cuyll speaker. He must also haue a good reporte of them whych are without, lest he fall into rebuke, and snare of the cuyll speaker.

B Lykewyse must the mynisters be * honest, not double tonged, not geuē vnto moch *Actes.vi.a. wyne, nether gredy of fylthy lucre: but holdynge the mystery of the fayth with a pure conscience. And let them fyrst be proued, and then let thē mynister so, that no man be able to reproue them.

Euen so must theyr wyues be honest, not cuyll speakers: but sober and faythfull in all thynges. Let the Deacons be the husbandes of one wyfe, and such as rule theyr chyldren well, and their awne housholdes. For * they *mat.xxv.b that mynister well, get them selues a good degree and greate lybertye in ỹ fayth, whych is in Chryst Jesu.

C These thynges wryte I vnto the trustinge to come shortely vnto the: but and yf I tarie longe, that thou mayst yet haue knowledge, howe thou oughtest to behaue thy selfe in the house of God, whych is the congregacyon of the lyuynge God, the pyllar & grounde of trueth. And without doute great is that mystery of godlynes: * God was shewed in the fleshe, was ☞ iustifyed in the spryte, was sene amonge the Angels, was preached vnto the gentyls, was beleued on in the worlde, and receaued vp in glory. * Iohn.i.b ☞

¶ The Epistle of Sayncte Paul the Apostle vnto the Hebrues.

¶ The fyrst Chapter. ✠

¶ Howe God dealt louyngly wyth them of ꝑ olde tyme in sendynge them hys Prophetes, but moch more mercy hath he shewed vs in ꝑ he sent vs hys awne sonne. Of the moost excellent glory of Jesus Christ, which in all thynges is lyke to his father.

A GOd in time past diuersly and many wayes, spake vnto the fathers by Prophetes: but in these last dayes he hath spoken vnto vs by his awne sõne, whõ he hath made heyre of all thynges * by whõ also *Colo.i.c. ‡Sapiẽ.vij.d he made the worlde. ‡ Which (sonne) beinge ꝑ brightnes of his glory, and ꝑ very ymage of his substance rulynge all thynges with ꝑ worde of hys power, hath by hys awne person pourged oure synnes, and sytteth on the ryght hande of the maiestye on hye: beynge so moch more excellent then the angels, as he hath by inheritaunce obteyned a more excellent name then they.

B For vnto which of the angels sayde he at *Psal.ii.a. Actes.xiij.c. ‡ii. Re.vii.b. eny tyme: * Thou art my sonne, thys daye haue I begotten the? And agayne * I wyll be hys father, and he shalbe my sonne. And *Psa.xcvij.a agayne, when he bringeth in the fyrst begotten sonne into the worlde, he sayth. And * let ‡ Psal.cxiiij.a all the angels of God worshyppe hym. And vnto the angels he sayth. ‡ He maketh hys angels spirites, and hys minystres a flamme *Psal.ciij.b. of fyre. But vnto the sonne he sayth: * Thy seate (O God) shalbe for euer and euer. The scepter of thy kyngdome is a ryght scepter. Thou hast loued ryghteousnes, and hated iniquyte. Wherfore, God, euẽ thy God hath anoynted the with ꝑ oyle of gladnes aboue thy felowes.

*Psal.cij.b. * And thou Lorde in ꝑ begynnynge hast ¶ layde the foũdacyon of the erth. And the heauens are the workes of thy handes. They shall perysshe, but thou endurest, But they all shall waxe olde also as doth a garment: & as a vesture shalt thou chaunge them, & they shalbe chaunged. But thou art euen the same and thy yeres shall not fayle. ‖ Unto whych of the angels sayde he at eny tyme: * Syt on my ryght hande, tyll I make thyne enemyes thy fote stole? Are they not all *Psal.cx.a. Mat.xxij.d. i.Cor.xv.d. minystringe spirites, that are sent to minyster, for theyr sakes whych shalbe heyres of saluacyon?

¶ The.ij. Chapter.

¶ He exhorteth vs to be obedyent vnto the newe lawe which Christ hath geuen vs and not to be offended at the infirmyte and lowe degree of Christ, because it was necessary ꝑ for oure sakes he shulde take soch an humble state vpõ hym, that he myght be lyke vnto hys brethren.

A THerfore, we ought to geue the more erneste hede to the thynges that are spoken vnto vs, lest at any tyme we perysshe. For yf ꝑ worde whych was spokẽ by angells was stedfast: And euery transgressyon and disobedience receaued a iust recompence of rewarde, howe shall we escape, yf we despyse so great saluacyõ, which at the fyrst began to be preached of the Lorde hym selfe, and was cõfirmed vnto vs warde, by them ꝑ hearde it? * God bearynge wytnes therto, * Mar.xvi. both with sygnes & wonders also & with diuers myracles, & gyftes of the holy goost, accordynge to hys awne wyll.

For vnto the angels hath he not subdued the worlde to come, wherof we speake, but one in a certayne place wytnessed, sayinge, * What is man, that thou art myndfull of *Psal.viij. and. cxliij.a hym. Or the sonne of man, that thou visitest hym? Thou madest hym a lytle lower then B the angels: thou hast crowned hym with honour & glory, and * hast set hym aboue the *Psal.viij. i.Cor.xv.b. workes of thy handes. Thou hast put all thynges in subiectyõ vnder hys fete. In ꝑ he put all thynges vnder him, he left nothynge that is not put vnder him. Neuertheles, we se not yet all thynges subdued vnto him: but him that was made lesse then the angels, we se that it was Jesus, which is crowned with glory and honour for ꝑ sofferynge of death: that he by the grace of God, shulde taste of deth for all men.

For it became him, for whom are all thinges and by whom are all thynges (after that ¶ he had brought many sonnes vnto glory) that he shulde make the Lorde of their saluacyon perfecte thorowe afflictyons. For both he that sanctifyeth and they which are sanctyfyed, are all of one. For whych cause sake he is not ashamed to call them brethren, sayinge: I wyll declare thy name vnto my * brethren, in the myddes of the congregacyon wyll I prayse the. And agayne: I wyll *Psal.xvij. Iohn.xx.d. put my trust in hym. And agayne: beholde, here am I and the chyldren whom God hath geuen me.

For as moch then as the chyldren are partetakers of flesshe and bloud, he also him selfe lykewyse toke parte with them that (thorowe deeth) he myght expell hym that had lordshyppe ouer deeth, that is to saye the deuyll, and that he myght delyuer them, which thorowe feare of deeth were all there lyfe tyme subdued vnto bondage. For he in no place taketh on hym the angels: but the seed of Abraham taketh he on hym. Wherfore, in all thynges it became hym to be made lyke vnto his brethren, that he myght be mercyfull, and a faythfull hye Preste in thynges concernynge God, for to pourge the peoples synnes. For in that it fortuned hym selfe to be tempted, he is able to succker thẽ also that are tempted.

¶ The.iij. Chapter.

¶ He requyreth vs to be obedyent vnto the worde of Christ, which is more worth then ꝑ ceremoniall lawe of Moses. The punyshement of such as will nedes harden their hartes.

A WHerfore holy brethren, partakers of the celestiall callynge cõsyder the ambassadour and hye preste of oure profession Christ Jesus, howe that he is faythfull vnto hym that put hym in the office, euẽ as was Moses in all his house. For loke howe moche honoure he (that hath buylded a house) hath more then the house it selfe, so moch honour is he counted worthy of more then Moses. For euery house is buylded of some mã. But he that ordeyned all thynges, is God. And Moses verely was faythfull in all hys house, as a minyster, to beare witnes of those thynges which were to be spoken after warde. But Christ as a sonne, hath rule ouer the house, whose house are we, yf *Rom.b.a. we holde fast the cõfydence and * the reioysynge of that hope, vnto the ende.

Wherfore (as the holy goost sayth:) to daye yf ye wyll heare hys voyce, harden not ☞ youre hertes, ☞ as in the prouokynge, in B the daye of temptacyon in the wyldernes, where youre fathers tẽpted me, proued me, and sawe my workes. xl. yeare. Wherfore I was greued with ꝑ generacyon, and sayde: They do all waye erre in their hertes: they verely haue not knowen my wayes, so ꝑ I sware in my wrath: they shall not enter into my rest. Take hede brethrẽ, lest at anye tyme ther be in anye of you a frowarde herte subiect vnto vnbeleue, that he shulde departe frõ the lyuynge God: but exhorte ye one another dayly, while it is called to daye: lest eny of you waxe harde harted thorowe the deceytfulnesse of synne.

¶ We are made partetakers of Christ, yf ☞ we kepe sure (vnto the ende) the ☞ begynnynge of the substãce, so longe as it is sayde: to daye yf ye wyll heare hys voyce, harden not youre hertes, as in the prouokynge, for some when they hearde dyd prouoke: howe be it not all ꝑ came out of Egypt by Moses:

But with whom was he displeased. xl. yeares? Was he not displeased with them that had synned, whose carkases were ouerthrowen in the desert? To whom sware he that they shulde not enter into his rest, but vnto them that were not obediẽt? And we se, that they coulde not enter in, because of vnbeleue.

¶ The.iiij. Chapter.

¶ The Sabboth or rest of the Christen: punyshemẽt of vnbeleuers: the nature of ꝑ worde of God.

LEt vs feare therfore, lest eny of A you, forsakynge ꝑ promes of entringe into hys rest) shulde seme at anye tyme to haue bene disapoynted. For vnto vs is it declared, as well as vnto them. But it profyted not thẽ, that they hearde the worde: because they whych hearde it, coupled it not with fayth. For we which haue beleued, do enter into his rest, as he sayde. Euẽ as I haue sworne in my wrath: they shall not enter into my rest. And that spake he verely longe after that the workes were made, and the foũdacyon of the worlde layde. For he spake in a certayne place of the seuenth daye, on thys wyse. ‡ And God dyd ‡Gene.ij.a. rest the seuenth daye from all hys workes. And in thys place agayne: They shall not enter into my rest.

Seynge therfore it foloweth, that some must enter therinto, and they (to whom it was fyrst preached) entred not therin for vn beleefes sake, he apoynteth a certayne daye after so longe a tyme sayinge in Dauid (as it is rehearsed) this daye yf ye wyll heare hys voyce, harden not your hertes. For yf Josue had geuẽ them rest, then wolde he not afterwarde haue spoken of another daye. There remayneth therfore yet a rest to the people of God. For he that is entred into hys rest hath ☞ ceased also from his awne workes, ☞ as God dyd from his.

Let vs study therfore to entre into that ¶ rest, lest eny man fall after the same ensample of vnbeleefe. For the worde of God is quycke, and myghty in operacion, and sharper then eny two edged sworde: & entreth thorough, euen vnto the diuidynge a sonder of the soule and the spirite, and of the ioyntes and the mary: and is a discerner of ꝑ thoughtes and of the intentes of the herte: nether is ther eny creature that is not manifest in the syght of him: But all thinges are naked and open vnto the eyes of him, of whom we speake.

Seynge then, that we haue a great hye D preste which is entred into heauen (euen Jesus the sonne of God) let vs holde the profession. * (of oure hope) For we haue not an hye preste, which cannot haue cõpassyon on oure infirmities: but * was in all poyntes tempted, lyke as we are: but yet with out synne. *Philip.ij.a Let vs therfore go boldely vnto the * seate *Ero.xxv.b. of of grace, that we maye obtayne mercy, and fynde grace to helpe in tyme of nede.

Euē so Christ also glorified not him selfe, to be made the hye preste: but he that sayde vnto him, * thou art my sonne, this daye haue I begoten the, glorifyed him. As he sayeth also in another place: * thou art a Preste for euer after the order of Melchisedech ✠ which in ỹ dayes of his flesshe, whan he had offered vp prayers and supplicacions, with stronge cryinge and teares (vnto him that was able to saue him from deeth) and was hearde because of hys reuerence, though he were ỹ sonne (of God) yet learned he obedience, by those thynges which he suffered: & he beynge perfecte, was the cause of eternall saluacion vnto all thē that obeyed him: and is called of God an hye Preest, after the order of Melchisedech.

Wherof we wolde speake many thinges but they are harde to be vttered: seynge ye are dull of hearinge. For whē as cōcerninge the tyme, ye ought to be teachers, yet haue ye nede agayne, that we teache you the fyrst principles of the worde of God: and are become such as ☞ haue nede of * mylke: and

¶The office of Christ is more worthy then the prestes office of the olde lawe, whyche was imperfecte, and therfore abrogate.

Of the thynges which we haue spoken, thys is the pyth: that * we haue such an hye preste as sytteth on the ryght hande of the seate of maiestye in heauen, and is a mynyster of holy thynges, and of the true tabernacle, whych God pyght, and not man. For euery hye preest is ordeyned to offer gyftes and sacrifices: wherfore it is of necessite, that this man haue some what also to offer. For he were not a preest, yf he were on the erth where are preestes, that accordynge to the lawe offer gyftes whych serue vnto the ensample, and *shadowe of heauenly thynges: euen as the

In that he sayth a new testamēt, he hath worne out the olde, For that which is worne out & waxed olde, is redy to vanyshe awaye.

¶ The .ix. Chapter.

THe olde testament then had verely ordynaunces, and seruinges of God, and worldly holynes. For *there was a fore tabernacle made, wherin was the lyght, and the table, and the shewe breed, whych hys called holy. But within the seconde vayle was there a tabernacle, whych is called holyest of all, whych had the goldē senser, and the arcke of the testament ouerlayde round about with golde, wherin was the golden pot with *Manna, and *Aarons rodde, that spronge and *the tables of the testamēt. Ouer the arcke were the Cherubins of glory, shadowyng ỹ seate of grace. Of which thynges we cannot now speake particularly.

When these thinges were thus ordeyned, the prestes went allwayes into the fyrst tabernacle, whych executed ỹ seruice of ỹ holy thynges. But into the seconde went the hye prest alone* once euery yeare: not wyth out bloud* which he offered for him selfe, and for the ignorauces of the people. Wherwith ỹ holy goost thys signifyed, that the waye of holy thynges was not yet opened, whyll as yet ỹ fyrst tabernacle was stādyng. Which was a symilitude for the tyme then present, in which were offred gyftes and sacrifices, that coulde not make the minister parfecte, as pertayning to the cōscyence, wyth onely meates & drinckes, & diuers washynges and iustifyinges of the flesche, whych were ordeyned vntyll the tyme of reformacyon.

But* Christ beynge and hye Prest of good thynges to come, came by a greater & a more perfecte tabernacle, not made wyth hādes: that is to saye, not of thys buylding, nether by the bloude of goates & calues: but *by hys awne bloude he entred in once into the holy place, and founde eternall redempcyon.

For yf the* bloud of oxen and of gotes & ỹ ashes of a yong kow, whē it was sprinckled, purifieth the vnclene, as touchyng the purifyinge of the flesche: how moch moare shall the bloud of Christ (which thorow the eternall spyrete, offered him self without spot to God) pourge youre conscience from deed workes, for to serue the lyuinge God?

And for this cause is he the* mediator of the new testamēt, that thorow deeth which chaunsed, for the redemption of those transgressiōs that were vnder the fyrst testamēt they whych are called, myght receaue ỹ promes of eternall inheritaunce. For where as is a testament, ther must also (of necessite) be ỹ deeth of hym that maketh the testament. For the testament taketh auctorytie whē mē are deed: for it is yet of no value, as lōge as he ỹ maketh ỹ testamēt is alyue, for which cause also nether ỹ fyrst testamēt was ordeyned without bloude. For whē Moses had declared all the commaundement to all the people accordyng to the lawe, he toke the bloud of calues and of goates, with water & purple wolle, and yssope, and sprickled both the boke, & all the people, saying: * this is ỹ bloud of the testamēt, whych God hath appoynted vnto you. Moreouer, he sprinckled the tabernacle wyth bloud also, and all the ministringe vessels. And almost all thinges are by the lawe purged with bloud, & without sheadinge of bloud is no remissyon.

It is nede thē, that the similitudes of heauenly thynges be purifyed wyth soch thynges: but that the heauenly thynges them selues be purifyed wyth better sacrifyces then are those. *For Christ is not entred into ỹ holy places that are made wyth handes (whych are symilitudes of true thynges) but is entred into very heauen, for * to appeare now in the syght of God for vs: not to offer hym selfe ofte* as the hye prest entreth into ỹ holy place euery yeare with straūge bloud, for thē must he haue often offered sence ỹ worlde began. But now in the ende of the worlde, hath he appeared once, to put sinne to flight by the offerynge vp of him selfe. And as it is apoynted vnto all men that they shall once dye, and then cōmeth the iudgemēt* euen so Christ was once offered, to take awaye ỹ sinnes of many, & vnto them that loke for hym shall he appeare agayne without synne vnto saluacyon.

¶ The .x. Chapter.

¶ The olde lawe had no power to clense awaye synne, but Christe dyd it with offeryng of his body once for all. An exhortatiō to receaue this goodnesse of God thanckfully with pacience and stedfast fayth.

FOr the lawe (hauynge the * shadowe of good thynges to come, and not ỹ very fashion of ỹ thynges the selues) can neuer with those sacrifices which they offer, yeare by yeare continually make the cōmers therunto parfayt. For wold not then those sacrifices haue ceased to haue bene offred, because that the offerers once purged shuld haue had no more cōscience of synnes? Neuertheless, in those sacrifyces, is there mencyon made of synnes euery yeare. * For the bloude of oxen and of goates can not take awaye synnes.

Wherfore

Wherfore, when he cōmeth into ỹ worlde he sayth: * Sacrifyce and offerynge ỹ wold est not haue: but a body hast ỹ ordeyned me: Burnt offerynges also for synne hast ỹ not alowed. Then sayd I: lo, I am here. In the begynnyng of the booke it is writtē of me, ỹ I shuld do thy will, o God. Aboue, whē he sayeth: sacrifice & offeryng, & burnt sacrifyces and synne offerynges ỹ woldest not haue, nether hast ỹ alowed thē (whiche yet are offered by ỹ lawe) then sayd he: Lo, I am here, to do thy will, o God: he taketh awaye the fyrst to stablische the latter, by wych will we are made holy, euyn by ỹ offeryng of ỹ body of Jesu Christe once for all.

And euery preest is ready dayly ministrig and offryng oftē tymes one maner of oblacion, which can neuer take awaye synnes. But thys man after he hath offered one sacrifice for synnes, is set downe for euer * on the ryght hād of God, & from hēce forth tarryeth tyll his foes be made his fote stole. For wt one offerige hath he made parfecte for euer, them ỹ are sanctyfyed. The holy goost him self also beareth vs recorde, euen when he tolde before: This is ỹ testamēt ỹ I wyll make vnto them: after those dayes (sayth ỹ lorde) I will put my lawes i their hertes, & in their myndes will I write thē, & their synnes & iniquities will I remēber nomore. And where remission of these thynges is, ther is nomore offeryng for synne.

Seyng therfore brethren, ỹ by ỹ meanes of ỹ bloud of Jesu * we haue libertye to enter into ỹ holy place, by ỹ new & lyuig waye which he hath prepared for vs, thorough ỹ vayle (that is to saye, by his flesche.) And seing also ỹ we haue an hye prest whych is ruler ouer ỹ house of God, let vs draw nye wt a true herte in a sure fayth, sprynckeled in our hertes & ỹ euyll conscīēce put awaye & wesched in our bodyes wt pure water: let vs kepe ỹ profession of our hope, wout wauerynge (for he is faithfull ỹ promysed) & let vs cōsider one another, to pūtē ỹ we maye prouoke vnto lone, & to good workes, not forsakynge ỹ felishyppe ỹ we haue among our selues, as the maner of some is: but let vs exhorte one another, & so moch the more, because ye se that the daye draweth nye.

* For yf we synne wyllfully after ỹ we haue receaued ỹ knowledge of the trueth, ther remayneth nomore sacrifyce for synnes, but a fearfull lokyng for iudgement, & violēt fyre, whych shall deuoure ỹ aduersaries. He ỹ despiseth Moses lawe, dyeth wythout mercy * vnder two or thre witnesses: how moch sorer (suppose ye) shall he be punished which treadeth vnder fote ỹ sonne of God: & counteth the bloude of ỹ testamēt, wherwith he was sanctifyed, as an vnholy thyng, & doth dishonoure to ỹ spyrete of grace. For we knowe hym ỹ hath sayd: * It belōgeth vnto me to take vēgeaunce. I wyll recōpēce sayth ỹ Lord. And agayne: ỹ Lord shal iudge his people. It is a fearfull thynge to fall into ỹ hādes of the lyuyng God.

Call to remēbraunce the dayes that are passed, in the whych after ye had receaued lyght, ye endured a greate fyght of aduersities, partly whyle all men wondred & gased at you for the shame and tribulacyon ỹ was done vnto you: partly, whyle ye became cōpanyōs of them which so passed their tyme. For ye became parttakers also of ỹ afflyccyōs whych happened thorow my bōdes, & toke in worth the spoylyng of your goodes, & that wyth gladnes: knowynge in your selues, how that ye haue in heauen a better & an enduring substaūce. Cast not awaye therfore your cōfydēce, whych hath a great recōpence of reward. For ye haue nede of pacyēce, that after ye haue done the wyll of God, ye myght receaue ỹ promes. For yet a very lytell whyle, & he ỹ shall come wyll come, & wyll not tary. But * the iust shall lyue by faith. And yf he withdraw me him selfe, my soule shall haue no pleasure in him. It is not we ỹ withdraw our selues vnto dāpnacion, but we partayne vnto fayth, to the wynnynge of the soule.

FAyth is a sure confydēce of thynges, wyych are hoped for, & a certaynte of thynges whych are not sene. For by it the elders obtayned a good reporte. Thorow fayth we vnderstande, that * the worlde was ordeyned by ỹ worde of God, and that thinges whych are sene, were made of thynges * whych were not sene. ‡ By fayth Abel offered vnto God a more plenteous sacrifyce then Cayn: by wyych he obteyned witnes ỹ he was ryghteous, God testifyinge of his gyftes: by whych also he beyng deed, yet speaketh.

¶ The.iii. Chapter.

THis is the seconde epistle that I now wryte vnto you dearly beloued, wherwith I stere vp your syncere mynde, by puttyng you in remembraunce, that ye maye be myndefull of the wordes (whych were tolde before of the holy Prophetes) and also the commaundement of vs whych be Apostles of the Lorde and sauyour *This fyrst vnderstande, that ther shall come in the last dayes, mockers *(in disceatfulnesse) whych wyll walke after their awne lustes, & saye: Where is the promes of hys commynge? For sence the fathers dyed, all thynges continue in the same estate wherin they were at the beginninge. For this they knowe not (and that wylfully) how that ỹ heauens a great whyle ago were, & the erth out of the water appeared vp thorow the water, by the word of God: by the whych thynges the world that then was, perysshed beynge ouerrunne wyth water. *But the heaues and erth whych are now, be kept by hys worde in store, and reserued vnto fyre, agaynst the daye of iudgement & perdicion of vngodly men. *Actes.xx.f. i.Pet.ii.a *2 Judi.i.e. i. Tim. viii.e ii. Timot.iii. B *Job.xviii.d Esa.li.b.

Dearly beloued, be not ignorant of this one thige, howe that* one daye is with the Lorde as a thousande yeare, & a thousande yeare as one daye. The Lord that hath promised, is not slacke, as some mẽ count slackenes: but is pacyent to vs warde: for as moch as he wolde haue no man lost, but wyll receaue all men to repentaunce. *Psalm.xc.a i.Corin.viii.e

Neuertheless* the daye of the Lord wyll come as a theefe in the nyghte, in the which daye, the heauens shall passe awaye in maner of a tempest, and the elemẽtes shal melt with heat: the erth also & the workes that are therin, shall burne. Seyng thẽ that all these thinges shal perisshe, what maner persons ought ye to be in holy conuersacyon, and godlynes: lokyng for, and hastinge vnto the commynge of the daye of God, by whõ the heauens shall perisshe with fyre, & the elementes shall melt with heate? *Neuertheless, we (accordig to his promes) looke for a new heauẽ and a new earth, wherin dwelleth ryghteweisnes. C *ma.xxiiii.d i. Thessa.v.a Apo.xxi.a and.xvi.d * Apo.xxi.a.

Wherfore dearly beloued, seynge that ye loke for such thinges, be diligent ỹ ye maye be founde of hym in peace, wythout spotte and vndefyled. And suppose that the longe sufferinge of the Lord is saluacyon, euen as oure derely beloued brother Paule also (accordinge to the wysdome geuen vnto him) hath wrytten vnto you, ye, almoost i euery epistle, speakynge of such thinges: amonge which are many thinges harde to be vnderstãde, which they that are vnlearned & vnstable, peruert, as they do also ỹ other scriptures vnto their awne destrucciõ. Ye therfore beloued, (seynge ye be warned afore hãd) beware, lest ye, wyth other men be also plucked awaye thorow the erroure of the wycked, and fall from your awne stedfastnes: but growe in grace, & in the knowledge of oure Lorde and sauyoure Jesus Chryst. To whom be glory both now and for euer. Amen. D

MY lyttell chyldren, these thinges write I vnto you, that ye synne not. And yf eny man synne, we haue an aduocate wyth the father, Jesus christ, the ryghteous: & he it is ꝑ obtayneth grace for oure synnes, not for oure synnes onely: but also for ꝑ synnes of all the worlde. ✠ And herby we are sure ꝑ we knowe hym, yf we kepe hys commaundementes.
*Joh.xiii.d. * He that sayth I knowe hym, and kepeth not hys commaundementes is a lyar, and the veritye is not in hym. But whoso kepeth hys worde, in hym is the loue of God parfect i dede: herby knowe we that we are in him. He ꝑ sayth he bydeth in hym, ought to walke euen as he walked. ✠

B Brethren, I wryte no newe cõmaundement vnto you: but that olde commaundemẽt, which ye haue had frõ the begynnynge. The olde commaundement is the worde, which ye haue hearde from the begynninge. Agayne, a new commaundement I wryte vnto you, that is true in him, and the same is true also in you: for the derknes is past, and the true lyght now shyneth. ✠ He that sayth how that he is in the lyght, & yet hateth his brother, is in derknes euen vntyll thys tyme. He that loueth his brother, abydeth in the lyght, and ther is none occasion of euyll in hym. He that * hateth his bro- *Leui.xix.d

I haue wryten vnto you fathers, how that ye haue knowne hym that is from the begynnynge. I haue wrytẽ vnto you ponge men, how that ye are strõge, and the worde of God abydeth in you, and ye haue ouercome that wycked.

For all that is in the worlde (as the lust of the flesshe, and the lust of the eyes, & the pryde of life) is not of the father, but of the worlde. And the worlde passeth a waye and the lust therof: but he that fulfyl leth the will of God, abydeth for euer.

D Lyttell chyldren, it is the last tyme, and as ye haue herde how that Antichrist shall come, euen now are there many begonne to be Antichristes allredy, wherby we knowe, ꝑ it is the last tyme. * They went out frõ vs, *Actuũ.xx.f
but they were not of vs. For yf they had be ne of vs, they wolde no dout haue cõtinued with vs. But that it myght appeare, that they were not of vs.

Neuertheles, ye haue an oyntmẽt of him ꝑ is holy, and ye knowe all thiges. ✠ I haue not wrytẽ vnto you, as though ye knewe not ꝑ trueth: but as though ye knewe it (& knowe also) ꝑ no lye cõmeth of trueth. Who is a lyar, but he that denyeth that Jesus is Christ? the same is Antichrist, that denieth the father & the sonne. Whosoeuer denyeth the sonne, the same hath not the father.
(he that knowlegeth the sonne, hath the father also) Let therfore abyde in you that same which ye hearde from the begynninge. If that which ye hearde from the begynnynge shal remayne in you, ye also shall contynew in the sonne, and in the father. And thys is the promes that he hath promysed vs, euen eternall lyfe.

Lyttell chyldren, ye are of God, and haue ouercome them: for greater is he that is in you, then he that is in the worlde. They are of the worlde, therfore speake they of the worlde, and the worlde heareth them. We
B are of God. He that knoweth God, heareth vs: he ꝑ is not of God, heareth vs not. Herby knowe we the sprete of veritie, and the sprete of errroure.

Dearly beloued * let vs loue one another: *Joh.xiii.b. and.xb.b for loue cõmeth of God. And euery one that loueth, is borne of God, and knoweth God. I. Pet.ii.d. He that loueth not, knoweth not God: for ✠ God is loue. In this appeared ꝑ loue of God to vs ward, because ꝑ * God sent hys *John.iii.c. Roma.v.b.b. only begotten sonne into the worlde, ꝑ we might liue thorow him. Herin is loue, not ꝑ we loued God, but ꝑ he loued vs, & sent hys sonne to be the agrement for oure synnes.

Dearly beloued, yf God so loued vs, we C ought also to loue one another. * No man *Ex.xxxiii.d Judic.b.e. Deuter.xxxi.b Jo.i.c.e.vi.c hath sene God at eny tyme. If we loue one another, God dwelleth in vs, & hys loue is parfect in vs. Herby knowe we ꝑ we dwell in hym.

in hym. And he in vs: because he hath geuen vs of hys spyrite. And we haue sene, & do testifye, that the father sent þ sonne to be the sauyour of the worlde. Whosoeuer confesseth, þ Jesus is the sonne God, in him dwelleth God, & he in God. And we haue knowē and beleued the loue þ God hath to vs.

D God is loue, & he that dwelleth in loue, dwelleth in God, and God in him. Here is the loue perfect in vs, þ we shuld haue trust in the daye of iudgement: for as he is, euē so are we i this worlde. Ther is no feare in loue, but parfect loue casteth out feare, for feare hath paynfulnes. He þ feareth, is not parfect in lone.

We loue him, for he loued vs fyrst. If a man say, I loue God, and yet hate his brother, he is a liar. For how cā he þ loued not hys brother whom he hath sene, loue God whom he hath not sene? And this cōmaundement haue we of hym: þ he which loueth God, shuld loue his brother also. F

¶ To loue God, is to kepe his commaundementes. Fayth ouercōmeth the worlde. Euerlastynge lyfe is in the sonne of God. Of the synne vnto death.

¶ The.v.Chapter.

A Whosoeuer beleueth þ Jesus is Chryst, is borne of God. And euery one that loueth hym which begat, loueth him John. viij. c. also which was begotten of him. * By this we knowe, þ we loue the chyldren of God, when we loue God, and kepe his commaundementes. For this is the loue of God, that
* Mat. xij. d. We kepe his commaūdementes, and * his cōmaundementes are not greuous. F For all that is borne of God, ouercommeth the B worlde. And this is the * victory that ouercommeth the worlde, euē oure fayth. Who
*1. Cor. xv. g. is it þ ouercōmeth the worlde: but he which beleueth, that Jesus is the sonne of God?

This Jesus Chryst is he that cam by water & bloud, not by water onely: but by water and bloud. And it is the spyrite that beareth wytnes, because the spyrite is trueth.

(For ther are thre which beare recorde in heauen, þ father, þ worde & þ holy goost. And these thre are one.) And ther
C are thre which beare recorde * (in erth) þ spyrite & water, and bloud: & these thre are one.
If we receaue the wytnes of mē, the witnes of God is greater. For this is the witnes of C God * (that is greater) which he testifyed of his sonne. He that beleueth on the sōne of God, hath the witnes in hym selfe. F He that beleueth not God, hath made him a liar because he beleued not the recorde þ God gaue of hys sonne. And this is þ recorde, how ¶ that God hath geuē vnto vs eternall lyfe, & this lyfe is in hys sonne. He that hath the sonne hath lyfe: & he that hath not the sonne of God, hath not lyfe.

These thynges haue I wryttē vnto you that beleue on the name of the sōne of God, that ye maye knowe, how that ye haue eternall lyfe, & that ye maye beleue on the name of the sonne of God. And thys is þ trust that we haue in hym: that * pf we aske eny thynge accordynge to hys wyll, he heareth vs. And pf we knowe þ he heare vs what
* Mat. xxi. c. and. xxi. c. Mar. xi. d. Luke. xi. h John. xiiij. b. xv. b. xvi. f Jaco. i. c. 1. John. iij. d. soeuer we aske, we knowe, that we haue the peticyons, that we desyre of hym.

If eny man se hys brother synne a synne not vnto deeth, let him aske, & he shall geue him lyfe for thē that synne not vnto deeth. Ther is a synne vnto deeth, for which saye I not þ a mā shuld prayre. All vnrygh tewelnes is synne, & ther is synne not vnto deeth.

We knowe, that whosoeuer is borne of God, synneth not: but he that is begottē of God, kepeth hym selfe, & that wycked touch eth hym not. We knowe, that we are of God, and the worlde is all together set on wyckednes. We knowe, that the sonne of God is come, and hath geuē vs a mynde to knowe hym which is true: & we are in hym that is true, through is sonne Jesu Chryst. This same is very God, and eternall lyfe. Babes kepes youre selues from ymages. Amen.

¶ The seconde epistle of Sayncte John.

¶ He wryteth vnto a certayne lady, reioyseth that her childre walke in þ trueth, exhorteth them vnto loue, warneth them to beware of such disceauers as denye that Jesus Chryst came in the flesh, prayeth them to continue in the doctrine of Chryst, & to haue nothinge to do with them that bringe not this lerninge.

A The elder to the electe lady ād her childrē, whom I loue in þ trueth: and not I onely, but also all that haue knowē the trueth for þ truthes sake whych dwelleth in vs, and shalbe in vs for euer.

With vs shall be grace, mercye, & peace from God the father & from the lord Jesus Chryst þ sonne of the father, i trueth & loue.

B I reioysed greatly, that I founde of thy childre walkinge in trueth, as we haue receaued a cōmaundement of the father. And now beseche I þ lady, not as though I wrote a new cōmaundement vnto the, but that same which we haue had frō the begynnynge, that we shuld * loue one another. And this
* Joh. xiiij. d. 1. John. v. b. is the loue, that we shulde walke after hys commaundement.

This commaundement is (that as ye haue hearde frō þ begynnynge) ye shuld walke in it. For many deceauers are entred into the worlde, whych confesse not that Jesus Chryst is come in the flesh. This is a deceauer and an Antichryst. Loke on your selues that we loose not that we haue wrought: but that we maye haue a full reward. Who
C soeuer trāsgresseth & bydeth not i þ doctryne of Chryst, hath not God. He þ endureth i þ doctrine of Chryst, hath both þ father & þ sonne. If ther come eny vnto you, & bringe not this learnige, him receaue not to house: nether byd hi God spede. For he þ byddeth hi God spede, is partaker of hys cuyl dedes
O (Beholde, I haue tolde you before, that ye shulde not be ashamed in daye of the lorde.) I had many thynges to wryte vnto you, neuertheless I wolde not wryte w̄ paper and ynke: but I trust to come vnto you, & speake w̄ you mouth to mouth, that oure ioye maye be full: the sonnes of thy electe sister grete the. Amen.

¶ The thyrde epistle of Sayncte John.

¶ He is glad of Gayus, that he walketh in the trueth: exhorteth them to be loueynge vnto the poore Christen in theyr persecucion, sheweth the vnkynde dealynge of Diotrephes, and the good reporte of Demētrius.

A The elder vnto þ beloued Gayus whō I loue in the trueth. Beloued I wisshe in all thynges that thou prosperedest, and faredest well, euen as thy soule prospereth. For I reioysed greatly, whē þ brethren came, and testifyed of the trueth that is in the, how thou walkest in the trueth. I
B haue no greater ioye, thē for to heare, how that my sonnes walke in veritye. Beloued thou doest faythfully, what soeuer þ doest to þ brethren, and to straūgers, which beare wytnes of thy loue before the congregacyon. Which brethren if thou bringe for warde of theyr iorney (after a godly sorte) þ shalt do well: because that for his names sake they wēt forth: and take nothyn-
C ge of the Gētyls. We therfore ought to receaue such, that we myght be helpers to the trueth. I wrote vnto the congregaciō: but Diotrephes which loueth to haue the preeminence amōge them, receaueth vs not.

Wherfore yf I come, I will declare hys dedes which he doeth, iestinge on vs w̄ malicious wordes, nether is therwith contēt. Not onely he him selfe receaueth not þ brethren: but also he forbyddeth thē þ wolde, and thrusteth them out of the congregaciō.
D Beloued, folowe not that which is cuyll, but that which is good. He that doeth well is of God: but he that doeth cuill, seyth not God. Demetrius hath good reporte of all men & of the trueth it selfe. yee, and we oure selues also beare recorde, & ye knowe, that oure recorde is true. I had many thinges to wryte: but I will not with ynke and penne wryte vnto the. I trust I shall shortly se þ & we shall speake mouth to mouth. Peace be vnto the. The louers salute the. Grete the louers by name.

¶ The Epistle of Sayncte Jude.

¶ He rebuketh such as bringe blynded with their awne lustes, resyst the trueth. He exhorteth vs to edifye oné another, to prayre in þ holy ghost & to continue in loue & to loke for the commynge of the Lorde.

A Judas the seruaūt of Jesus Chryst þ brother of James. To them which are called, and sanctifyed in God the father, and preserued in Jesu Chryst. Mercy vnto you and peace and loue be multiplyed.

Beloued, when I gaue all dyligence to wryte vnto you of the commen saluacyon, it was nedeful for me to write vnto you, to exhorte you, that ye shuld contynually laboure in the fayth, which was once geuen vnto þ sayncte. For ther are certayne vngodly mē craftely crept in, of which it was

A The reuelacyon of Jesus Chzist which God gaue vnto him, for to shewe vnto hys seruauntes, thynges whych muste shortely come to passe. ✠ And whan he had sent, he shewed by hys Angell vnto his seruaūt John, which bare recozde of the wozde of God, and of the testymony of Jesus Chzist, and of all thynges that he sawe. I John youre bzother, and companiō in C tribulaciō, and in the kyngdome & pacience in Jesu Chzist, was in the yle that is called Pathmos, for ꝑ wozde of God, and for the witnessig of Jesu Christ: I was i the spzete on a sondaye, & herde behynde me a great voyce, as it had bene of a trompe, sayinge: I am Alpha and Omega, the fyrst and the laste. That thou seyst, wzyte in a boke, and sende it vnto the seuen cōgregaciōs which are in Asia, vnto Ephesus, & vnto Smyrna and vnto Pergamos, and vnto Thiatira, and vnto Sardis, & vnto Philadelphia, and vnto Laodicia.

And I turned backe to se the voyce that
D spake to me. And when I was turned: I sawe seuen golden candelstickes, & i the myddes of the candelstickes, one lyke vnto the sonne of man, clothed with a lynnē garmēt downe to the fete, and gyzd about the pappes wt a golden gyzdle. His heed, & his heares were whyte, as whyte woll, & as snowe and hys eyes were as a flame of fyze: & hys fete lyke vnto brasse, as though they bzent in a foznace, and his voyce as the sounde of many waters. ### ¶ The.ii. Chapter.

¶ He exhorteth foure congregacyons to amende, & sheweth the rewarde of hym that ouercōmeth.

A Vnto the messenger of ꝑ cōgregacyō of Ephesus wzyte: these thynges sayth he, that holdeth the seuen starres in hys ryght hande, and that walketh in the myddes of the seuen golden cādelstickes. I knowe thy wozkes, and thy labour, & thy pacience, and how thou canneste not forbeare them whych are euyll: and hast examined them whych saye they are Apostles, and are not: & hast founde them lyars, & hast suffred. And hast pacience: and for my names sake hast labored, and hast not faynted. Neuertheles, I haue sumwhat agaynst the, because thou hast lefte thy fyrst loue. Remember therfore
B from whence thou art fallen, & repent, and do the fyrst wozkes. Or elles I wyll come vnto the shortly, & wyll remoue thy cādelsticke out of his place, except thou repent. But this thou hast, because thou hatest the *Act.vi.b. dedes of the * Nycolaitans, which dedes I also hate. Lett hym that hath eares, heare what the spzete sayth vnto ꝑ cōgregacyōs. To hym that ouercōmeth, wyll I geue to

C And vnto the angell of the cōgregacyon of Smyrna wzyte: These thynges sayth he that is fyrst, & the laste, which was deed, and is alyue. I know thy wozkes & tribulacyon and powerte, but thou art ryche. And I knowe ꝑ blasphemy of them, whych call them selues Jewes & are not: but are the cōgregacyon of Sathan. Feare none of those thynges, which thou shalt suffre. Beholde, the deuyll shall caste some of you into pzeson, to tēpte you, & ye shall haue tribulacyō ten dayes. Be faythfull vnto ꝑ deeth, and I wyll geue the a croune of lyfe. Let hym that hath eares, heare, what ꝑ spzete sayth to the cōgregacyons. He that ouercōmeth, shall not be hurt of the seconde deeth.

D And to the messenger of the cōgregacyon in Pergamos wzyte: This sayth he, which hath the sharpe swearde with two edges: I knowe thy wozkes, & where thou dwellest, euen where Sathanas seat is, and thou kepest my name, & hast not denyed my fayth. And in my dayes Antipas was a faythfull wytnes of myne, whych was slayne amonge you, where Sathan dwelleth. But I haue a fewe thynges agaynst ꝑ: because thou hast there, them that mayntayne ꝑ doctrine of Balam * which taught in Balake, to Euen so hast thou them that mayntayne ꝑ doctryne of the Nycolaitās, which thynge I hate. But be cōuerted, or elles I wyll come vnto ꝑ shortly, and wyll fight agaynst thē with ꝑ swearde of my mouth. Let hym E that hath eares, heare, what ꝑ spzete sayth vnto ꝑ congregacyōs. To hym that ouercōmeth, wyll I geue to eate Manna that is hyd, & wyll geue hym a whyte stone, & i the stone a newe name wzytten, which no man knoweth, saue he that receaueth it.

And vnto ꝑ messenger of ꝑ cōgregacyon of Thyatira wzyte. Thys sayth the sonne of God, which hath eyes lyke vnto a flāme of fyze, & hys fete are lyke brasse: I knowe thy wozkes, & thy loue, seruyce, and fayth, and thy pacience, & thy dedes, which are mo F at the last then at the fyrst. Notwithstandynge I haue a fewe thynges agaynst the, because thou sufferest that woman * Jesabell, which called her selfe a Pzophetisse, to *iii. Re.xvi. iiii. Reg.x.b. teache & to deceaue my seruauntes, to make them cōmyt fornycacyon, & to eate meates offered vp vnto ydoles. And I gaue her space to repēt of her fornycacyon, & she repēted not. Beholde, I wyll caste her into a beed: & them that cōmyt fornycacyon with her, into gret aduersytie, except they turne frō their deades. And I wyll kyll her chyldren with deeth. And all the congregacyōs shall knowe, that * I am he which searcheth the Jere.xvii.b. reynes & hertes. And I wyll geue vnto euery one of you acozdynge vnto hys wozkes.

Unto you I saye, and vnto other of them of Thyatira, as many as haue not this lerG nyng & which haue not knowen the depnes of Sathan (as they saye) I wyll put vpon you none other burthen, but ꝑ which ye haue already. Holde fast tyll I come, & whosoeuer ouercōmeth & kepeth my wozkes vnto the ende, to hym wyll I geue power ouer nacyōs, * & he shall rule them wt a rodde of Psal.ii.b. yron: & as ꝑ vessels of a potter shall they be broken to shyuers. Euen as I receaued of my father, so wyll I geue hym the mozny ge starre. Let hym that hath eares, heare, what ꝑ spzete sayth to the cōgregacyons.

¶ The iii. Chapter.

¶ He instructeth and enfourmeth the Angels of the cōgregacyons, declarynge also the rewarde of hym that ouercommeth.

A Nd wzyte vnto the messenger of ꝑ congregacion ꝑ is at Sardis: this sayth he ꝑ hath ꝑ seuē spzetes of God & the seuen starres. I know thy wozkes, thou hast a name that thou lyuest, and thou art deed. Be awake, and strengthe the thynges which remayne, ꝑ are redy to dye. For I haue not founde thy wozkes perfayete before *imp. He that ouercōmeth, shalbe thus clothed in whyte araye, and I wyll not put out his name out of the boke of lyfe, and I wyll confesse hys name before my father, and before hys Angels. Let hym that hath eares, heare, what the spyrete sayth vnto the congregacyons.

And wryte vnto the angell of the congregacion of Philadelphia: this sayth he that is holy and true, which hath ỹ kaye of Dauid: * whych openeth and no man shutteth, and shutteth, & no man openeth. I knowe thy workes. Beholde, I haue set before the an open dore, and no man can shut it, for thou hast a lytell strength, & hast kept my sayinges: & hast not denyed my name. Beholde, I make them of the cōgregacyon of Sathan, whych call them selues Iewes, and are not, but do lye: Beholde, I wyll make them that they shall come, and worshyp before thy fete: and shall knowe, that I haue loued the.

Let hym that hath eares, heare, what the spyrete sayth vnto the congregacyons.

And vnto ỹ messenger of ỹ cōgregacyon whych is in Laodicia, wryte: This sayth (Amen) the kaythfull and true wytnes, the begynnyng of ỹ creatures of God. ## ¶The.iiii.Chapter.

¶He seeth the heauen open, and the seate, and one syttynge vpon it, and.xxiiii. seates about it with xxiiii. elders syttynge vpon them, and foure beastes prayseng God daye and nyght.

A ✠ After this I loked, and beholde a dore was open in heauē, and the fyrst voyce whych I hearde, was as it were of a trompett talkynge wyth me, whych sayde: come vp hyther, and I wyll shewe the thynges: whych must be fulfylled hereafter. And immediatly I was in the spyrete: & beholde, a seate was sett in heauen, and one sate on the seate. And he that sat, was to loke vpon, lyke vnto a Iasper stone and a Sardyne stone. And ther was a rayne bowe aboute ỹ seate, in syght lyke to an Emeralde. And B aboute ỹ seate were.xxiiii. seates. And vpō the seates.xxiiii. elders syttyng, clothed in whyte rayment, and had on theyr heades crownes of golde.

And out of the seate proceded lyghtnynges, & thundrynges, & voyces, & ther were seuen lampes of fyre, burnynge before the seate, whych are the seuen spyretes of God, And before ỹ seate ther was a see of glasse, lyke vnto Cristal, and in the myddes of the seate, & rounde about the seate were foure beastes full of eyes before & behynde. And C the fyrst beast was lyke a lyon, & the secōde beaste lyke a calfe, & the thyrde beast had a face as a man, & the fourth beast was lyke a flyinge Egle. And ỹ foure beastes had eche one of them. vi. wynges about hym, & they were full of eyes wt in. And they had no rest daye nether nyght saying. * Holy, holy, holy, Lord God almyghty, whych was, and is, and is to come. *Esaie.vi.b

And when those beastes gaue glory and D honour & thankes to hym ỹ sate on ỹ seate, (which lyueth for euer & euer) the.xxiiii. elders fell downe before hym ỹ sat on ỹ trone & worshypped hym that lyueth for euer & cast theyr crounes before ỹ trone saying: thou arte worthy o Lord (oure God) to receaue glory, & honoure, and power, for thou hast created all thynges, & for thy willes sake they are, & were created.

¶The.v.Chapter.

¶He seyth the lābe openynge the boke, and ther fore the foure beastes, the.xxiiii. elders, and the angels prayse the lambe, and do hym worshyppe.

A And I sawe in ỹ ryght hande of hym that sat in the trone, a boke wrytten with in & on the backsyde, sealed with seuē seales. And I sawe a stronge angell, which preached wt a lowde voyce: Who is worthy to open the boke, & to lose ỹ seales therof. And no man in heauē ner in erth nether vnder ỹ erth, was able to open ỹ boke, nether to loke theron. And I wepte moch because no man was fōude worthy to open & to reade the boke, nether to loke theron.

B And one of the elders sayde vnto me wepe not: Beholde, a lyon of ỹ trybe of Iuda, the rote of Dauid, hath obtayned to open the boke, and to lose the seuen seales therof. And I behelde, and lo, in the myddes of the seate, and of the foure bestes, and in ỹ myddes of the elders, stode a lambe as though he had bene kylled, haupnge seuen hornes, and seuen eyes, whych are the seuen spyretes of God, sent into all the worlde. And he came, and toke the boke out of the ryght hande of him that sate vpon the seate.

C And when he had taken ỹ boke, the foure beastes and.xxiiii. elders fell downe before ỹ lābe, hauyng (euery one of them) harpes & golden vialles full of odoures, which are the prayers of saynctes, & they songe a new songe, saying: thou art worthy to take the boke, & to open the seales therof: for ỹ wast kylled, & hast redemed vs by thy blood out of all kynredes, & tōges, & people, & nacyōs, and hast made vs vnto our God, kynges, and prestes, & we shall raygne on the erth.

D And I behelde, and I hearde the voyce of many angels about the trone, & about the beaste & the elders, and I hearde thousand thousandes, saying wt a lowde voyce: Worthy is the lābe that was kylled to receaue power, & ryches, & wysdome, and strength, and honour, & glory, & blessynge. And all ỹ creatures whych are in heauen, & on ỹ erth, & vnder the erth, & in the see, & all that are in them, herde I sayinge, blessyng, honour, glory, & power be vnto hym that sytteth vpon ỹ seate, & vnto the lābe for euermore. And the foure beastes sayd: Amen. And the xxiiii. elders fell vpon their faces, and worshypped hym that lyueth for euermore.

¶The.vi.Chapter.

A And I sawe, when the lambe opened one of ỹ seales, and I herde one of the foure beastes saye, as it were ỹ noyse of thonder: come & se: and I sawe. And beholde ther was a whyte horse: and he that sat on hym, had a bowe, and a crowne was geuen vnto hym, and he went forth cōquerynge & for to ouer come. And when he had opened the secōde seale. I herde the secōde beaste, saye: come and se. And ther wēt out another horse that was redd, & power was geuen to hym that satt theron, to take peace from the erth, & that they shuld kyll one another. * And ther was geuen vnto hym a great swearde. * Esa.xxbii. a.

B And when he had opened the thyrde seale I herde ỹ thyrde beaste saye, come & se. And I behelde, & lo, a black horse: & he that sate on him, had a payre of balāces in his hāde. And I herde a voyce in ỹ myddes of ỹ foure beastes, saye: a measure of whete for a penny, & thre measures of barly for a peny and oyle and wyne se thou hurte not. And when he had opened the fourth seale, I herde the voyce of ỹ fourth beaste saye, come and se: & I looked. And behold a pale horse: & his name that sate on him was deeth, & hell folowed after hym, & power was geuen vnto them ouer ỹ fourth parte of ỹ erth, to kyll wyth swearde, & wyth hōger, & wyth deeth that cōmeth of vermen of the erth.

And when he had opened the fyft seale, C I saw vnder ỹ aultre * the soules of them Iob.xxii.b. that were kylled for ỹ worde of God, & for ỹ testymony whych they had, & they cryed with a lowde voyce, sayinge: How lōge taryest thou Lord, holy & true, to iudge & to auēge oure blood on them ỹ dwel on ỹ erth? And lōge whyte garmētes were geuen vnto euery one of them. And it was sayde vnto them, that they shuld reste yet for a lytle season vntyll the nomber of theyr felowes, and brethren, & of them ỹ shulde be kylled as they were, were fulfylled.

And I behelde, when he had opened the fyft seale: & lo, ther was a great erthquake and the sunne was as blacke as sacke cloth made of heere. And ỹ mone wered all, euen as blood, and the starres of heauen fell vnto the erth, euen as a fygge tree casteth frō her vntymely fygges, when she is shaken of a myghty wynde. And heauen vanished awaye, as a scroll when it is rolled to gether. And all mountaynes and yles, were moued out of theyr places. And ỹ kynges of the erth, and the gret men, and the ryche men, and ỹ chefe captaynes, & the myghty men, & euery bondman, and euery free man, hyd them selues in dennes, and in rockes of Osee.x.b. the hylles: * and sayde to the hylles and Luke.xxiii.d. rockes: fall on vs, & hyde vs from the presence of hym that sytteth on the seate, and from the wrath of the lambe: for the grete daye of his wrath is come, and who is able to endure?

¶The.vii.Chapter.

¶He seeth the seruauntes of God sealed in their forheades out of all nacyons and people, whych though they suffre trouble, yet the lambe fedeth them, ledeth them to the fountaynes of lyuynge water, and God shall wype awaye all teares frō their eyes.

A And aftor that, I sawe .iiii. ãgels stãde on the .iiii. cozners of ẏ erth holdynge ẏ foure wyndes of the erth, ẏ ẏ wynde shuld not blowe on ẏ erth, nether on ẏ see, nether on eny tree.
✝ And I sawe another angell ascẽde from the rysynge of the sunne, which had ẏ seale of the lyuyng God, & he cryed wyth a loude voyce to ẏ foure Angels (to whom power was geuẽ to hurte ẏ erth & the see) saynge: hurt not the erth nether the see, nether the trees, tyll we haue sealed the seruauntes of oure God in their fozheades.
B And I hearde ẏ nõbze of thẽ wbych were sealed, & ther were sealed an. C. & .xliii. M. of all the trybes of the chyldzen of Israel.
Of the trybe of Juda were sealed .xii. M.
Of the trybe of Ruben were sealed .xii. M.
Of the trybe of Gad were sealed . xii . M.
Of the trybe of Aser were sealed . xii. M.
Of ẏ trybe of Neptali were sealed .xii M.
Of ẏ tryb of Manasses were sealed .xii. M.
Of ẏ trybe of Symeõ were sealed .xii. M.
Of the trybe of Leuy were sealed . xii. M.
Of the trybe of Isacar were sealed .xii. M.
Of ẏ trybe of zabulon were sealed . xii. M.
Of the trybe of Joseph were sealed .xii. M.
Of ẏ trybe of Bẽiamin were sealed .xii. M.
C After this I beheldc, & lo, a gret multitude (which nomã coulde nõbze) of all nacyõs & people, & tõges, stode before ẏ seate, & before ẏ lãbe, clothed with lõge white garmẽtes, & palmes in their handes, & cryed with a lowde voyce, saynge: saluacyon be alleribed to him that sytteth vpon ẏ seate of oure God, & vnto ẏ lambe. And all the angels stode in the cõpase of the seate, & of ẏ elders & of ẏ foure bestes, & fell before the seat on their faces, and wozshypped God, saynge, Amen: Blessinge & glozy & wysdome & thãkes, and honour, & power, & mygbt, be vnto oure God foz euermoze. Amen. ✝
D And one of the elders answered, saynge vnto me: what are these which are arayed i lõge whyte garmẽtes, & whẽce came they? And I sayde vnto him: Lozd thou wotest. And he sayde to me: these are they, wbych came out of great tribulacyõ, & made their garmẽtes large, & made them white by the blonde of ẏ lambe: therfoze are they in the presence of ẏ seate of God & serue hym daye & nygbt in his tẽple, & he that sytteth in the seate wyll dwell amonge them. They shall honger no moze, nether thyrst, nether shall the sunne lyght on them, nether eny heate. Foz ẏ lãbe wbych is in ẏ myddes of ẏ seate, shall fede them, & shall leade them vnto fountaynes of lyuynge water, & God shall wype awaye all teares from their eyes.

¶The.viii.Chapter.

A And when he had opened the seuenth seale, ther was sylẽce in heauen about the space of halfe an houre. And I sawe. vii. angelles standyng before God, & to them were geuen seuen trõpettes. And another ãgell came & stode before ẏ aultre, hauynge a golden senser, & moch of odoures was geuẽ vnto him, that he shulde offre of the prayers of all sayntes vpon the golden aulter, wbych was before ẏ seate. And the smoke of the odoures wbych cam of the prayers of all sayntes, ascended vp before God out of the Angelles handc. And ẏ Angell toke the senser, and fylled it wyth fyre of the aulter, and caste it into the erth, and voyces were made, & thondrynges & lyghtnynges, and erthquake.
B And ẏ seuen Angels wbych had ẏ seuen trõpettes, prepared them selues to blowe. The fyrst Angell blewe, & there was made hayle & fyre, which were mynged wt blond, & they were cast into ẏ erth: & ẏ thirde parte ✻ (of the erth was set on fyre, and the thirde parte) of ✻ trees was burnt, and all grene grasse was C vyẽt. And ẏ secõde angell blewe: & as it were a gret mountayne burnyng wt fyre was caste into the see, and ẏ. thyrde parte of the see tourned to blonde, and the thyrde parte of the creatures which had lyfe, dyed, & the thyrde part of shyppes were destroyed.
And the thyrde Angell blew, & ther fell a gret starre from heauen, burnyng as it were a lãpe, & it fell into the thyrde parte of the ryuers, & into fountaynes of waters, D & the name of ẏ starre is called wormwod. And ẏ thyrde parte was turned to wormwod. And many men dyed of the waters, because they were made bytter. And the fourth Angell blew, and ẏ thyrde parte of the sunne was smytten, and ẏ thirde parte of the mone, and the thyrde parte of starres: so that the thyrd part of them was darckned. And the daye was smytten, that the thyrde part of it shulde not shyne, & lykewyse the nyght. And I behelde and herde an Angell flyinge thorow the myddes of heauen, saynge with a lowde voyce: Woo, woo, to the inhabiters of the erth, because of ẏ voyces to come of the trõpe of the thre Angels, wbych were yet to blowe.

¶The.ix.Chapter.

¶The fifth and syxt Angell blowe their trompettes: the starre falleth from heauen: the locustes come out of the smoke. The fyrst wo is past: the foure angels that were bounde are loosed, and the thyrde parte of men is kylled.

A And the syxt Angell blewe, and I sawe a starre fall from heauen vnto the erth. And to him was geuen the kaye of the bottomlesse pytt: And he opened the bottomlesse pytt, and the smoke of the pytt arose as the smoke of a gret foznace. And the sunne, and the ayer the ayer were darckned by the reason of the smoke of ẏ pytt. And there came out of the smoke locustes vpon the erth, & vnto them was geuen power, as the scozpions of the erth haue power. And it was commaunded them, that they shuld not hurt the grasse of ẏ erth: nether eny grene thynge: nether eny tree: but onely those men which haue not ẏ seale in their fozheades. And to them was cõmaũded, that they shulde not kyll them, but that they shulde be vexed. v. monethes, & their payne was as the payne ẏ commeth of a scozpion, when he hath stonge a man.

✻ Esaie.li.d. Osee.x.c. Luke.xxiii.d. ✻ And in those dayes shall men seke deeth, and shall not finde it, & shall desyre to dye, and deeth shall flye from them.
B And the symilitude of the locustes was lyke vnto hozses prepared vnto battayll, & on their heades were as it were crounes, lyke vnto golde, and their faces were as it had bene ẏ faces of men. And they had heere as the heere of wemen. And their teethe were as ẏ teeth of lyõs. And they had habbergions, as it were habbergions of yron. And the soũde of their winges, was as the soũde of charrettes, when many hozses rũne to gether to battayle. And they had tayles lyke vnto scozpiõs, and there were stynges i their tayles. And their power was to hurt mẽ. v. monethes. And they had a kyng ouer thẽ, which is ẏ angell of ẏ bottomlesse pytt, whose name in the Hebzewe tong, is Abadon: but in the Gzeke tonge, Apollion ẏ is to saye: a destroyer. One wo is past, & beholde, two wooes come yet after this.
C And the syxt Angell blewe, and I herde a voyce from the .iiii. cozners of the golden aultre, which is before God, saynge to the syxt Angell, which had the trõpe: Lose the foure Angelles, which are bounde in ẏ greate ryuer Euphzates. And the foure Angelles were loosed, wbych were prepared foz an houre, foz a daye, foz a moneth, & foz ayere, foz to slee ẏ. iii. part of men. And the nõbze of hozsmen of warre were. xx. thousande tymes. x. M. And I herde the nõbze of them: & thus I sawe ẏ hozses in a vision, & them ẏ sate on them, hauynge fyrye habbergiõs of a Jacincte couloure, & brymstone, & the heades of ẏ hozses were as ẏ heades of lyons.
D And out of their mouthes went fozth fyre and smoke, & brymstone. And of these thre was ẏ thyrd part of men kylled: that is to saye, of fyre, smoke, and brymstone: wbych proceded out of the mouthes of them: foz their power was i their mouthes & in their tayles, foz their tayles were lyke vnto serpentes, & had heades, & with them they dyd hurt: And ẏ remanaũt of ẏ men wbych were not kylled by these plages, repẽted not of the dedes of their handes ẏ they shulde not wozshyppe deuyls, & ymages of golde and syluer, and bzalle, and stone, and of wood, wbych nether can se, nether heare, nether go. Also they repẽted not of their murther, and of their sozcery, nether of their foznycacyon, nether of their thefte.

¶The.x.Chapter.

A And I saw another myghtye angell come downe from heauen clothed wt a cloude, & the raynebowe vpon his heed. And his face as it were the sunne, & his fete as it were pyllars of fyre, and he had in his hãde a lytell boke open, and he put his ryght fote vpon ẏ see, & his lyfte fote on the erth. And cryed wyth a lowde voyce, as when a lyon rozeth. And when he had cryed, seuen thonders spake their voyces. And when ẏ. vii. thõdzes had spoken their voyces, I was about to wzyte. And I herde a voyce from heauen, saynge vnto me: seale vp those thynges wbych the. vii. thondzes spake, & wzyte them not.
And ẏ Angell which I sawe stode vpon B the see, & vpon the erth, lyfte vp his hande to heuen, and sware by him that lyueth foz euer moze, wich created heauen, & the thynges that therin are ✻ (And the erth and the thynges that therin are) and the see, & the thynges which therin are: ẏ there shulde be no lenger tyme but in the dayes of the voyce of the seuenth Angell, when he shall begyn to blowe: euen the mystery of God shalbe fynysshed, as he preached by his seruauntes ẏ prophetes.
And ẏ voyce which I herde from heuen, C spake vnto me agayne, & sayd: * go & take Ezech.ii.c. the lytle boke which is open in the hande of ẏ angell which standeth vpon ẏ see, & vpon ẏ erth. And I wẽt vnto the angell, & sayde to him: geue me the lytle boke, and he sayde vnto me: take it, & eate it vp, & it shall make thy belly bytter, but it shalbe i thy mouthe as swete as hony. * And I toke ẏ lytle D boke out of his hande, & eate it vp, & it was Ezech.iii.c. in my mouth as swete as hony: and as sone as I had eatẽ it, my belly was bytter. And he sayde vnto me: ẏ must prophesy agayne amonge the people, and nacyõs, and tõges, and to many kynges.

¶The.xi.Chapter.

A And then was geuen me a rede, lyke vnto a rodd, & it was sayde vnto me. Ryse & meate the temple of God, & ẏ aulter, & them ẏ wozshippe therin, & the quere which is wtin ẏ tẽple, cast out & meate it not foz it is geuen vnto the Gẽtyles, & ẏ holy cytye shall they treade vnder fote. xlii. monethes. And I wyll geue power vnto my two witnesses, & they shall prophesy a thousande, two hundzed & lx.dayes,clothed in sacke clothe. These are two olyue trees, & two candelstyckes, standynge before the God of the erth.

B And yf eny man wyll hurt thē,fyre shall procede out of their mouthes, and consume their enemyes. And yf eny man wyll hurt them,thys wyse muste he be kylled. These haue power to shut heauē, that it rayne not in the dayes of their prophesying:and haue power ouer waters to turne them to blode,and to smyte ỹ erth with all maner plages,as often as they wyll.

And when they haue fynyshed their testimony, the beast that cam out of ỹ bottomlesse pyt,shall make warre agaynst them,& shall ouercome them,& kyll thē. And their bodyes shall lye in the stretes of the greate cityе,which spiritually is called Sodom and Egypte,where oure Lorde was crucyfyed. And they of the people & kynredes,& tōges, & they of ỹ nacyōs, shall se their bodyes.iii. dayes and an halfe, & shall not suffre their bodyes to be put in graues. And they that dwell vpon ỹ erth, shall reioyce ouer them, and be glad, & shall sende gyftes one to another, for these two prophetes vexed them that dwelt on the erth.

C And after.iii.dayes & an halfe,the spirite of lyfe from God, entred into them. And they stode vp vpon their fete,& greate feare came vpon them whych sawe them. And they herde a greate voyce frō heauen,sayinge vnto them.Come vp hyther. And they ascended vp into heauen in a cloude, & their enemyes sawe thē. And ỹ same houre was ther a great erthquake,and the tenth parte of the cytye fell, and in the erthquake were slayne names of men seuen.M.and ỹ remnaūt were feared,and gaue glory to ỹ God of heauen.The second woo is past,& beholde,the thyrde woo wyll come anone.

D And ỹ seuenth Angell blewe,& ther were made greate voyces in heauen,sayinge:the kyngdoms of this worlde are oure lordes, and his Christes, & he shall raygne for euer more.*(Amen.) And the.xxiiii.elders, whych syt before God on their seates, fell vpon their faces,& worshypped God,sayinge:We geue the thākes O Lord God almyghtye: whych arte & wast,& arte to come,for ỹ haste receaued thy great myght,and hast raygned. And the nacyōs were angry,and thy wrath is come, & the tyme of ỹ deed ỹ they shuld be iudged and that ỹ shuldest geue rewarde vnto thy seruauntes the Prophetes and Sayncters, & to them ỹ feare thy name small & great & shuldest destroye thē, which destroye ỹ erth. And the tēple of God was opened in heauen,& ther was sene in his tēple, ỹ arcke of his testamēt, & ther folowed lightnynges, and voyces, and thōdrynges and erthquake,and moch hayle.

CThe.xii.Chapter.

C The seuenth Angell blowyth his trompet. There apeareth in heauen a woman clothed with the Sōne: Michael fyghteth with the dragon,which persecuteth the woman.

A Nd ther appered a gret wōder i heauen: A woman clothed wt ỹ sonne, & the mone vnder her fete, & vpon her heed a croune of.xii.starres. And she was wt chylde, & cryed trauaylinge in byrth, & payned redy to be delyuered. And ther appered another wōder i heauen, for beholde,a gret red dragon haynge. vii.heddes, & ten hornes & seuen crounes vpon hys heades: and hys tayle drue the thyrde parte of the starres *(of heauen) and cast them to the erth.

And the dragon stode before the woman whych was redy to be delyuered:for to deuoure her chylde as sone as it were borne. And she brought forth a man childe, which shulde rule all nacyōs with a rodd of yron. And her sonne was taken vp vnto God,& to his seate. And ỹ woman fled into wyldernes, where she had a place, prepared of God, ỹ they shulde fede her there a.M.ii. hundred and.lx.dayes.

C And ther was a great battayll in heauen, Michael & his angels fought with the dragon,& ỹ dragon fought & his Angelles, and preuayled not, nether was their place founde eny more in heauen. And the great dragon,that olde serpēt,called the deuyll & Sathanas,was cast out. Which deceaueth all ỹ worlde. And he was cast into the erth & his āgelles were cast out also(with hym)

And I herde a lowde voyce sayinge: in heauen is now made saluacyon and strēgth & the kyngdome of oure God, & the power of hys Christ. For * (the accuser of our brethren) is cast doune, which accused thē before (our) God daye and nyght. And they ouercame him by the blode of the lambe, and by the worde of their testimony, & they loued not their lyues vnto ỹ deeth. Therfore reioyce heuēs,& ye that dwell in them. Woo to the inhabiters of the erth,and of the see:for the deuyll is come downe vnto you,which hath great wrath,because he knoweth ỹ he hath but a short tyme.

And when ỹ dragon sawe ỹ he was caste vnto ỹ erth, he persecuted ỹ woman, which brought forth ỹ man chylde. And to ỹ woman were geuen two wynges of a great Egle, ỹ she myght flye into the wyldernes into her place,where she is norysshed for a tyme, tymes, & halfe a tyme,frō ỹ presence of ỹ serpent. And ỹ dragon cast oute of hys mouth water after ỹ woman as it had bene a ryuer, because she shuld haue bene caught of the floud. And ỹ erth holpe the woman, and ỹ erth opened her mouth & swalowed, vp ỹ ryuer, which ỹ dragon cast out of his mouth.

mouth. And the dragon was wroth wyth the woman:and went, & made warre wyth the remnaunt of hyr sede,which kepe the cōmaundementes of God,and haue the testimony of Jesus Christe. And he stode on the see sande.

CThe.xiii.Chapter.

C A beast ryseth out of the see with seuen heades and ten hornes. Another beast cōmeth out of the earth with two hornes.

A Nd I sawe a beaste ryse out of ỹ see,hauyng seuen heddes,and ten hornes, and vpon his hornes ten crounes,& vpon his heed,ỹ name of blasphemy. And ỹ beast which I sawe, was lyke a catte of ỹ mountayne, and hys fete were as ỹ fete of a beare, & hys mouth as the mouth of a lyon. And ỹ dragon gaue hym his power & his seate, & great auctorite: and I sawe one of his heedes as it were wounded to deeth, & his dedly woūde was healed. And all the worlde wondred at the beast, & they worshypped ỹ dragon, whych gaue power vnto the beast, and they worshypped ỹ beast sayinge: who is lyke vnto the beast? who is able to warre with hym?

B And ther was geuen vnto hym a mouth, that spake great thynges & blasphemyes, & power was geuen vnto hym, to do.xlii. monethes. And he opened his mouth vnto blasphemy agaynst God, to blaspheme his name & his tabernacle, & them that dwell in heauen. And it was geuen vnto hym to make warre with the Sayncters,& to ouercome thē. And power was geuen him ouer C all kynred, and people, and tonge, and nacion,and all ỹ dwell vpon ỹ erth worshypt hym: whose names are not written in the boke of lyfe of the lābe, which was kylled from the begynnynge of the worlde. If eny man haue an eare let hym heare. He ỹ leadeth into captyuyte, shall go into captyuyte: * he that killeth with a swearde,must be kylled with a swearde. Heare is the pacyence,& the fayth of the sayncters. *Esai.xxi.c Gene.ix.a

And I behelde a nother beast cōmīge vp out of the erth,and he had two hornes lyke a lambe,& he spake as dyd the dragon. And he dyd all ỹ the fyrste beast coulde do in his presence,& he caused the erth,& them which dwel therin, to worshyppe the fyrst beast, whose dedly wounde was healed. And he dyd grett wonders, so ỹ he made fyre come doune from heauen in ỹ syght of men. And deceaued them that dwelt on the erth, by ỹ meanes of those sygnes whyche he had power to do in the syght of the beast, sayinge to them that dwelt on ỹ erth: ỹ they shuld make an ymage vnto the beast, whych had the wounde of a swearde,and dyd lyue.

D And he had power to geue a spirite vnto the ymage of the beast,& that the ymage of the beast shuld speake,and shuld cause, ỹ as many as wolde not worshyppe the ymage of ỹ beast,shuld be kylled. And he made all, both small & gret,ryche & poore,fre & bond, to receaue a marke in theyr ryght hādes or in theyr foreheddes. And ỹ no man myght by or sell,saue he that had the marke or the name of the beast,other the nōbre of his name. Here is wysdome. Let hym that hath wytt,count the nōbre of the beast. For it is the nombre of a man, and his nōbre is syxe hondred,thretscore and syxe.

CThe.xiiii.Chapter.

C The lambe stondeth vpon the mount Syon, and the vndefyled congregacyon with hym. The angell exhorteth to the feare of God, and telleth of the fall of Babylon.

A Nd I loked, and lo, a lambe stode on the mount Syon, & with hym an.C.& .xliiii. thousande hauynge his *(name & his) fathers name written i theyr foreheddes. And I herde a voyce from heuen,as the sounde of many waters, and as the voyce of a gret thoundre. And I herde ỹ voyce of harpers harpynge with theyr harpes. And they songe as it were a newe songe,before the seate,& before ỹ foure beastes, & ỹ elders, & no man coulde learne ỹ songe,but ỹ hondred & .xliiii.M. which were redemed from ỹ erth. These are they, which were not defyled wt wemen, for they are virgyns. These folowe the lambe whyther soeuer he goeth. These were redemed from men,beynge ỹ fyrste frutes vnto God and to the lambe, & in their mouthes was foūde no gyle. For they are with oute spot before the trone of God.

And I sawe,another angell flye in ỹ mydes of heauen haynge the euerlastyng gospell,to preache vnto them ỹ syt & dwell on the erth, & to all nacyōs,kynreds, & tonges & people,saying wt a lowde voyce: * Feare God,& geue honour to hym,for the houre of his iudgemēt is come:and worshyppe him, ỹ made heauen & erth,& the see, & fountaines of water. And there folowed a nother angell, saying: * Babylon is fallen is fallen that greate cyte, for she made all nacyons dryncke of the wyne of her fornycacyon. *Act.xiiii.c *Esaie.xxi.c Hiere.li.a

And ỹ thyrd angell folowed them saynge wt a loude voyce: If any man worshyppe ỹ beast and his ymage, & receaue his marke in his forehed,or on his hāde,ỹ same shall drincke the wyne of ỹ wrath of God,which is powred in the cup of his wrath. And he shalbe punyshed in fyre & brymstone, before the holy angels,& before the lambe. C

Heare are they that kepe the commaundementes and the fayth of Jesu.

And I hearde a voyce from heauen sayīg vnto me: wryte. Blessed are ꝑ dede, which here after dye in the Lorde, euen so sayth ꝑ spryte: that they rest from theyr laboures, but theyr workes folowe them.

And I loked, and beholde a whyte clowde, and vpon the clowde one syttynge lyke vnto the sonne of man, hauyng on his heed a golden crowne, and in his hande a sharpe sykle. And another angell came out of the temple, crying with a lowde voyce to hym that sate on the clowde: * Thruste in thy sykle & repe, for thy tyme is come to repe, for the corne of ꝑ erth is rype. And he that sate on the cloude, thrust in hys sycle on the earth, and the erth was reped. * Joel. iii. c. D

And another angell came out of the temple, whych is in heauen, hauyng also a sharpe sykle. And another angell came out frō the aultre, whych had power ouer fyre, and cryed with a lowde crye to hym that had ꝑ sharpe sykle, & sayde: thruste in thy sharpe sykle, & gaddre the clusters of the erth, for her grapes are rype. And the angell thrust in hys sharpe sykle on the erth, & cut downe the grapes of the vyneyarde of ꝑ erth: and cast them into the gret wynefat of ꝑ wrath of God, & ꝑ wynefat was troden with out the cytie, and bloud came out of ꝑ fat, euen vnto ꝑ horse brydles, by ꝑ space of a thousande, and. vi. C. furlonges.

¶ The. xv. Chapter.

A AND I sawe another sygne in heuen gret and meruellous, seuen Angels, hauyng the seuen laste plages, for in them is fulfylled the wrath of God. And I sawe as it were a glassye see, mynglēd wt fyre, & them that had gotten victory of the beast, and of hys ymage, and of the nombre of hys name, stande on the glassye see, hauyng the harpes of God, and they songe the songe of Moses the seruaunt of God, & the songe of the lambe, sayinge: Great and marueluous are thy workes: * Lorde God almyghtye, iuste & true are thy wayes, thou kyng of Sayncte. Who shall not feare o Lorde, & glorifye thy name? For thou only arte holy, and all gentyls shall come and worshyppe before the, for thy iudgementes are made manyfeste. *Esa. xxi. c. Hiere. li. a.

B And after that, I loked, and beholde, the temple of the tabernacle of testimony was open in heauen, and the seuen Angels came out of the temple whych had the seuen plages clothed in pure and bryght lynnen, and hauyng theyr brestes gyrded with golden gerdels. And one of the fowre beastes gaue vnto ꝑ seuen Angels seuen golden vyalles, full of the wrath of God, whych lyueth for euermore. And the temple was full of the smoke of the glory of God & of hys power, and no man was able to entre into the temple, tyll ꝑ seuen plages of the seuen Angels were fulfylled.

¶ The. xvi. Chapter.

A AND I herde a great voyce out of the tēple saying to the seuen āgels: go youre wayes, powre out youre vyalles of wrath vpon the erth. And ꝑ fyrst Angell wēt, & powred out his vyall vpon the erth, & there fell a noysome, & a sore botche vpon the men whych had the marke of the beast, & vpon them whych worshypped hys ymage. And the secōd Angell shed out hys vyall vpon the see, and it turned as it were into the bloud of a dead man: and euery lyuyng thyng dyed in the see. And the thyrde Angell shed out his vyall vpon the ryuers and fountaynes of waters, & they turned to bloud. And I herde an Angell saye: Lorde, B whych arte and wast, thou arte ryghteous & holy, because thou hast geuen soche iudgementes, for they shed out ꝑ bloud of saincte, and prophetes, & therfore hast ꝑ geuen them bloud to dryncke: for they are worthy. And I herde another saye: euen so Lorde God almyghty: true and ryghteous are thy iudgementes.

And the fourth Angell powred out hys vyall on ꝑ sunne, & power was geuen vnto him to vexe men with heat of fyre. And the men raged in gret heate: & spake euyll of ꝑ name of God, which hath power ouer those plages, & they repēted not of theyr euill dedis, to geue hym glory. And the fyfte Angell powred out his viall vpon ꝑ seate of ꝑ beaste, and his kyngdome wexed derke, & they gnewe theyr tōges for sorowe, and blaspheme ꝑ God of heauen for sorowe & payne of theyr sores, & repented not of theyr dedes.

And ꝑ syxt Angell powred out his vyall C vpon ꝑ gret ryuer Euphrates, & the water dryed vp, ꝑ the wayes of the kynges of the east shulde be prepared. And I sawe thre vnclene spretes lyke frogges come out of ꝑ mouth of ꝑ dragon, & out of ꝑ mouth of the beast, & out of the mouth of ꝑ false Prophete. For they are the spretes of deuyls, worckyng myracles, to go out vnto the kynges of the erth and of ꝑ whole world, to gathre them to the battayle of that gret daye of God almyghty. * Beholde, I come as a thefe. Happy is he that watcheth, and kepeth hys garmentes, lest he walke naked, and men se hys filthynes. And he gathered them together into a place called in the Hebrue tonge Armagedon. *mat. xxiiii. d. ii. Pet. iii. c. i. Thessa. v.

And the seuenth Angell powred out hys vyall into the ayre. And ther cam a greate voyce out of heauen from ꝑ seate, saying, it is done. And ther folowed voyces, thōdrīges, and lightenynges, & ther was a greate erthquake, suche as was not sence mē were vpon the erth, so mighty an erthquake & so great. And the great cytye was deuyded in to thre partes, and ꝑ cyties of all nacyons fell. And greate Babylon came in remembraunce before God, to geue vnto hyr ꝑ cup of the wyne of the fearcenes of his wrathe. Euery yle also fled away, and ꝑ mountaynes were not founde. And ther fell a greate hayle (as it had bene talentes) out of heauē vpon the men, and the mē blaspheмed God: because of the plage of the hayle, for it was great, and the plage of it sore.

¶ The. xvii. Chapter.

A AND ther came one of the seuē Angels, whyche had the seuen vyalles: and talked wyth me, sayenge vnto me: come, I wyll shewe vnto the, the iudgemēt of the great whore that sytteth vpon many waters, wyth whome haue cōmytted fornicacion the kynges of the erthe, and the inhabyters of the erth are droncken wyth the wyne of hir fornicaciō. And ꝑ spryte caryed me away in to the wyldernes. And I sawe a woman syt vpon a rose colored beast, full of names of blaspheмpe, whyche had seuen heades and ten hornes. And the womā was arayed in purple and rose coloure, and decked wyth golde, precious stone, and pearles, and had a cup of golde in her hande, full of abhominaciōs and fylthynes of her fornicacion. And in her forheade was a name B wrytten, a mystery, great Babylon the mother of whordom and abominacions of the erth. And I sawe the wyfe droncken wyth the bloude of sayncte, and with the bloude of the wytnesses of Jesu. And when I sawe her: I wondred with great meruayle.

And the Angell sayde vnto me: wherfore maruayleste thou? I wyll shewe the the mystery of the womā, and of the beast ꝑ beryth her, which hath seuē heades and ten hornes. The beast that thou seest, was, and is not, and shall ascēde out of the bottomlesse pyt, and shall go into perdiciō, & they that dwel on the erth shall wondre (whose names are not wrytten in the boke of lyfe from the begynnynge of the worlde) when they behold the beast that was and is not. And here is a mynde that hath wysdome. C

The seuen heades are seuen moūtaynes, on which the woman sytteth, they are also seuē kynges. Fyue are fallē, and one is, and another is not yet come. And when he cometh, he muste continew a shorte space. And the beast that was, & is not, is euen ꝑ eyghte and is one of the seuen, and shall go into destrucciō. And the ten hornes which ꝑ sawest are tē kynges which haue receaued no kingdom as yet, but shall receaue power as kynges at one houre wyth ꝑ beast. These haue one mynde, and shall geue their power and strength vnto the beast. These shall fyght with the lambe, & the lambe shall ouercome thē. * For he is Lorde of lordes, and kynge of kynges, and they that are on his side, are called, and chosen, and faythfull. *1. Tim. vi. c.

And he sayde vnto me: the waters whych D thou sawest, where ꝑ whore sitteth, are people, and folke, & nacions, and tonges. And the ten hornes, which thou sawest vpon the beast, are they that shall hate the whore, & shall make her desolate and naked, & shall eate her flesshe, & burne her wyth fyre. For God hath put in theyr hertes to fulfyll his wyll, & to do wyth one consent, for to geue their kyngdome vnto the beast, vntyll the wordes of God be fulfylled. And the womā which thou sawest, is ꝑ great cytye, whiche raygneth ouer the kynges of the erth.

¶ The. xviii. Chapter.

¶ The louers of the worlde are sory for the fall of Babylon, but they that be of God haue cause to reioyse for her destruction.

A AND after that, I sawe another An- A gell come from heauen, hauyng gret power, and the erthe was lyghtened wyth hys brightnes. And he cryed myghtely with a stronge voyce, sayinge: * Great Babylon is fallen, is fallen, and is become the inhabitacion of deuyls, and the holde of all fowle spretes, and a cage of all vncleane and hatefull bryddes, for all nacyons haue dronkē of the wyne of the wrath of her fornicacion. And the kynges of the earth haue commytted fornicacion wyth her, and the merchauntes of the erth are wered ryche of the aboundaunce of her pleasures. *Esa. xxi. c. Jeremie. l. a.

And I herde another voyce from heauē, B saye, come away from her my people, ꝑ ye be not partakers of her synnes, and ꝑ ye receaue not of her plages. For her synnes are gone vp to heauē, & God hath remembred her wickednes. Reward her euē as she rewarded you, & geue her double according to her workes. And powre in double to her in the same cuppe which she filled vnto you. And as moche as she glorifyed her selfe and lued wātonly, so moch powre ye in for her of punyshement and sorowe, for she sayde in her selfe: * I syt beynge a quene, & am no wyd- *Esa. xlvii. b dowe, and shall se no sorowe. Therfore shal C. her plages come i one daye, death, & sorowe, and honger, & she shalbe brent with fyre: for strōge is ꝑ Lorde God which shal iudge her.

And

And the kynges of the erth shall bewepe her and wayle ouer her, which haue cõmytted fornicaciõ with her, & haue lyued wantonly with her, whẽ they shall se the smoke of her burnyng, & shall stande a farre of, for feare of her punishement, sayinge. * Alas, Alas, that gret cytie Babylon, ỹ myghtye cytie: for at one hour is thy iudgemẽt come. And the marchauntes of the erth shal wepe and wayle in them selues, for no man wyll bye theyr ware eny moze, the ware of gold and siluer, & precious stones, nether of pearle, and raynes, and purple, and skarlet, and all thynne woddē, and all maner vessels of yuery, & all maner vessels of most precious woddē, & of brasse & yrõ, (* and marble) & cynamõ, and odours, & oyntmentes, and frãckin sence, & wyne, and oyle, and fyne floure, and wheate, beastes, and shepe, and horses, and charetes, and bodyes, and soules of men.

And ỹ apples that thy soule lusted after, are departed frõ the. And all thinges which were deyntie, and had in price, are departed frõ the, & thou shalt fynde thẽ nomoze. The marchaũtes of these thynges whyche were wered ryche, shall stãde a farre of from hir, for feare of ỹ punyshement of her, weppynge and waylynge, & saying: * Alas, Alas, that gret cytie, ỹ was clothed in raynes and purple, and scarlet, and decked with golde, and precious stones, & pearles: for at one houre so great ryches is come to nought.

And euery shyppe gouerner, and all they that occupied shyppes, and shippmen which worke in the see, stode a farre of, and cryed, when they sawe the smoke of her burnyng, saying: what cytie is lyke vnto this gret cytie? And they cast dust on theyr heddes, and cryed weppyng, & waylyng, & sayde: * Alas, Alas, that great cytie, wherin were made riche all that had shippes in ỹ see, by the reason of her costlynes, for at one houre is she made desolate.

Reioyce ouer her thou heauen, and ye holy Apostles and Prophetes: for God hath geuen your iudgemẽt on her. And a mighty angell toke vp a stone lyke a gret millstone and cast it into ỹ see, saying: with such vyolence shall that gret citie Babylõ be cast, & shalbe founde no moze. And ỹ voyce of harpers, and musycions, & of pypers, and trõpetters shalbe herde no moze in the: and no craftes mã, of whatsoeuer craft he be, shalbe founde eny moze in the. And the soũde of a mylle shalbe herde no moze in the, (* and candell lyght shalbe nomoze burnynge in the) and the voyce of the brydegrom and of the bryde, shalbe herd no moze in ỹ, for thy marchaũtes were the gret mẽ of ỹ erth. And wt thyne inchaũtment were deceaued al naciõs: & in her was foũde the bloude of the Prophetes, & of the sayncte, & of all ỹ were slayne vpõ ỹ erth.

The.xix.Chapter.

This Apocalipse is geuen vnto God for iudgyng the whore, and for auengynge the bloude of his seruauntes. The Angell wyll not be worshypped. The foules and brydes are called to the slaughter.

AND after that, I herde a greate voyce of moch people in heauen saying: Alleluia. Saluacion & glozy & honour & power be ascribed to ỹ Lozde our God, for true and ryghteous are his iudgementes, for he hath iudged the gret whoze which dyd corrupt the erth wt her fornicaciõ, & hath auẽged the bloud of his seruaũtes of hyr hãde. And agayn they said: Alleluia. And smoke rose vp for euermoze. And ỹ. xxiiii. elders, & ỹ. iiii. bestes fell downe, & worshipped God that sate on ỹ seate, saying: Amẽ, Alleluia. And a voyce came out of the seat, sayinge: praise our Lozd God all ye ỹ are his seruaũtes, & ye ỹ feare hym both small and great.

And I herde ỹ voyce of moche people euẽ as the voyce of many waters, & as the voyce of strong thõdzynges sayinge: Alleluia, for the Lozd our God omnipotẽt raygneth. Let vs be glad and reioyce, & geue honoure to him, for the mariage of the lãbe is come, and hys wyfe made her selfe ready. And to her was graunted, that she shuld be arayed with pure and goodly raynes. For the raynes is the righteweines of saintes. And he sayd vnto me, wzyte, * happy are they whiche are called vnto ỹ supper of ỹ lãbes mariage. And he sayd vnto me: these are ỹ true sayinges of God. And I fell at his fete, to worshippe him. And he sayde vnto me: se ỹ do it not. For I am thy felow seruaũt, & one of thy brethrẽ, euẽ of them ỹ haue the testimony of Jesus. Worshyppe God. For the testimony of Jesus is ỹ spzete of prophesy.

And I sawe heauẽ open, & behold, a whyte horse: & he ỹ sat vpon him was called fayth full & true, & in righteweines he doth iudge & make battayle. His eyes were as a flãme of fyze: & on his heed were many crownes: & he had a name wzytten, that noman knew but he hym selfe. * And he was clothed wyth a vesture dipt in bloude, & his name is called ỹ worde of God. And the warriers which were in heauen, folowed him vpon whyte horses, clothed wyth whyte & pure raynes: and out of hys mouthe wente a sharpe two edged swerde, that wyth it he shulde smyte the hethen. And he shall rule them wyth a rodde of yron, and he trode ỹ wynefat of fearsnes and wzath of almyghty God. And hath on hys vesture and on his thygh a name wzytten: Kyng of Kynges, and Lozde of Lozdes.

And I sawe an Angell stãde in the sonne, and he cryed with a loude voyce, saying: to all the fowles that flye by the middes of heauen: come and gather youre selues to gether vnto ỹ supper of ỹ great God, that ye maye eate flesshe of kynges, and the flesshe of hye captaynes, and the flesshe of myghty men, & the flesshe of hozses, and of them that syt on them, and the flesh of all free men and bonde men and of small and great. And I sawe the beast, and the kynges of the earth, and their warriers gathered together to make batayle agaynst hym that sat on the hozse, and agaynst his soudiers.

And the beast was take, & with hym that false prophet that wzought miracles before hym, with whych he deceaued them that receaued the beastes marke, & them that worshypped hys ymage. These both were cast quicke into a ponde of fyze burnynge wyth brymstone: & the rẽnaunt were slayne wt the swearde of hym ỹ sat vpõ the horse, whych swearde proceaded out of his mouth, & all ỹ foules were fulfylled wyth theyr flesshe.

The.xx.Chapter.

AND I sawe an Angel come downe frõ heauen, hauyng the kaye of ỹ bottomlesse pyt, and a greate chayne in hys hand. And he toke ỹ dragon ỹ olde serpente, which is the deuyll & Satanas, & he bounde hym a thousande yeres: and cast hym into ỹ bottomlesse pyt, and he shutte hym vp, and set a seale on hym, that he shulde deceaue ỹ people nomoze, tyll the thousande yeres were fulfylled. And after that he must be loosed for a lytell season.

And I sawe seates, and they sat vpõ thẽ, & iudgemẽt was geuẽ vnto thẽ: and I sawe the soules of them that were beheaded for ỹ wytnes of Jesu, and for the wozde of God: & which had not worshipped the beast, nether his ymage, nether had take his marke vpõ their forheades, or in their handes: and they lyued, and raygned with Christ a. M. yere: but the other of the deed mẽ lyued not agayne, vntyll the thousand yere were fynished. This is that first resurreccion. Blessed and holy is he, that hath parte in the first resurreccion. For on such shall the seconde deeth haue no power, but they shalbe the Prestes of God & of Christ, and shall raygne wyth hym a thousande yere.

And whẽ the thousand yeres are expyred, Satan shalbe lowsed out of his prison and shall go out to deceaue ỹ people, whych are in the foure quarters of the erth, Gog & Magog, to gather them together to battayle, whose nombze is as the sonde of the see: and they went vp in the playne of the erth: & cõpased the tẽtes of the sayncte about, & the beloued citie. And fyze came downe frõ God out of heauen, and deuoured them: and the deuyll that deceaued them, was cast into a lake of fyze and brymstone, where the beast and the false prophetes shalbe tormented daye and nyght for euermoze.

And I sawe a great whyte seate, and him that sate on it, from whose face fled awaye both ỹ erth and heauen, and their place was nomoze founde. And I sawe the deed, both gret and small stonde before God: And the bokes were opened, and another boke was opened, which is the boke of lyfe, & the deed were iudged of those thynges whych were written in the bokes accozdyng to their dedes: and the see gaue vp her deed which were in her, and deeth and hell deliuered vp the deed, which were in them: & they were iudged euery man accozdyng to his dedes. And deeth and hell were cast into the lake of fire. This is the seconde deeth. And whosoeuer was not founde wzyttẽ in the boke of lyfe, was cast into the lake of fyze.

The.xxi.Chapter.

AND I sawe a newe heauẽ and a newe earth. For the fyrst heauen, and the fyrst earth were vanyshed awaye, and ther was nomoze See. ✠ And I John sawe that holy cytie, newe Jerusalẽ come downe from God out of heauen, prepared as a bryde garnished for her husband. And I herde a greate voyce out of heauen sayinge: beholde, the tabernacle of God is with men, and he wyll dwell wyth them. And they shall be hys people, and God hym selfe shalbe wyth them, and be theyr God. * And God shall wype awaye all teares frõ theyr eyes. And there shalbe nomoze deeth, nether sozowe, nether crienge, nether shall ther be eny moze payne, for the olde thynges are gone. And he that sate vpõ the seate, sayde: * Beholde, I make all thynges newe. And he sayde vnto me: wzyte, for these wozdes are faythfull and true.

And he sayd vnto me: it is done, I am Alpha and Omega, the begynnyng & the ende I wyll geue to hym that is a thyrst, of the well of the water of lyfe, fre. He that ouercommeth shall enheret all thynges, and I wyll be hys God, and he shalbe my sonne. But the fearfull and vnbeleuynge, and the abhominable, and murdzers, & whozmongers, and sozcerers, and ydolaters, and all lyars shall haue theyr parte in the lake which burnyth with fyze and brymstone, which is the seconde death.

And there cam vnto me one of ỹ seuen Angels which had the seuen vyalles full of the seuẽ last plages: & talked with me sayinge: come hyther, I wyll shewe the ỹ bryde, the lambes wyfe. And he carped me awaye in ỹ spzete spete to a great and an hye mountayne, and he shewed me the great cytie holy Jerusalē, descendyng out of heauen frō God: hauyng the bryghtnes of God. And her shynynge was lyke vnto a stone moste precious, euen lyke a Jasper cleare as Cristall: & had walles great & hye, & had .xii. gates & at ỹ gates xii. Angels: and names written, whych are the names of the .xii. trybes of Israell: on ỹ East parte .iii. gates, & on the Northside .iii. gates, & towardes the South .iii. gates, ād from the West thre gates, and the wall of the cytie had .xii. foundacyons: and in them ỹ twelue names of ỹ lambes .xii. apostles.

E And he that talked with me, had a goldē reade to measure the cytie with all and the gates therof & the wall therof. And the cytie was bylt .iiii. square, and the lēgth was as large as the bredth, & he measured ỹ cytie with the golden rede .xii. M. furlonges: and the length & the bredth, and the heyth of it, were equall. And he measured the wall therof, an. cxliiii. cubytes: the measure that the angell had, was after the measure that man vseth. And tye sydynge of the wal of it was of Jasper. And the cytie was pure golde, lyke vnto cleare glasse, and the foūdacions of the wall of the cytie were garnisshed with al maner of precious stones. The fyrst foundacion was Jaspis, the seconde Saphyre, the thyrde a Calcedony, ỹ fourth an Emeralde, the fyft Sardonix, the syxte Sardeos, the seuenth Crysolite, the eyght Berall, the .ix. a Topas, the tenth a Cruloprasos, the eleuenth a Jacynte, the twelueth an Amathist.

The twelue gates were twelue pearles, euery gate was of one pearle, and the strete of the cytie was pure golde, as thorow shynynge glasse. And I sawe no temple therin.

G For the Lorde God almighty and the lambe are the temple of it. * And the cytie hath no nede of ỹ sonne, nether of ỹ mone to lighten it. For the bryghtnes of God dyd lyght it, and the lambe was the lyght of it. And the people whych are saued shall walke in the lyght of it. And the kinges of the earth shall bryng theyr glory (and honoure) vnto it. * And ỹ gates of it are not shut by daye. For there shalbe no nyght there. (And into it shal they bryng ỹ glory & honoure of the nacions.) And there shall enter into it none vncleane thinge, nether whatsoeuer worketh abhominacion or maketh lyes: but they only which are wrytten in the lambes boke of lyfe.

The .xxii. Chapter.

The tryuer of the water of lyfe, the fruytefulnes and lyght of the cytie of God. The Lorde geueth euer hys seruauntes warnynge of thynges to come, the angell will not be worshipped. To ỹ worde of God maye nothyng be added nor mynyshed.

AND he shewed me a pure tryuer of water of lyfe, clere as Crystall: procedynge out of the seate of God, and the lambe. In the middes of the stret of it, and of ether syde of the tryuer, was ther woode of lyfe: whych bare twelue maner of frutes: & gaue frute euery moneth: & the leues of the wood serued to heale ỹ people with all. And ther shalbe no more curse, but the seate of God and the lambe shalbe in it: and hys seruauntes shall serue hym. And they shall se hys face, and his name shalbe in their forheddes

And he sayde vnto me: these sayinges are saythfull and true. And the Lorde God of ỹ holy Prophetes sent hys Angell to shewe vnto hys seruauntes, the thynges whyche must shortly be fulfylled. Beholde, I come shortly. * Happy is he that kepeth ỹ saying of the prophesy of thys boke. I am John, which sawe these thynges and herde them. And when I had herde & sene, * I fell doune to worshyppe before the fete of the Angell, whyche shewed me these thynges. And he sayde vnto me: se thou do it not, for I am thy felowe seruaunt, & the felowe seruaunt of thy bretheren the Prophetes, and of them which kepe the sayinges of (the prophecye of) thys boke. But worshyppe God.

And he sayde vnto me: seale not the sayinges of the prophesy of this boke. For the tyme is at hande. He that doeth euyll, let him do euyll styll: and he which is filthy, let him be fylthy styll: and he that is ryghteous, let hym be more ryghteous: & he that is holy, let hym be more holy. And beholde, I come shortly, and my rewarde is wyth me, to geue euery man accordynge as his dedes shal be. I am Alpha and Omega, ỹ begynninge and the ende: the fyrst and the last. Blessed are they that do his cōmaundementes, that theyr power maye be in the tree of lyfe, and maye entre in thorow the gates into the cytie. * For wythout shalbe dogges and inchaunters, and whormongers, and murtherers, and ydolaters, & whosoeuer loueth or maketh lesynges.
